Ford won't fire Kelley

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford announced Saturday he will not fire FBI Director Clarence Kelley for accepting gifts from subordinates, and the Justice Department indicated it would take no disciplinary action.

"The President is satisfied with the conclusion of the Department of Justice that the gifts received by Mr. Kelley from subordinates were allowable" under existing regulations, Press Secretary Ron Nessen said.

Ford said he is satisfied with Kelley's promise to make reimbursement for the gifts and reaffirmed his support for Kelley in his "efforts to strengthen the FBI."

In a report to Ford, Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi and other department officials said, "It is our view that Mr. Kelley should remain as director of the FBI and that he should reimburse the bureau as he sought to do."

The department apparently rejected recommendations by two Justice Department investigators. One of them, attorney John M. Dowd, had urged that Kelley be fired by the President. Dowd's supervisor, Michael Shaheen, said Kelley should not be fired but recommended that he be reprimanded

Reportedly among the gifts at issue have been a $200 walnut table, a $250 clock, a $250 easy chair, and a teak and mahogany jewelry box. Kelley has reimbursed the government $355 for drapery valances built in his living room by bureau employes. He has said this work was done without his knowledge.

The statement said that in the past three years, Kelley received gifts from the FBI Executive Conference on special occasions. The most expensive item, the report said, was a chair, which was bought for $105 by the 16 members at a cost of $6.56 apiece.

As for services, Kelley has reimbursed the government $355 for drapery valances built in his living room by bureau employes. He has said this

Federal regulations allow government employes to make voluntary gifts of nominal value to their bosses on special occasions but prohibit virtually all other gift giving.

The bureau explained the gifts and services this way:

—Two plywood valances constructed in Kelley's home were installed for security reasons and had not been requested by Kelley. The department said Kelley offered to pay for them.

—The exhibits section also repaired a hinge on a damaged cabinet Kelley had bought and provided him with a plywood bedboard.

—FBI garage employes did work on Kelley's personal automobile. The department said when Kelley learned of this he stated that thereafter the car would be serviced at a private garage at his own expense. The bureau officials initiated the service in fear of a security breach.

—During the terminal illness of Kelley's wife he asked that the bureau loan him a small cabinet to hold materials he used while working at home. The bureau also loaned Kelley two television sets during this period without his requesting them. Both sets have been returned.

The statement said Levi rejected the reasoning that Kelley should resign or there would be an aura of special treatment because of his high position. It said that Kelley's conduct was different from that of other departmental employes who have been subjected to disciplinay action or criminal prosecution.

"For us to consider all gifts in the same way one considers those which are given for base or illegal purposes and to equate actions done with honest intent with those which are mendacious and mean can only in the end protect the venal by disparaging the decent."

The Justice Department has also concluded that no disciplinary action against Kelley is warranted.

The report submitted to Levi by the Office of Professional Responsibility as also reviewed by Deputy Atty. Gen. Harold R. Tyler Jr., two assistant attorneys general who were not named and the head of a different bureau in the Justice Department.

Hijackers seize Dutch airliner carrying 85

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — Hijackers seized a Dutch KLM jetliner carrying 77 passengers and a crew of eight on a flight from Nice to Amsterdam Saturday night and the plane landed 2½ hours later in Tunis, authorities reported.

Nothing was known of the identities or nationalities of the hijackers or where they boarded the plane.

Bystanders overheard a radio conversation in Arabic and English between the hijackers aboard the plane and Tunisian officials in the control tower. The hijackers demanded a full load of fuel and asked for technicians to undertake a mechanical check.

Witnesses said the DC9 was being refueled, possibly to fly on to another destination.

The plane was on KLM's twice-weekly flight 366 from Malaga, Spain, to Amsterdam via Nice. It arrived in Nice with 28 passengers and during its half-hour stopover took on 49 more for the flight to Amsterdam.

Police in Nice said passengers who boarded there were put through the routine anti-hijack check for weapons in clothing or hand baggage.

Most of the passengers were Dutch tourists returning from vacations in Spain or southern France. Two of the passengers were small children.

Tunis' Carthage airport was closed to air traffic and cordoned off by riot police.

The pilot, using brief coded reports, told air traffic controllers in Europe the situation and radioed he had only enough fuel for another 20 minutes' flying time when the plane touched down in Tunis. It had made a roundabout flight over the French Alps, Italy and the Mediterranean.

The plane took off from Nice airport at 9 p.m. local time (3 p.m. EDT) Saturday and headed for Amsterdam.

About 20 minutes after takeoff the pilot reported he was being forced to turn south, but gave no indication of his destination.

The pilot circled over Carthage airport for more than thirty minutes before asking permission to land because of the fuel supply.

Tunisian authorities said it was possible the hijackers had another destination in mind and did not want to land in Tunis until the pilot convinced them the plane was criticallly low on fuel.

KLM's DC9 was parked away from the terminal with all its lights turned off. Dutch Embassy officials arrived at the airport but declined to talk to reporters.

The hijackers ordered technicians to approach the plane in cars and halt 100 yards away and wait for orders. Two cars with lights turned off could be seen driving across the tarmac.

The jet was the first hijacked plane to land in Tunis since four Palestinian guerrillas forced a British Airlines VC-10 to land here in November 1974. The hijackers held the 47 passengers and crew hostage for several days and killed a German passenger before authorities agreed to their demand for the release of seven other Palestinians imprisoned in Egypt and Holland.

8 injured in SeMo accidents

Seven persons received minor injuries and another received moderate injuries four area traffic accidents Friday and Saturday, according to the highway patrol.

Four persons received minor injuries in a two- car accident at 6 a.m. today on Highway 60, about a mile east of Sikeston.

The accident occurred when a car driven by Philbert Bepper, 66, of Mt. Vernon, Ill. attempted to enter a median crossover, and turned left into the path of a westbound car driven by Kelly Jackson Jr., 40, of East Prairie.

Injured were Bepper, a passenger in the Jackson car, Patricia Berkley, 21, of East Prairie; and passengers in the Bepper car, Renolda Bepper, 62, and Carol Bepper, 20, of Mt. Vernon.

All were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

One person was injured in a one- car accident at 4 p.m. Friday at the junction of Highways 61 and 77, just north of Morley.

The accident occurred when a truck made a left turn in front of a northbound car driven by Dorlis Bernice Young, 45, of Oran. She swerved to miss the truck ran off the road and hit an embankment.

She received minor injuries and was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

Robert M. Barr, 21, of Bertrand, received minor injuries at 7:45 p.m. Friday one- half mile east of Diehlstadt on Highway 77 when a westbound motorcycle he was driving went out of control on a curve and overturned.

He received minor injuries, and was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

A Fredericktown man received moderate injuries in a two- vehicle accident at 4 p.m. Saturday on Highway 72, four miles west of Jackson.

The accident occurred when a westbound car driven by Edward Leon Halpin, 21, of Fredericktown drove into the wrong lane going around a curve and sideswiped a westbound truck driven by Jackie Sadler, 30, of Chaffee.

Halpin received moderate injuries and was taken to St. Francis Hospital at Cape Girardeau.

Harold Lee White, 24, of Clarkton received minor injuries at 4:15 p.m. Saturday on Highway 25, one and 1.5 miles south of Malden, when he apparently fell asleep at the wheel and the northbound car he was driving ran off the road and struck a culvert.

He was taken to Dunklin County Memorial Hospital at Kennett.

Phelps helps open GOP headquarters in Sikeston

Missouri Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps was in Scott County Saturday, to campaign at Benton's annual Neighbor Day festivities and to cut the ribbon at the new Scott County Republican headquarters in Sikeston.

During his visit, Phelps was interviewed by the Daily Standard. When asked his opinion about the Department of Transportation's decision to build a new St. Louis airport in Illinois, Phelps said that he and Gov. Bond would fight the decision in the courts, because they believe that the secretary of transportation has overstepped his bounds in making the decision. Phelps also said that he and Bond believe that vertical take off aircraft will be perfected by 1992 and that so large an airport will not be needed.

Phelps said his and Bond's campaign will be centered on their record of "honesty, openness and trust." He said the reorganization of Missouri government has slowed the growth of hiring new employes tremendously, with hiring up only one per cent during the last two years, compared to over four per cent during the years before the Bond Administration. Phelps also stressed that the area where employment has been increased is in law enforcement.

According to Phelps, state agencies have improved their efficiency under the Bond administration. For example, the motor vehicle registration office has doubled its capacity to handle work, Phelps said.

Phelps cited his own Ombudsman Program, in which he helps private citizens get results from governmental agencies, as a positive aspect of his record. He said that he has handled 17 such cases from Scott County during his three years of service, with five of the cases coming in the past year.

3 escape jail; one surrenders

BLOOMFIELD — Three prisoners at the Stoddard County Jail leaped to freedom Friday night, but for one the escape was short- lived.

The Stoddard County Sheriff's Department said Saturday that James Brown, 31, Gary Tanner, 26, and Tony Malin, 21, escaped from their cell about 1:40 a.m. Friday.

Bolts were removed from a window in their cell, enabling the prisoners to remove the window and to jump the two stories to the ground.

Malin, who is charged with possession of marijuana, later turned himself in to Caruthersville authorities.

Search for the other two, each charged with burglary and stealing, is continuing.

Lawyers pass bar exams

JEFFERSON CITY — Here is the list of successful candidates from the Bootheel who passed the Missouri Bar examinations given July 27 and 28.

Those who took the examination numbered 533 and 466 passed.

Charleston to get new signals

CHARLESTON — The existing traffic signals at the intersection of Main and Marshall streets will be removed Tuesday to make way for new signal lights, according to C. R. Simpson, resident engineer for District 10 of the state highway department.

The intersection will be marked with four-way stop signs during the change, which will last about one month, Simpson said.

Simpson also said that construction work is under way on Marshall Street in Charleston and the public should use caution when driving in the area.

Tax hearing set for Thursday

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The State Tax Structure Study Commission will conduct the third in its series of public hearings at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Federal Court Room at 339 Broadway in Cape Girardeau.

Cape Girardeau Mayor Howard C. Tooke will be the lead off witness. Other witnesses will include Lee Stamper of Southeast Missouri State University, Bob Hendricks of the Cape Girardeau Chamber of Commerce and representatives of the Eastern Missouri Community Action group and the Cape Girardeau Ministerial Alliance.

Residents of the area who are interested in testifying before the Commission are requested to limit their remarks to 10 minutes and provide a written copy of their statement.

The evening meeting was called by Commission Chairman Arthur G. Muegler Jr. to permit the widest possible participation by both public officials and members of the general public.

The commission was established by the General Assembly during the last session of the legislature to conduct an in-depth study of Missouri's entire taxing structure. In hearings planned for various communities throughout the state between now and Nov. 5, the Commission is expected to hear testimony on the possible effects of a proposed constitutional amendment exempting food and drugs from the sales tax as well as to review the method of assessing and levying real and personal property taxes, examine existing laws as they relate to the operations of the State Tax Commission and local assessors and consider alternative methods of state taxation. The constitutional amendment to exempt food and drugs from the sales tax will be voted on at the Nov. 2 general election.

Other hearings are planned for Sept. 23 in Springfield, Oct. 7 in Kansas City, Oct. 21 in Hannibal and Nov. 5 in Columbia.

In its charge from the General Assembly, the commission is required to make specific recommendations to the legislature during its 1977 session.

Members of the commission include Sen. Norman L. Merrell (Dem.), 18th District, Monticello; Sen. A. Clifford Jones (Rep.), 7th District, St. Louis; Sen. George E. Murray (Rep.), 26th District, Creve Coeur; and Sen. Hardin C. Cox (Dem.), 12th District, Rock Port. State Representatives serving on the Commission are: George J. Donegan (Rep.), 146th District, Springfield; Steven M. Gardner (Dem.), 92nd District, Ballwin; DeVerne L. Calloway (Dem.), 81st District, St. Louis; and Harold Lowenstein (Rep.), 34th District, Kansas City.

Ford won't fire Kelley

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford announced Saturday he will not fire FBI Director Clarence Kelley for accepting gifts from subordinates, and the Justice Department indicated it would take no disciplinary action.

"The President is satisfied with the conclusion of the Department of Justice that the gifts received by Mr. Kelley from subordinates were allowable" under existing regulations, Press Secretary Ron Nessen said.

Ford said he is satisfied with Kelley's promise to make reimbursement for the gifts and reaffirmed his support for Kelley in his "efforts to strengthen the FBI."

In a report to Ford, Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi and other department officials said, "It is our view that Mr. Kelley should remain as director of the FBI and that he should reimburse the bureau as he sought to do."

The department apparently rejected recommendations by two Justice Department investigators. One of them, attorney John M. Dowd, had urged that Kelley be fired by the President. Dowd's supervisor, Michael Shaheen, said Kelley should not be fired but recommended that he be reprimanded

Reportedly among the gifts at issue have been a $200 walnut table, a $250 clock, a $250 easy chair, and a teak and mahogany jewelry box. Kelley has reimbursed the government $355 for drapery valances built in his living room by bureau employes. He has said this work was done without his knowledge.

The statement said that in the past three years, Kelley received gifts from the FBI Executive Conference on special occasions. The most expensive item, the report said, was a chair, which was bought for $105 by the 16 members at a cost of $6.56 apiece.

As for services, Kelley has reimbursed the government $355 for drapery valances built in his living room by bureau employes. He has said this

Federal regulations allow government employes to make voluntary gifts of nominal value to their bosses on special occasions but prohibit virtually all other gift giving.

The bureau explained the gifts and services this way:

—Two plywood valances constructed in Kelley's home were installed for security reasons and had not been requested by Kelley. The department said Kelley offered to pay for them.

—The exhibits section also repaired a hinge on a damaged cabinet Kelley had bought and provided him with a plywood bedboard.

—FBI garage employes did work on Kelley's personal automobile. The department said when Kelley learned of this he stated that thereafter the car would be serviced at a private garage at his own expense. The bureau officials initiated the service in fear of a security breach.

—During the terminal illness of Kelley's wife he asked that the bureau loan him a small cabinet to hold materials he used while working at home. The bureau also loaned Kelley two television sets during this period without his requesting them. Both sets have been returned.

The statement said Levi rejected the reasoning that Kelley should resign or there would be an aura of special treatment because of his high position. It said that Kelley's conduct was different from that of other departmental employes who have been subjected to disciplinay action or criminal prosecution.

"For us to consider all gifts in the same way one considers those which are given for base or illegal purposes and to equate actions done with honest intent with those which are mendacious and mean can only in the end protect the venal by disparaging the decent."

The Justice Department has also concluded that no disciplinary action against Kelley is warranted.

The report submitted to Levi by the Office of Professional Responsibility as also reviewed by Deputy Atty. Gen. Harold R. Tyler Jr., two assistant attorneys general who were not named and the head of a different bureau in the Justice Department.

Charleston to get new signals

CHARLESTON — The existing traffic signals at the intersection of Main and Marshall streets will be removed Tuesday to make way for new signal lights, according to C. R. Simpson, resident engineer for District 10 of the state highway department.

The intersection will be marked with four-way stop signs during the change, which will last about one month, Simpson said.

Simpson also said that construction work is under way on Marshall Street in Charleston and the public should use caution when driving in the area.

Tax hearing set for Thursday

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The State Tax Structure Study Commission will conduct the third in its series of public hearings at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Federal Court Room at 339 Broadway in Cape Girardeau.

Cape Girardeau Mayor Howard C. Tooke will be the lead off witness. Other witnesses will include Lee Stamper of Southeast Missouri State University, Bob Hendricks of the Cape Girardeau Chamber of Commerce and representatives of the Eastern Missouri Community Action group and the Cape Girardeau Ministerial Alliance.

Residents of the area who are interested in testifying before the Commission are requested to limit their remarks to 10 minutes and provide a written copy of their statement.

The evening meeting was called by Commission Chairman Arthur G. Muegler Jr. to permit the widest possible participation by both public officials and members of the general public.

The commission was established by the General Assembly during the last session of the legislature to conduct an in-depth study of Missouri's entire taxing structure. In hearings planned for various communities throughout the state between now and Nov. 5, the Commission is expected to hear testimony on the possible effects of a proposed constitutional amendment exempting food and drugs from the sales tax as well as to review the method of assessing and levying real and personal property taxes, examine existing laws as they relate to the operations of the State Tax Commission and local assessors and consider alternative methods of state taxation. The constitutional amendment to exempt food and drugs from the sales tax will be voted on at the Nov. 2 general election.

Other hearings are planned for Sept. 23 in Springfield, Oct. 7 in Kansas City, Oct. 21 in Hannibal and Nov. 5 in Columbia.

In its charge from the General Assembly, the commission is required to make specific recommendations to the legislature during its 1977 session.

Members of the commission include Sen. Norman L. Merrell (Dem.), 18th District, Monticello; Sen. A. Clifford Jones (Rep.), 7th District, St. Louis; Sen. George E. Murray (Rep.), 26th District, Creve Coeur; and Sen. Hardin C. Cox (Dem.), 12th District, Rock Port. State Representatives serving on the Commission are: George J. Phelps helps open GOP headquarters in Sikeston

Missouri Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps was in Scott County Saturday, to campaign at Benton's annual Neighbor Day festivities and to cut the ribbon at the new Scott County Republican headquarters in Sikeston.

During his visit, Phelps was interviewed by the Daily Standard. When asked his opinion about the Department of Transportation's decision to build a new St. Louis airport in Illinois, Phelps said that he and Gov. Bond would fight the decision in the courts, because they believe that the secretary of transportation has overstepped his bounds in making the decision. Phelps also said that he and Bond believe that vertical take off aircraft will be perfected by 1992 and that so large an airport will not be needed.

Phelps said his and Bond's campaign will be centered on their record of "honesty, openness and trust." He said the reorganization of Missouri government has slowed the growth of hiring new employes tremendously, with hiring up only one per cent during the last two years, compared to over four per cent during the years before the Bond Administration. Phelps also stressed that the area where employment has been increased is in law enforcement.

According to Phelps, state agencies have improved their efficiency under the Bond administration. For example, the motor vehicle registration office has doubled its capacity to handle work, Phelps said.

Phelps cited his own Ombudsman Program, in which he helps private citizens get results from governmental agencies, as a positive aspect of his record. He said that he has handled 17 such cases from Scott County during his three years of service, with five of the cases coming in the past year.

3 escape jail; one surrenders

BLOOMFIELD — Three prisoners at the Stoddard County Jail leaped to freedom Friday night, but for one the escape was short- lived.

The Stoddard County Sheriff's Department said Saturday that James Brown, 31, Gary Tanner, 26, and Tony Malin, 21, escaped from their cell about 1:40 a.m. Friday.

Bolts were removed from a window in their cell, enabling the prisoners to remove the window and to jump the two stories to the ground.

Malin, who is charged with possession of marijuana, later turned himself in to Caruthersville authorities.

Search for the other two, each charged with burglary and stealing, is continuing.

Lawyers pass bar exams

JEFFERSON CITY — Here is the list of successful candidates from the Bootheel who passed the Missouri Bar examinations given July 27 and 28.

Those who took the examination numbered 533 and 466 passed.

SPREADING UNTRUTHS

Writing editorial opinion has many pitfalls, not the least of which is: "How accurate is the information on which to base one's opinion?" And if it turns out that the information used is inaccurate or untrue, then Ye Editor winds up with egg on his face — and sometimes through no fault of his own.

A case in point: A Ralph Nader "study group" has been propagandizing in favor of a Nazi Germany style of government control over business. And part of the argument used is the alleged inefficiency of the free enterprise system. To back that allegation, it is declared that "ineffective competition" is costing consumers 6.2 per cent of the GNP, or roughly $90 billion in overcharges per year.

Who said so? Well, for one, Senator Philip Hart of Michigan. Another was no less than Thomas E. Kauper, Assistant U.S. Attorney for anti-trust, recently retired.

But then Barron's, the highly respected Dow-Jones financial weekly, looked into the matter. When a Barron's reporter checked with Mr. Kauper, it was found that Kauper had based his statement on a book written by Dr. Frederick M. Scherer, who was once the Chief Economist of the U.S. Federal Trade Commission (FTC). But when questioned by the reporter, Scherer admitted that he "threw scholarly caution to the winds" in arriving at his 6.2 per cent number. To put it more bluntly, there was absolutely no basis in fact for the declaration. The phony figure was thoroughly exposed in the October, 1974 issue of Barron's.

Of course the Nader "study group" should know better, and probably does. Unfortunately, unsuspecting victims, now knowing the unreliability of the group, can easily find themselves way out on the proverbial limb, should they pick up the misinformation and use it.

If there is a service which a consumer interest group, such as Ralph Nader's, can provide the public, it is accurate information and carefully drawn conclusions.

RID US OF THE NIXON SHADOWS

Coming up in November is a national election that will give Americans the opportunity to clear the national slate and return our nation into the hands of leaders and followers who want to bring back our government to the people, where it should have been these last eight years through the Nixon and Ford administrations--but was not.

It is a chance for the voters of America to elect Governor Carter and Senator Mondale, put fresh ideas and fresh faces in Washington instead of the tired old ones we have been seeing for so long; and inspire in our people a renewed confidence in our government--so long and so sorely needed in our great nation.

It is an opportunity to roll back history 200 years in this Bicentennial period and make a fresh start, based on the ideas and hopes of those who founded our republic.

It is a chance to rid Washington of many of the people who were a part of the Nixon years and the disgraces of that period. There are too great a number of them left in policy and enforcing positions at Washington even under President Ford.

It is an opportunity to rid ourselves of the shadows cast by the Nixon years, Nixon appointees and Nixon period employees.

WILL CARTER BEAT HIMSELF?

Though Jimmy Carter now holds solid leads over both Ford and Reagan in the opinion polls, things could change very rapidly after Labor Day when both the public and his Republican opponent begin to focus sharply upon him.

One obvious feature of Carter's electoral pattern in the primaries might be called the Disappearing Lead. Particularly in the later contests, and beginning with Michigan, Carter often lost as much as twenty points in the last days before the voting, and did so to unlikely candidates such as Mo Udall, Frank Church, Jerry Brown, and the ghost of Hubert Humphrey. Another point that shows in the recent polling figures is that 52 per cent of those now supporting Carter regard themselves as "conservative" politically. Here lies his peril. These voters support Carter because of Phase I of his campaign; when they begin to catch up to what he is doing in Phase II, many could easily defect.

In Phase I, Carter emerged as a classic "wing" candidate. His strategy was the opposite of the one pursued by McGovern in 1972. McGovern emerged on the left. Carter, correctly judging national trends, ran in the primaries as a moderate-to-conservative. The Democratic Left consisted of Udall, Bayh, and Harris. Throughout Phase I, Carter impressed himself upon the national consciousness as the opponent of such certified liberals. Indeed, the liberal wing of the party reconciled itself to his candidacy tardily since they had no other way to go.

Now, in Phase II, Carter has been moving sharply leftward. This phase actually began just before the Michigan primary when Carter began to court the support of confirmed Left establishmentarians like Leonard Woodcock of the AFL-CIO, with Phase II in high gear, Carter now embraces the social welfare bureaucracy (nationalized welfare), guaranteed annual income, national health insurance, the NEA education conglomerate ($20 billion in federal funds for education), the academic Left, big labor (anti-right to work, pro-Humphrey-Hawkins), Vietniks (pardon for draft-dodgers), the professional consumerists, the feminists (ERA), and the now aging counterculture (gay rights, marijuana).

An extraordinary package. Carter must have calculated that he could not win without the full support of these liberal and Left interest groups, so then he even moved farther Left when he selected Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota to be his running mate. But clearly his Phase II planning contains enormous risks. The proposals he has embraced go counter to the preferences of a majority of the electorate as measured by every available index. Carter apparently is willing to gamble that he can retain the bulk of his Phase I moderate-to-conservative suppport by appealing to Sunbelt regional pride and by continuing to play his pious and patriotic tunes, while at the same time giving the liberal and Left interest groups everything they desire in tangible matters.

So far, at least, Carter has been succeeding. The polls show him ahead of Ford or Reagan. But the Republicans have of course been concentrating upon one another, giving Carter a free ride. The electorate will get more facts about Mr. Carter during the Republican National Convention in August in Kansas City. And the voters will begin to make up their minds about Carter sometime around Labor Day.

COUNTER-ATTACK OR PERISH

It is well to remember that two hundred years ago this month saw the birth of the United States of America--and the British colonies in rebellion against the Crown achieved and maintained their independence by uniting against the common enemy.

Benjamin Franklin, who left Britain a sad man to help the struggle for independence, said "We must, indeed, all hang together, or most assuredly, we shall all hang separately."

Following the years of bloodshed and bitterness a genuine bond of detente has grown up between the two countries because, despite certain suspicions from time to time--Roosevelt's, "We will not pull British imperial chestnuts out of the fire for Churchill"--the two nations have a common philsoophy dedicated to genuine democracy and freedom.

Today the free world is confused and divided and therefore weak. The United States, now the most powerful leader of the free world, is nagged by self-doubt at home and crippled by lack of credibility abroad.

After Vietnam and Angola there are few people who are not beset by serious doubt about American willingness to defend Europe, or Panama, or South America, or Korea should the Communists really push.

Intelligence Digest points to the fact that the West is losing the propaganda war, the psychological struggle for the minds of men and women.

It is no coincidence that bloodshed in Lebanon and Uganda causes hardly a stir, whereas far less bloodshed in Israel or South Africa produces instant "spontaneous" protest throughouut the world and in the United Nations.

The international atmosphere and climate of opinion is being poisoned by Marxism, which creates the right conditions for the infection of Communism to take hold and spread in the body politic of uncommitted nations.

The Marxists always think in the long term, whereas in the West we always look to the short term--the next election or the next conference or treaty which we hope will somehow remove the Marxist threat.

Two hundred years ago the British were convinced that the American rebellion could not possibly succeed, just as many people today are convinced that the Marxist world revolution cannot possibly succeed.

The American revolution turned out to be a very good thing for the free world, but then it was based upon very different principles from those of the godless Marxists.

CARTER COMES OUT OF THE CLOSET

With the Democratic nomination in his grasp, Jimmy Carter has started to come out of the closet.

What we hear Carter saying now is quite a switch from the image he tried to project throughout the primary season. He had portrayed himself as anti-Washington, anti-Establishment, and opposed to federal centralization and bureaucracy.

But the change of front has occurred in public statements and commitments that Carter has made along the way, and finally in a comprehensive statement on the issues submitted by Carter to the Democratic platform-drafting subcommittee. In these statements Carter laid his liberal credentials on the line.

The proposals offered by Carter have embraced everything from national economic planning to "decriminalization" of marijuana. He has come out for price controls in various guises, hand-gun control, the Equal Rights Amendment, increased federal spending on welfare-social programs, a pardon for Vietnam draft-dodgers, and comprehensive national health insurance.

Carter's stand on foreign policy issues are of similar nature, containing nothing substantive to displease the left and many specifics in keeping with the liberal ideology. There is nothing in his recent statements that could not be embraced by Hubert Humphrey, Ralph Nader, Teddy Kennedy, or even Bella Abzug. Everything is in there, from increased punitive regulation of business and stepped-up federal spending to plugging for nuclear disarmament.

Virtually the only gleam of Carter's famous "anti-Washington" rhetoric in his platform statements are some knocks at existing regulatory agencies and a plug for his so-called streamlining or "reform" of federal bureaus--the "efficiency" plan which he admitted, back in March, he could not spell out.

Interestingly enough, the Carter-controlled platform subcommittee rejected an amendment that opposed giving up the Panama Canal and another amendment that said "the U.S. must maintain a military capability..second to none."

Most voters will eventually understand that Jimmy Carter and the Carter-dictated Democratic platform offers the same old Washington liberalism of Lyndon Johnson's "great society."

XXX

WE'LL BE WATCHING

Gone are the catchy political slogans, colorful posters and whirlwind trips along the campaign trail. The votes have once again made their voices heard in nationwide elections. In the months and years ahead, the American people will be watching to see if their legislators' voting records on Capitol Hill truly reflect the wishes of the majority. Will our Congressmen and women be willing to tackle the major cause of inflation -- deficit spending by the federal government? Can we rely upon them to vote for anti-inflationary measures even if it means stepping on a few toes in the process?

Americans are tired of double-digit inflation. Any politician who values his job will take note of the people's desires and respond accordingly. Action, not promises, will count.

Art Buchwald

LIFE BEGINS AT SIXTY

(Art Buchwald was so disappointed he wasn't chosen as President Ford's running mate that he has decided to take a few weeks off. He left behind some of his all-time favborite columns.)

I read in the paper the other day that a new pill may be on the market soon which would make it possible for a woman of 60 to have a baby. It seems that a Dr. Ringrose of Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, revealed it might be possible to develop a pill containing a hormone which would keep a woman fertile to a much more advanced age than ever before. How would a woman of 60 feel about this?

When I read about it I rushed to Brooklyn to see my Aunt Sadie and said, "Aunt Sadie, they've just invented a drug which makes it possible for a woman of your age to have a baby."

"Wash out your mouth with soap and water," she replied.

"I'm not kidding, Aunt Sadie. Just think -- a woman of 60 can soon have a baby."

"If your Uncle Leo so much as lays a finger on me I'll hit him in the head with a chair."

"Aunt Sadie," I protested. "That isn't the way to behave. After all, America needs children, and if women of your age can provide them it will help this country tremendously, particularly in the cold war with China."

"It so happens I'm not interested in having any kids at my age, even if they give it to us free under Medicare."

"Why don't you want to have children now?"

"I'm tired."

"That's not enough of a reason," I said.

"It may not be enough of a reason for you, but it's enough of a reason for me."

"But just think of it. The patter of little feet around the house again, the cradle in the bedroom, the happy sounds of a baby crying for its mother."

"Listen, Mr. Population Exploder, for 20 years I had my share of kids. I couldn't wait for your cousin Milton, and your cousin Ethel, and your cousin Leonard to go off and fend for themselves. I'm not ready to start in a new generation, even if they put the stuff in cereal boxes."

"I think you're wrong, Aunt Sadie. This is a new scientific development which could change the face of the globe. Women of your age will write copy about you. You'll be able to attend Parent-Teacher Association meetings. You can use your station wagon to bring kids home from school. Your grown-up children will have something in common with you if you have little children of your own. Retired people won't be considered expendable any more. What better way to fill out your final years than by producing babies?"

"Has your Uncle Leo heard about this?" she wanted to know.

"No, you're the first one I told."

"Well, if you tell him, I'll give you a hit in the head. We were just getting ready to enjoy the golden years after the sacrifice and work we had put in to raise our children, and now some baby-mad scientist in Canada wants to ruin everything."

"Then you're against the idea?" I asked her.

"You've come to the president of the Brooklyn Birth Control Society for Women Over Sixty. Does that answer your question?"

"That's funny. I thought your reaction would be entirely different. Do you think most women of 60 feel this way?" I asked.

"You may have gotten a different reaction from the late Elsa Maxwell, but I think I can speak for the rest of the country."

"Well, thanks for being so frank with me, anyway," I said.

"Don't mention it, and would you mind going out the back door? I think I just heard your Uncle Leo come in, and if it's all the same to you I don't want him to ask you waht you've been doing here today."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Dutch Newsman Held in Bangladesh

with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- We have been negotiating behind the scenes to save Peter Custers, a Dutch newsman, who has been charged with crimes against the Bangladesh government. His family and friends fear for his life.

For nine months, he has been secluded in a jail cell in Dacca. Not until a month ago was he even permitted to see a lawyer. The charges against him still haven't been revealed officially but a government official told us privately that Custers had conspired with the late Col. Abu Taher to overthrow the government.

Custers' real crime, according to associates, is his stubborn refusal to identify his news sources and to testify against them.

We have made a quiet, personal appeal to the Bangladesh government, meanwhile, to free the imprisoned newsman. The response from the authorities in Dacca was encouraging. But Custers' friends insisted that the government merely was trying to keep us quiet and that it would take a public expose to save him. They urged us to publish the Peter Custers story.

This was a decision, we felt, that his family should make. So we put the question to them in Amsterdam. Back came this urgent cable: "Please give widest publicity possible on Peter Custers case. All pressure on Bangladesh government most helpful and appreciated by family."

The government and the family are at odds over what happened to Custers. It's also a story that requires a bit of background.

Catastrophe and war and death have always been commonplace in Bangladesh, a piece of earth abused by man and nature. Most of the country is a flat, almost marshy plain, bedeviled by oppressive humidity, monsoon rains and cyclones.

The rains and the rich alluvial soil have also produced an ideal environment for cholera, smallpox, tuberculosis and malaria. Epidemics have become common occurences. When the rains become violent, the floods bring more death. Disasters have become routine.

There is no question that Peter Custers developed a deep sympathy for the oppressed Bangalis. They are a gentle but emotional people. When they get angry, they are quick to riot and revolt. The government alleges that he also became involved in their passionate politics.

Custers' family say he went to Bangladesh in 1973 as a journalist. The government insists that he identified himself as a "relief worker." We have established that he reported news from Bangladesh. His stories were published in the Dutch weekly De Groene Amsterdammer, the Catholic daily De Volkskrant and the French daily Le Monde.

According to the authorities, Custers plotted with Col. Abu Taher, a socialist leader, to align the socialists and have-nots against the government. The unfortunate colonel participated in the coup that brought Maj. Gen. Ziaur Rahman to power. But the pair had a falling out, which was fatal for Taher. He was tried and executed.

Custers' friends acknowledge that he was in touch with some dissidents but swear that he contacted them to get news not to plot coups. He wrote stories, it's true, that were critical of the regime. But his friends insist that Custers was a reporter, not a conspirator.

Last December, after the third coup in four months, foreign newsmen were barred from entering Bangladesh and those in the country were asked to leave. Custers made immediate preparations to depart.

He had his airplane reservations when he was picked up and thrown in the slammer. For eight months, he was held virtually incommunicado. He wasn't permitted to consult a lawyer or communicate with his family. Then suddenly, the authorities offered him a deal, according to his friends. The government said it would consider releasing him in return for his testimony against the dissidents.

The authorities even invited his parents to Dacca to help convince him to cooperate. But instead, they have urged him, in the cause of a free press, to follow his conscience. The newsman has refused, meanwhile, to testify against his contacts.

Government officials have told us that Custers is being treated well, that he has been visited by Dutch diplomats seven times and that he will get a fair trial. But his parents have cabled from Dacca that their son is still unaware of all the charges against him and that they have been prohibited from seeing him again.

HOUSE REFORM: Democratic Congressional Campaign chairman, James Corman, D.-Calif., has ended the illegal practice of using House Sergeant at Arms employes as Democratic party workers.

A few days ago, we reported that former Chairman Wayne Hays, D.-Ohio, had placed the committee's executive director Paul Pendergast on the House payroll at $17,235 a year although Pendergast didn't even have a desk in the Sergeant at Arms' office.

Under the arrangement, Sergeant at Arms Ken Harding illegally, and perhaps criminally, certified each month that Pendergast was performing the functions for which he was paid. It turns out that Harding once worked under the same arrangement himself.

Following our revelations, Corman agreed that Pendergast would get 75 per cent of his pay from the Democratic Congressional campaign group, and would have to put in 25 per cent of his time in return for his Sergeant at Arms salary.

The Republican counterparts to the Democratic group solved the problem more neatly. When the present chairman, Rep. Guy Vander Jagt, R.-Mich., took over in 1975, he divorced his staff from the House payroll entirely.

Welfare Follies:
An old grand jury and the $7 billion ripoff

NEW YORK -- Cynics here, as they pore over the newest Medicaid exposures, sigh and predict that little will spring from the revival of the "Welfare Follies" except some political dueling. It's all so awesomely enormous. At least $7 billion is annually ripped off, or wasted or criminally stolen by vendors, physicians and relief "clients" from a total- national- support-for- the- poor budget of $35 billion a year.

Sen. Moss's Committee on Aging has just about heated up the backburners in this town -- where some $800 million are stolen or wasted by welfare and Medicaid conspirators each year.

"Where were the officials who were supposed to be managing the (welfare-Medicaid) program?" the presidential candidate asked.

"I don't know," he answered himself. "Sitting in the White House, perhaps, timid, fearful, afraid to lead, afraid to manage. That's something they're going to have to answer for."

That's right. For the answer to his first questions Mr. Carter need only have walked a few streets to the office of Jule Sugarman, chief administrative officer, city of Atlanta. Jule was New York City's human resources administrator under ex-Mayor John Lindsay, whom many believe attempted to weave the poverty programs and appeasement of a massive welfare "clientele" into a presidential launching pad. Administrator Sugarman was "Big John's" account executive in charge of the welfare-Medicaid money machine.

Gov. Carter is absolutely right. There was timidity. (some cupidity, too.) There were fear and lack of leadership and management.

To substantiate my charges I offer a grand jury report of Nov. 4, 1969. And a Jan. 5, 1972 report by a stunned state Supreme Court Justice, Jacob Grumet, who doesn't stun easily.

This report and this statement disclose that practically a billion dollars was wasted or stolen in Medicaid money in two years. Said the judge: "Almost a billion dollars went down the drain" in the city's administering of Medicaid. Speaking for the grand jury, the late famed District Attorney, Frank Hogan, charged fraudulent, wasteful and "completely disorganized, if not chaotic." administration of the city's welfare and Medicaid systems. Only one of every 200 applicants was checked.

This was a 31- page declaration of horrors -- just as is Sen. Moss's 300- page revelation. Nursing homes were described as billing the city for care of dead patients. Dentists extracted teeth unnecessarily. Pharmacists short-changed impoverished patients. And city employes were "corruptly influenced" to help factoring companies.

Records were kept in shoeboxes. Few seemd to care. Big money just poured out. And Jule Sugarman immediately rejected the report and charges.

And the welfare rolls, with their built- in Medicaid, ballooned. Money was wasted and stolen by the scores of millions. Surgarman fought ideological rear guard action. Don't take my word. Call George Berlinger, who served during those years as New York state welfare inspector general, the first such officer.

Of course, everyone here knew, and knows, of the 350 ghastly, squalid, vermin- infested, tragically exploitative "Medicaid mills" which have made some physicians and vendors rich. Of course, undercover agents were sent in by investigators to do as Sen. Moss did when he donned "workmen's clothes" and submitted to ping-ponging in the Medicaid centers.

Of course, the grand jury report, the judge's charges and the exposes hit the front pages and the tubes. I printed and broadcast the exposures. Few officials cared. And what of Jule Sugarman?

He went south to manage Atlanta, Ga. Thus some five to seven years -- and some five or six stolen billions later -- two New York City chiropractors testified the other day that the Medicaid program here is organized so badly it invites cheating.

"Everybody is cheating, and everybody is bragging about it, too," one of the doctors said.

Actually , this is the norm across much of the nation. There are many decent doctors working their hearts out. But the crooks outnumber them. Why no remedy?

Because the $35 billion federal, state and municipal welfare, social service and Medicaid program (cash payouts) is administered by the states and cities. Because, in these cities, few want "to rock the boat." Because the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare is run by ideologists who just want to pay out the money and shudder at the thought of investigating the welfare - Medicaid system. Because congressional committees scream at those who seek probes.

RID US OF THE NIXON SHADOWS

Coming up in November is a national election that will give Americans the opportunity to clear the national slate and return our nation into the hands of leaders and followers who want to bring back our government to the people, where it should have been these last eight years through the Nixon and Ford administrations--but was not.

It is a chance for the voters of America to elect Governor Carter and Senator Mondale, put fresh ideas and fresh faces in Washington instead of the tired old ones we have been seeing for so long; and inspire in our people a renewed confidence in our government--so long and so sorely needed in our great nation.

It is an opportunity to roll back history 200 years in this Bicentennial period and make a fresh start, based on the ideas and hopes of those who founded our republic.

It is a chance to rid Washington of many of the people who were a part of the Nixon years and the disgraces of that period. There are too great a number of them left in policy and enforcing positions at Washington even under President Ford.

It is an opportunity to rid ourselves of the shadows cast by the Nixon years, Nixon appointees and Nixon period employees.

WILL CARTER BEAT HIMSELF?

Though Jimmy Carter now holds solid leads over both Ford and Reagan in the opinion polls, things could change very rapidly after Labor Day when both the public and his Republican opponent begin to focus sharply upon him.

One obvious feature of Carter's electoral pattern in the primaries might be called the Disappearing Lead. Particularly in the later contests, and beginning with Michigan, Carter often lost as much as twenty points in the last days before the voting, and did so to unlikely candidates such as Mo Udall, Frank Church, Jerry Brown, and the ghost of Hubert Humphrey. Another point that shows in the recent polling figures is that 52 per cent of those now supporting Carter regard themselves as "conservative" politically. Here lies his peril. These voters support Carter because of Phase I of his campaign; when they begin to catch up to what he is doing in Phase II, many could easily defect.

In Phase I, Carter emerged as a classic "wing" candidate. His strategy was the opposite of the one pursued by McGovern in 1972. McGovern emerged on the left. Carter, correctly judging national trends, ran in the primaries as a moderate-to-conservative. The Democratic Left consisted of Udall, Bayh, and Harris. Throughout Phase I, Carter impressed himself upon the national consciousness as the opponent of such certified liberals. Indeed, the liberal wing of the party reconciled itself to his candidacy tardily since they had no other way to go.

Now, in Phase II, Carter has been moving sharply leftward. This phase actually began just before the Michigan primary when Carter began to court the support of confirmed Left establishmentarians like Leonard Woodcock of the AFL-CIO, with Phase II in high gear, Carter now embraces the social welfare bureaucracy (nationalized welfare), guaranteed annual income, national health insurance, the NEA education conglomerate ($20 billion in federal funds for education), the academic Left, big labor (anti-right to work, pro-Humphrey-Hawkins), Vietniks (pardon for draft-dodgers), the professional consumerists, the feminists (ERA), and the now aging counterculture (gay rights, marijuana).

An extraordinary package. Carter must have calculated that he could not win without the full support of these liberal and Left interest groups, so then he even moved farther Left when he selected Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota to be his running mate. But clearly his Phase II planning contains enormous risks. The proposals he has embraced go counter to the preferences of a majority of the electorate as measured by every available index. Carter apparently is willing to gamble that he can retain the bulk of his Phase I moderate-to-conservative suppport by appealing to Sunbelt regional pride and by continuing to play his pious and patriotic tunes, while at the same time giving the liberal and Left interest groups everything they desire in tangible matters.

So far, at least, Carter has been succeeding. The polls show him ahead of Ford or Reagan. But the Republicans have of course been concentrating upon one another, giving Carter a free ride. The electorate will get more facts about Mr. Carter during the Republican National Convention in August in Kansas City. And the voters will begin to make up their minds about Carter sometime around Labor Day.

COUNTER-ATTACK OR PERISH

It is well to remember that two hundred years ago this month saw the birth of the United States of America--and the British colonies in rebellion against the Crown achieved and maintained their independence by uniting against the common enemy.

Benjamin Franklin, who left Britain a sad man to help the struggle for independence, said "We must, indeed, all hang together, or most assuredly, we shall all hang separately."

Following the years of bloodshed and bitterness a genuine bond of detente has grown up between the two countries because, despite certain suspicions from time to time--Roosevelt's, "We will not pull British imperial chestnuts out of the fire for Churchill"--the two nations have a common philsoophy dedicated to genuine democracy and freedom.

Today the free world is confused and divided and therefore weak. The United States, now the most powerful leader of the free world, is nagged by self-doubt at home and crippled by lack of credibility abroad.

After Vietnam and Angola there are few people who are not beset by serious doubt about American willingness to defend Europe, or Panama, or South America, or Korea should the Communists really push.

Intelligence Digest points to the fact that the West is losing the propaganda war, the psychological struggle for the minds of men and women.

It is no coincidence that bloodshed in Lebanon and Uganda causes hardly a stir, whereas far less bloodshed in Israel or South Africa produces instant "spontaneous" protest throughouut the world and in the United Nations.

The international atmosphere and climate of opinion is being poisoned by Marxism, which creates the right conditions for the infection of Communism to take hold and spread in the body politic of uncommitted nations.

The Marxists always think in the long term, whereas in the West we always look to the short term--the next election or the next conference or treaty which we hope will somehow remove the Marxist threat.

Two hundred years ago the British were convinced that the American rebellion could not possibly succeed, just as many people today are convinced that the Marxist world revolution cannot possibly succeed.

The American revolution turned out to be a very good thing for the free world, but then it was based upon very different principles from those of the godless Marxists.

CARTER COMES OUT OF THE CLOSET

With the Democratic nomination in his grasp, Jimmy Carter has started to come out of the closet.

What we hear Carter saying now is quite a switch from the image he tried to project throughout the primary season. He had portrayed himself as anti-Washington, anti-Establishment, and opposed to federal centralization and bureaucracy.

But the change of front has occurred in public statements and commitments that Carter has made along the way, and finally in a comprehensive statement on the issues submitted by Carter to the Democratic platform-drafting subcommittee. In these statements Carter laid his liberal credentials on the line.

The proposals offered by Carter have embraced everything from national economic planning to "decriminalization" of marijuana. He has come out for price controls in various guises, hand-gun control, the Equal Rights Amendment, increased federal spending on welfare-social programs, a pardon for Vietnam draft-dodgers, and comprehensive national health insurance.

Carter's stand on foreign policy issues are of similar nature, containing nothing substantive to displease the left and many specifics in keeping with the liberal ideology. There is nothing in his recent statements that could not be embraced by Hubert Humphrey, Ralph Nader, Teddy Kennedy, or even Bella Abzug. Everything is in there, from increased punitive regulation of business and stepped-up federal spending to plugging for nuclear disarmament.

Virtually the only gleam of Carter's famous "anti-Washington" rhetoric in his platform statements are some knocks at existing regulatory agencies and a plug for his so-called streamlining or "reform" of federal bureaus–the "efficiency" plan which he admitted, back in March, he could not spell out.

Interestingly enough, the Carter-controlled platform subcommittee rejected an amendment that opposed giving up the Panama Canal and another amendment that said "the U.S. must maintain a military capability..second to none."

Most voters will eventually understand that Jimmy Carter and the Carter-dictated Democratic platform offers the same old Washington liberalism of Lyndon Johnson's "great society."

XXX

WE'LL BE WATCHING

Gone are the catchy political slogans, colorful posters and whirlwind trips along the campaign trail. The votes have once again made their voices heard in nationwide elections. In the months and years ahead, the American people will be watching to see if their legislators' voting records on Capitol Hill truly reflect the wishes of the majority. Will our Congressmen and women be willing to tackle the major cause of inflation -- deficit spending by the federal government? Can we rely upon them to vote for anti-inflationary measures even if it means stepping on a few toes in the process?

Americans are tired of double-digit inflation. Any politician who values his job will take note of the people's desires and respond accordingly. Action, not promises, will count.

Art Buchwald

LIFE BEGINS AT SIXTY

(Art Buchwald was so disappointed he wasn't chosen as President Ford's running mate that he has decided to take a few weeks off. He left behind some of his all-time favborite columns.)

I read in the paper the other day that a new pill may be on the market soon which would make it possible for a woman of 60 to have a baby. It seems that a Dr. Ringrose of Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, revealed it might be possible to develop a pill containing a hormone which would keep a woman fertile to a much more advanced age than ever before. How would a woman of 60 feel about this?

When I read about it I rushed to Brooklyn to see my Aunt Sadie and said, "Aunt Sadie, they've just invented a drug which makes it possible for a woman of your age to have a baby."

"Wash out your mouth with soap and water," she replied.

"I'm not kidding, Aunt Sadie. Just think -- a woman of 60 can soon have a baby."

"If your Uncle Leo so much as lays a finger on me I'll hit him in the head with a chair."

"Aunt Sadie," I protested. "That isn't the way to behave. After all, America needs children, and if women of your age can provide them it will help this country tremendously, particularly in the cold war with China."

"It so happens I'm not interested in having any kids at my age, even if they give it to us free under Medicare."

"Why don't you want to have children now?"

"I'm tired."

"That's not enough of a reason," I said.

"It may not be enough of a reason for you, but it's enough of a reason for me."

"But just think of it. The patter of little feet around the house again, the cradle in the bedroom, the happy sounds of a baby crying for its mother."

"Listen, Mr. Population Exploder, for 20 years I had my share of kids. I couldn't wait for your cousin Milton, and your cousin Ethel, and your cousin Leonard to go off and fend for themselves. I'm not ready to start in a new generation, even if they put the stuff in cereal boxes."

"I think you're wrong, Aunt Sadie. This is a new scientific development which could change the face of the globe. Women of your age will write copy about you. You'll be able to attend Parent-Teacher Association meetings. You can use your station wagon to bring kids home from school. Your grown-up children will have something in common with you if you have little children of your own. Retired people won't be considered expendable any more. What better way to fill out your final years than by producing babies?"

"Has your Uncle Leo heard about this?" she wanted to know.

"No, you're the first one I told."

"Well, if you tell him, I'll give you a hit in the head. We were just getting ready to enjoy the golden years after the sacrifice and work we had put in to raise our children, and now some baby-mad scientist in Canada wants to ruin everything."

"Then you're against the idea?" I asked her.

"You've come to the president of the Brooklyn Birth Control Society for Women Over Sixty. Does that answer your question?"

"That's funny. I thought your reaction would be entirely different. Do you think most women of 60 feel this way?" I asked.

"You may have gotten a different reaction from the late Elsa Maxwell, but I think I can speak for the rest of the country."

"Well, thanks for being so frank with me, anyway," I said.

"Don't mention it, and would you mind going out the back door? I think I just heard your Uncle Leo come in, and if it's all the same to you I don't want him to ask you waht you've been doing here today."

Welfare Follies:
An old grand jury and the $7 billion ripoff

NEW YORK -- Cynics here, as they pore over the newest Medicaid exposures, sigh and predict that little will spring from the revival of the "Welfare Follies" except some political dueling. It's all so awesomely enormous. At least $7 billion is annually ripped off,or wasted or criminally stolen by vendors, physicians and relief "clients" from a total- national- support-for- the- poor budget of $35 billion a year.

Sen. Moss's Committee on Aging has just about heated up the backburners in this town -- where some $800 million are stolen or wasted by welfare and Medicaid conspirators each year.

"Where were the officials who were supposed to be managing the (welfare-Medicaid) program?" the presidential candidate asked.

"I don't know," he answered himself. "Sitting in the White House, perhaps, timid, fearful, afraid to lead, afraid to manage. That's something they're going to have to answer for."

That's right. For the answer to his first questions Mr. Carter need only have walked a few streets to the office of Jule Sugarman, chief administrative officer, city of Atlanta. Jule was New York City's human resources administrator under ex-Mayor John Lindsay, whom many believe attempted to weave the poverty programs and appeasement of a massive welfare "clientele" into a presidential launching pad. Administrator Sugarman was "Big John's" account executive in charge of the welfare-Medicaid money machine.

Gov. Carter is absolutely right. There was timidity. (some cupidity, too.) There were fear and lack of leadership and management.

To substantiate my charges I offer a grand jury report of Nov. 4, 1969. And a Jan. 5, 1972 report by a stunned state Supreme Court Justice, Jacob Grumet, who doesn't stun easily.

This report and this statement disclose that practically a billion dollars was wasted or stolen in Medicaid money in two years. Said the judge: "Almost a billion dollars went down the drain" in the city's administering of Medicaid. Speaking for the grand jury, the late famed District Attorney, Frank Hogan, charged fraudulent, wasteful and "completely disorganized, if not chaotic." administration of the city's welfare and Medicaid systems. Only one of every 200 applicants was checked.

This was a 31- page declaration of horrors -- just as is Sen. Moss's 300- page revelation. Nursing homes were described as billing the city for care of dead patients. Dentists extracted teeth unnecessarily. Pharmacists short-changed impoverished patients. And city employes were "corruptly influenced" to help factoring companies.

Records were kept in shoeboxes. Few seemd to care. Big money just poured out. And Jule Sugarman immediately rejected the report and charges.

And the welfare rolls, with their built- in Medicaid, ballooned. Money was wasted and stolen by the scores of millions. Surgarman fought ideological rear guard action. Don't take my word. Call George Berlinger, who served during those years as New York state welfare inspector general, the first such officer.

Of course, everyone here knew, and knows, of the 350 ghastly, squalid, vermin- infested, tragically exploitative "Medicaid mills" which have made some physicians and vendors rich. Of course, undercover agents were sent in by investigators to do as Sen. Moss did when he donned "workmen's clothes" and submitted to ping-ponging in the Medicaid centers.

Of course, the grand jury report, the judge's charges and the exposes hit the front pages and the tubes. I printed and broadcast the exposures. Few officials cared. And what of Jule Sugarman?

He went south to manage Atlanta, Ga. Thus some five to seven years -- and some five or six stolen billions later -- two New York City chiropractors testified the other day that the Medicaid program here is organized so badly it invites cheating.

"Everybody is cheating, and everybody is bragging about it, too," one of the doctors said.

Actually , this is the norm across much of the nation. There are many decent doctors working their hearts out. But the crooks outnumber them. Why no remedy?

Because the $35 billion federal, state and municipal welfare, social service and Medicaid program (cash payouts) is administered by the states and cities. Because, in these cities, few want "to rock the boat." Because the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare is run by ideologists who just want to pay out the money and shudder at the thought of investigating the welfare - Medicaid system. Because congressional committees scream at those who seek probes.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- We have been negotiating behind the scenes to save Peter Custers, a Dutch newsman, who has been charged with crimes against the Bangladesh government. His family and friends fear for his life.

For nine months, he has been secluded in a jail cell in Dacca. Not until a month ago was he even permitted to see a lawyer. The charges against him still haven't been revealed officially but a government official told us privately that Custers had conspired with the late Col. Abu Taher to overthrow the government.

Custers' real crime, according to associates, is his stubborn refusal to identify his news sources and to testify against them.

We have made a quiet, personal appeal to the Bangladesh government, meanwhile, to free the imprisoned newsman. The response from the authorities in Dacca was encouraging. But Custers' friends insisted that the government merely was trying to keep us quiet and that it would take a public expose to save him. They urged us to publish the Peter Custers story.

This was a decision, we felt, that his family should make. So we put the question to them in Amsterdam. Back came this urgent cable: "Please give widest publicity possible on Peter Custers case. All pressure on Bangladesh government most helpful and appreciated by family."

The government and the family are at odds over what happened to Custers. It's also a story that requires a bit of background.

Catastrophe and war and death have always been commonplace in Bangladesh, a piece of earth abused by man and nature. Most of the country is a flat, almost marshy plain, bedeviled by oppressive humidity, monsoon rains and cyclones.

The rains and the rich alluvial soil have also produced an ideal environment for cholera, smallpox, tuberculosis and malaria. Epidemics have become common occurences. When the rains become violent, the floods bring more death. Disasters have become routine.

There is no question that Peter Custers developed a deep sympathy for the oppressed Bangalis. They are a gentle but emotional people. When they get angry, they are quick to riot and revolt. The government alleges that he also became involved in their passionate politics.

Custers' family say he went to Bangladesh in 1973 as a journalist. The government insists that he identified himself as a "relief worker." We have established that he reported news from Bangladesh. His stories were published in the Dutch weekly De Groene Amsterdammer, the Catholic daily De Volkskrant and the French daily Le Monde.

According to the authorities, Custers plotted with Col. Abu Taher, a socialist leader, to align the socialists and have-nots against the government. The unfortunate colonel participated in the coup that brought Maj. Gen. Ziaur Rahman to power. But the pair had a falling out, which was fatal for Taher. He was tried and executed.

Custers' friends acknowledge that he was in touch with some dissidents but swear that he contacted them to get news not to plot coups. He wrote stories, it's true, that were critical of the regime. But his friends insist that Custers was a reporter, not a conspirator.

Last December, after the third coup in four months, foreign newsmen were barred from entering Bangladesh and those in the country were asked to leave. Custers made immediate preparations to depart.

He had his airplane reservations when he was picked up and thrown in the slammer. For eight months, he was held virtually incommunicado. He wasn't permitted to consult a lawyer or communicate with his family. Then suddenly, the authorities offered him a deal, according to his friends. The government said it would consider releasing him in return for his testimony against the dissidents.

The authorities even invited his parents to Dacca to help convince him to cooperate. But instead, they have urged him, in the cause of a free press, to follow his conscience. The newsman has refused, meanwhile, to testify against his contacts.

Government officials have told us that Custers is being treated well, that he has been visited by Dutch diplomats seven times and that he will get a fair trial. But his parents have cabled from Dacca that their son is still unaware of all the charges against him and that they have been prohibited from seeing him again.

HOUSE REFORM: Democratic Congressional Campaign chairman, James Corman, D-Calif., has ended the illegal practice of using House Sergeant at Arms employes as Democratic party workers.

A few days ago, we reported that former Chairman Wayne Hays, D.-Ohio, had placed the committee's executive director Paul Pendergast on the House payroll at $17,235 a year although Pendergast didn't even have a desk in the Sergeant at Arms' office.

Under the arrangement, Sergeant at Arms Ken Harding illegally, and perhaps criminally, certified each month that Pendergast was performing the functions for which he was paid. It turns out that Harding once worked under the same arrangement himself.

Following our revelations, Corman agreed that Pendergast would get 75 per cent of his pay from the Democratic Congressional campaign group, and would have to put in 25 per cent of his time in return for his Sergeant at Arms salary.

The Republican counterparts to the Democratic group solved the problem more neatly. When the present chairman, Rep. Guy Vander Jagt, R.-Mich., took over in 1975, he divorced his staff from the House payroll entirely.

The first British settlement in Australia, in 1788, was a penal colony at Port Jackson, now Sydney.

MAGISTRATE COURT

CHARLESTON— Clinton Lee Williams of East Prairie pleaded guilty Thursday to common assault (reduced from flourishing a dangerous and deadly weapon) during Magistrate Court proceedings and received a six-month jail sentence which was suspended by Judge W. Clifton Banta Sr. except for a 20-day period Williams is to begin serving Sept. 26.

Williams, who was accused of firing a shotgun through a door at the home of Tommy Jones on July 22, was placed on supervised probation for one year on condition he obey the law, pay court costs and make restitution for damages of $150 to Cletus Brothers, owner of the house in which Jones lives.

William C. Parker of Charleston was sentenced to 60 days in jail on a charge of driving with blood alcohol content in excess of .10 per cent and 30 days for driving while operator's license is revoked, with the sentences to run consecutively.

A six-month jail sentence against P. J. Chaptman of Charleston, on a charge of driving while intoxicated on a farm tractor was suspended upon payment of $36.20 in court costs, and he was placed on supervised probation for one year.

Kenneth Wayne Woods of East Prairie, driving with blood alcohol content in excess of .10 per cent and driving while license is suspended, fined $179 and given 90-day suspended jail sentence.

An attorney was appointed to defend Tony Pickett of Charleston against a charge of burglary, involving breaking and entering, and stealing. The charge, filed in connection with an April 20 break-in at the Charles L. Castleberry home and the theft of a color television set, was continued to Sept. 16 and Pickett remained free on $2,500 bond. Pickett was also fined $34 Thursday for malicious destruction on a charge filed in connection with his throwing a bottle at Deputy Sheriff Norris Grissom's automobile.

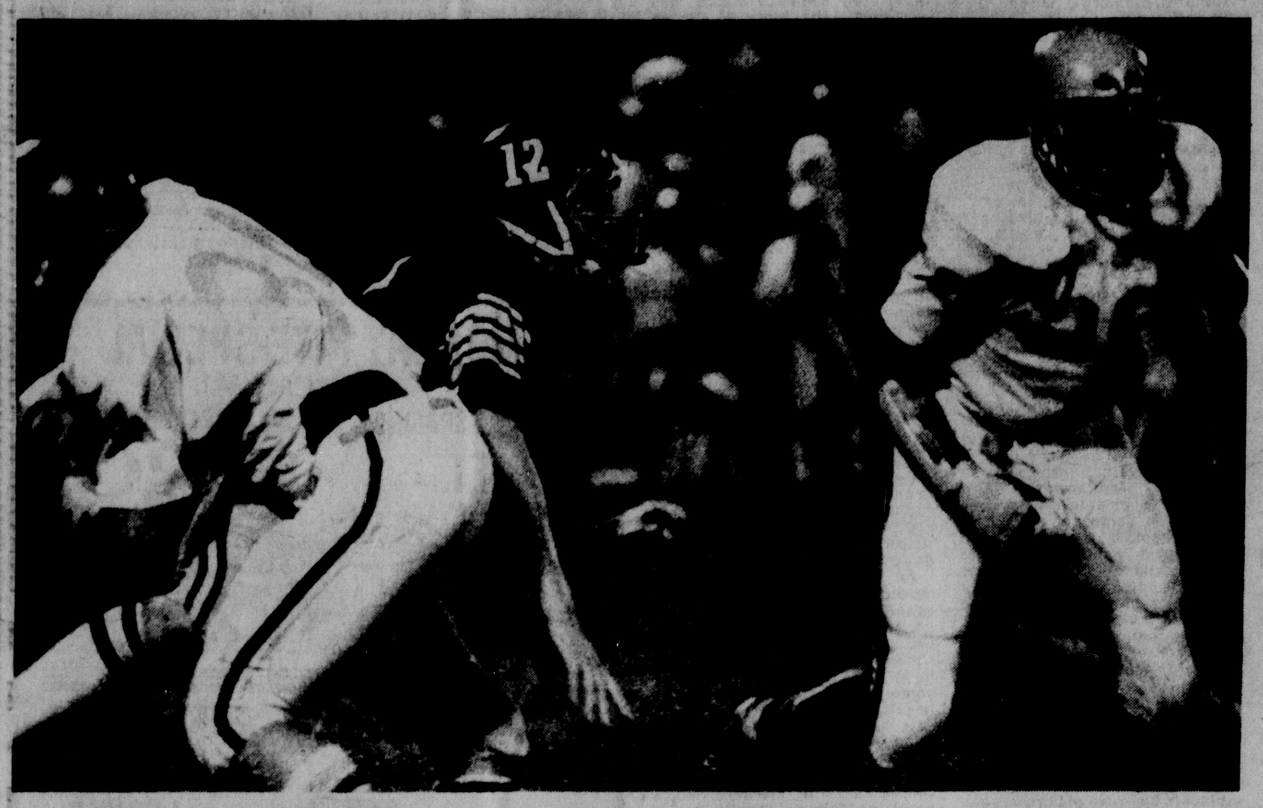
Bulldog power leads to 23-0 win in opener



Farmington quarterback Chris Wigger seemed to draw a crowd every time he went back to pass. Here he had just released an aerial when he was greeted by defensive end Mark Heeb (34). You can bet he knew that 215-pound Alfred White (52) was close, too.

By DALE FORBIS
Standard Sportswriter

The Sikeston Bulldogs made the long trip to Farmington a profitable one when they opened the 1976 season with a 23-0 blanking of the FHS Knights. It was just the second time in nine years that the Dogs were able to open a campaign on a winning note.

The Sikeston defensive line enjoyed a 17 pound per man weight advantage and used it to continually put pressure on the relatively inexperienced Farmington offense. Only once did the Knights threaten the SHS goal line and, on that second quarter occasion, a penalty and two incomplete passes left the drive stalled at the seven.

"Penalties could be a factor," said Farmington coach Jack Richardson before the game, and the Knights' leader proved to be correct. A total of 18 infractions were marked off against the two sides, with the Bulldogs' eight setbacks costing them an additional hundred-plus yards in gains.

"We were doing some pushing with our hands and some clipping, too," explained Bulldog coach Terry Smith about the 70 yards his squad was penalized.

The penalties, poor timing and several fumbles stymied the Bulldog offense in the first half. Only a first-quarter 53-yard bomb from David Shell to Garry Griffin kept the scoreboard from staying blank.

"Some of the players came in to the dressing room mad," explained the Sikeston coach about an impressive turnaround in the second half. "Fellows like (James) Wilder decided that they had come to play ball."

Wilder and his runningmate Paul "Runnin' Machine" Bean really turned it on in the second half. The first time the 200-pound Wilder touched the ball after intermission he galloped 42 yards down the left sideline. Another ten-yard gain, then Bean slashed over right tackle for a one-yard scoring plunge. Placekicker Paul Gilbow's perfect boot gave the Bulldogs a 15-0 lead.

The second score seemed to take some wind out of the Farmington squad. They had held the Dogs close throughout the contest on hustle and determination, but the tide began to turn and SHS enjoyed a complete domination of the final half action.

The Knights were forced to the air by the increasing score and the Sikeston defensive line took advantage. Defensive end Wayne Sumlin used his quickness and strength to rack up three sacks on quarterback Chris Wigger and the constant pressure by Sumlin, tackles Wayne Turpin and Mark Silverthorn, noseguard Alfred White and ends Mark Heeb and Paul Gilbow made the Knight signalcaller rush his throws and miss all seven passes tried in the second half.

On two occasions Sikeston defensive backs picked off errant throws. Gary Silverthorn had a penalty-shortened 24 yard return on his second quarter theft. David Potashnick returned a fourth quarter heist five yards.

Wigger wasn't the only one feeling the Bulldogs' defensive pressure. Holes which enabled the hosts to roll up 130-plus yards in the first half disapperared and Farmington gained exactly zero (0) yards in the third period. Earlier the Knights had had some success running at the Sikeston defensive ends.

"Our backs weren't rotating," said Smith of the defensive adjustment. When the defensive backs began to shut off the outside running, the Sikeston coaches turned the 185-pound Sumlin loose and it resulted in those three sackings.

"We knew they'd have to throw when the score got to 15-0, so we turned him (Sumlin) loose," Smith said. "Turpin, Silver (Mark Silverthorn) and the rest of the line were doing a good job, too."

The defense wasn't the entire story. With Wilder and Bean biting out good chunks of yardage on simple, up-the-middle lunges, quarterback David Shell wasn't forced to go to the air very much. Other than the touchdown heave, the Sikeston field leader was able to concentrate on ballhandling and keeping the offense moving, since he threw a total of only four passes.

Wilder ran for 136 yards, averaging eight yards per try and Bean accounted for another 94. The unsung member of the SHS backfield, Bean had at least fifty yards erased by penalties while showing power and speed against the tough Farmington defense.

"They're gonna win some ballgames," commented Smith about the youthful Knights.

Obviously, so are the Bulldogs.

Jackson opens with 10-0 win over improved Chaffee team

By STAN HALL

Coach Paul Webber's defending Northern Division champions started their 1976 football season out on a pleasant note Friday night with a hard fought 10-0 victory over the Chaffee Red Devils.

For three quarters the contest was a toss up with both schools driving up and down the length of the field with neither team reaching paydirt. Then midway through the fourth quarter, the key play of the game happened when split end Kelly Green returned a Chaffee punt 25 yards down to the Chaffee 5 yard line. From there, 155 pound junior running back Kevin Rampley ran it over from the two and junior kicker Blaine Adams kicked the extra point. Later, Jackson finished the scoring with a 26 yard field goal by Adams, who according to coach Webber was playing with a broken foot. Of course, it wasn't the one he was kicking with.

Coach Webber said, "Defensively, we bent but we never broke." And looking at his defensive platoon, he stated that Mike Gohn, a linebacker, along with defensive back Jimmy Thompson had outstanding games.

Just to show how close the game really was, Jackson outrushed Chaffee by 27 yards while Chaffee out passed the Indians by 37 yards and Jackson had more punt return yardage, with the big one being the 25 -yarder by Kelly Green. Jackson recovered two Chaffee fumbles while losing none of their own.

In summing up his team's performance, Coach Webber says, "As I told you before, our defense and kicking game would have to carry us for awhile, which in Friday night's game, it certainly did."

The kicking game was not only handled by Adams on placements, but also by Mike Gohn who averaged 35 yards per punt. This played an important part in keeping Chaffee out of good field position.

Coach Webber said that he was impressed with both quarterbacks, Horrell from Chaffee and Birk from Jackson. He also said, "Scott Wachter is a very fine running back." This is Chaffee's fullback who rushed for 60 yards on 14 carries.

Coach Webber was pleased to leave Chaffee with a victory because as he stated, "Chaffee could come on the field with Cape, Bluff, and you guys (referring to Sikeston) and give you all good games."

Bluejays fly high in 29-7 win over Eagles

The Charleston Bluejays used a 355-yard offensive explosion and some tight defensive play to wrap up a 29-7 romp over the East Prairie Eagles.

"It was really tighter than the score shows," said Jay coach Tom Emory. "We only led 13-7 going into the last quarter."

Charleston scored for the first time about four minutes into the game when Clark Quertermous hit Danny Thomas with a 36-yard scoring strike. Mike Laster's kick made it 7-0, and that was the halftime score.

Clint Clark ran the ball in from the 19 yard line with eight minutes left in the third quarter. But, late in the same period, a six-yard run by Danny Johnson and a Terry Wheatley extra point narrowed the gap to 13-7.

"They're going to have a good team," commented Emory. "When they find some help for that back (Johnson), they'll be tough to stop."

The Charleston coach noted that Johnson, the conference's leading rusher a year ago, "must have carried the ball 35 times."

Leading rushers for Charleston were Clint Clark and Charlie McCauley. Clark gained 93 yards and McCauley 94. Both scored fourth quarter touchdowns for the Jays. Lawrence Baugh added a two-point conversion after each for 16 final quarter CHS points.

Baugh was also a standout on defense with 23 tackles, 14 unassisted. Safety Mike Laster intercepted a pass on the last play of the first half and returned it 70 yards to the Eagles' ten as the intermission gun sounded.

Cardenal sparks Cubs to victory over Cards

CHICAGO (AP) — Jose Cardenal had four hits, including a pair of doubles, scored three runs and threw a runner out at the plate Saturday to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 5-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Steve Renko, 7-7, defeated the Cardinals for the third time this season, is 6-0 against them over the past two seasons and holds an 11-6 lifetime edge over St. Louis.

Cardenal started the Cubs rolling to their 11th victory in 15 games against St. Louis with a double in the fourth. Joe Wallis tripled Cardenal home and scored on Don Kessinger's relay error.

Cardenal opened the sixth with a double, took third on a fly to right and scored on Manny Trillo's sacrifice fly.

Renko, who left in the seventh for a pinch batter, was aided by Chicago's defense in the early innings when the Cubs cut down two runners at home.

Lou Brock singled with two outs in the first, stole second and tried to score on a single by Ted Simmons. But he was thrown out by Cardenal.

Jerry Mumphrey walked in the third, stole second and tried to score on a single by Brock, but was thrown out by Trillo. The Cards averted a shutout when they scored in the eighth against reliever Bruce Sutter on a single by Garry Templeton and a triple by Keith Hernandez.

Renko was touched for seven hits in the first five innings before he put the Cards down in order in the sixth. With one out in the seventh, Kessinger and Hector Cruz both singled, but Renko fanned pinch hitter Ron Fairly and got Mumphrey on an infield pop.

Lynn McGlothlin, 11-13, who owns three of the Cardinals' four victories over the Cubs, was the starter and loser.

After Hernandez tripled with one out in the eighth, Willie Crawford drew a walk. But Sutter got out of the jam when right fielder Jerry Morlaes made a fine running catch of Kessinger's sinking liner.

The Cubs wrapped it up with two more runs in the eighth. Cardenal completed a perfect day at bat with a single. Wallis beat out a bunt single and Cardenal scored on a single by Morales. Trillo followed with anothr run-scoring single.

Brock had two hits for a career total of 2,678, placing him 37th on the all-time list, one more than Luis Aparicio. Brock's stolen base in the first was his 14th in a row and 48th of the season. It also was his 857th lifetime theft, 35 short of Ty Cobb's all-time record of 892.

Cardinal offense shines in win over Chiefs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — If anything, Jim Hart and the St. Louis Cardinals could be ready to scale even greater heights in 1976.

At least the possibility exists following a 4-2 Cardinals preseason in the National Football League culminated Friday night by a 31-14 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs.

"Our offense is so explosive it almost scares me," said speedy Mel Gray after tucking in a 74-yard touchdown pass from Hart on the game's second play.

"We're going to have even more guns than we had last year," Terry Metcalf promised. "The confidence is here. I guess that's the key."

St. Louis, which will aim for a third straight title in the National Conference East, tuned up for its defense with a precision offense rolling up 496 yards.

And afterward, so devastating was the attack, Coach Paul Wiggin of Kansas City said he coudl find no positive notes.

"I'd like to get our football team to come out of the locker room and take somebody on in the first quarter with a little bit of hate," Wiggin complained.

"I'm kind of unhappy with our defense. We've got some young people and they're going to make mistakes, but tonight we were nothing at all."

In behalf of the Chiefs, it should be noted that Hart has never before enjoyed quite the preseason success he climaxed at their expense.

By completing 16 of 24 passes, two of them for touchdowns, he wound up with 56.7 per cent accuracy for 685 yards in six games.

Furthermore, the 32-year-old quarterback launched four touchdown passes and suffered no interceptions in 73 attempts.

"I had him when he was a baby," said assistant coach Harry Gilmer, who is in his second term with the Cards. "He has learned a lot of leadership, but he's still Jim Hart — just as nice a fellow as you'll ever see."

Hart, who played three quarters, followed his early bullseye to Gray with a 21-yard heave to Ike Harris that established a 14-0 St. Louis lead in the opening period.

Then, after Mike Livingston whipped two touchdown passes for Kansas City, his aerials set up scores by Steve Neils on a fumble and Jerry Latin on a four-yard run that sealed the triumph.

Zealously guarded by an offensive line considered among the NFL's most aggressive, Hart used eight receivers as targets to register gains totaling 303 yards.

"It's no different than it has been the past two years," he said of his ambitious protection. "In fact, they might be madder than they were last year."

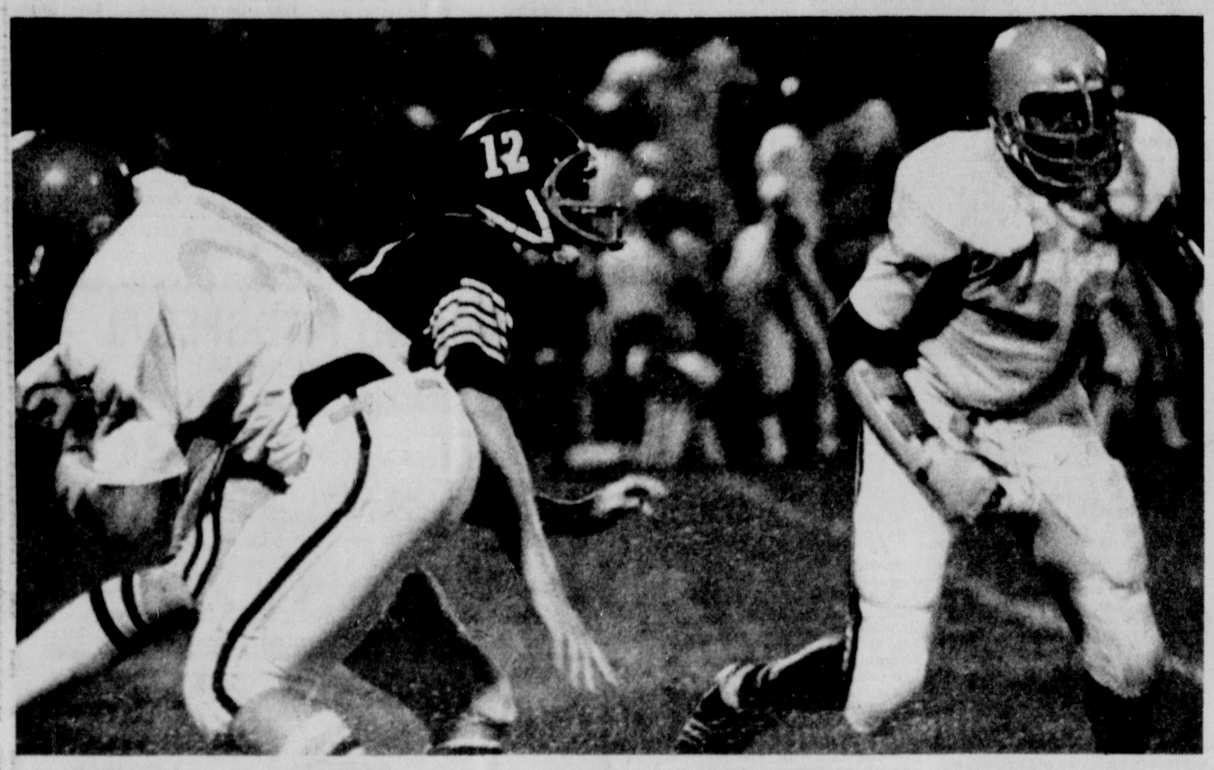
Bulldog power leads to 23-0 win in opener



Farmington quarterback Chris Wigger seemed to draw a crowd every time he went back to pass. Here he had just released an aerial when he was greeted by defensive end Mark Heeb (34). You can bet he knew that 215-pound Alfred White (52) was close, too.

By DALE FORBIS
Standard Sportswriter

The Sikeston Bulldogs made the long trip to Farmington a profitable one when they opened the 1976 season with a 23-0 blanking of the FHS Knights. It was just the second time in nine years that the Dogs were able to open a campaign on a winning note.

The Sikeston defensive line enjoyed a 17 pound per man weight advantage and used it to continually put pressure on the relatively inexperienced Farmington offense. Only once did the Knights threaten the SHS goal line and, on that second quarter occasion, a penalty and two incomplete passes left the drive stalled at the seven.

"Penalties could be a factor," said Farmington coach Jack Richardson before the game, and the Knights' leader proved to be correct. A total of 18 infractions were marked off against the two sides, with the Bulldogs' eight setbacks costing them an additional hundred-plus yards in gains.

"We were doing some pushing with our hands and some clipping, too," explained Bulldog coach Terry Smith about the 70 yards his squad was penalized.

The penalties, poor timing and several fumbles stymied the Bulldog offense in the first half. Only a first-quarter 53-yard bomb from David Shell to Garry Griffin kept the scoreboard from staying blank.

"Some of the players came in to the dressing room mad," explained the Sikeston coach about an impressive turnaround in the second half. "Fellows like (James) Wilder decided that they had come to play ball."

Wilder and his runningmate Paul "Runnin' Machine" Bean really turned it on in the second half. The first time the 200-pound Wilder touched the ball after intermission he galloped 42 yards down the left sideline. Another ten-yard gain, then Bean slashed over right tackle for a one-yard scoring plunge. Placekicker Paul Gilbow's perfect boot gave the Bulldogs a 15-0 lead.

The second score seemed to take some wind out of the Farmington squad. They had held the Dogs close throughout the contest on hustle and determination, but the tide began to turn and SHS enjoyed a complete domination of the final half action.

The Knights were forced to the air by the increasing score and the Sikeston defensive line took advantage. Defensive end Wayne Sumlin used his quickness and strength to rack up three sacks on quarterback Chris Wigger and the constant pressure by Sumlin, tackles Wayne Turpin and Mark Silverthorn, noseguard Alfred White and ends Mark Heeb and Paul Gilbow made the Knight signalcaller rush his throws and miss all seven passes tried in the second half.

On two occasions Sikeston defensive backs picked off errant throws. Gary Silverthorn had a penalty-shortened 24 yard return on his second quarter theft. David Potashnick returned a fourth quarter heist five yards.

Wigger wasn't the only one feeling the Bulldogs' defensive pressure. Holes which enabled the hosts to roll up 130-plus yards in the first half disapperared and Farmington gained exactly zero (0) yards in the third period. Earlier the Knights had had some success running at the Sikeston defensive ends.

"Our backs weren't rotating," said Smith of the defensive adjustment. When the defensive backs began to shut off the outside running, the Sikeston coaches turned the 185-pound Sumlin loose and it resulted in those three sackings.

"We knew they'd have to throw when the score got to 15-0, so we turned him (Sumlin) loose," Smith said. "Turpin, Silver (Mark Silverthorn) and the rest of the line were doing a good job, too."

The defense wasn't the entire story. With Wilder and Bean biting out good chunks of yardage on simple, up-the-middle lunges, quarterback David Shell wasn't forced to go to the air very much. Other than the touchdown heave, the Sikeston field leader was able to concentrate on ballhandling and keeping the offense moving, since he threw a total of only four passes.

Wilder ran for 136 yards, averaging eight yards per try and Bean accounted for another 94. The unsung member of the SHS backfield, Bean had at least fifty yards erased by penalties while showing power and speed against the tough Farmington defense.

"They're gonna win some ballgames," commented Smith about the youthful Knights.

Obviously, so are the Bulldogs.

Cardinal offense shines in win over Chiefs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — If anything, Jim Hart and the St. Louis Cardinals could be ready to scale even greater heights in 1976.

At least the possibility exists following a 4-2 Cardinals preseason in the National Football League culminated Friday night by a 31-14 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs.

"Our offense is so explosive it almost scares me," said speedy Mel Gray after tucking in a 74-yard touchdown pass from Hart on the game's second play.

"We're going to have even more guns than we had last year," Terry Metcalf promised. "The confidence is here. I guess that's the key."

St. Louis, which will aim for a third straight title in the National Conference East, tuned up for its defense with a precision offense rolling up 496 yards.

And afterward, so devastating was the attack, Coach Paul Wiggin of Kansas City said he coudl find no positive notes.

"I'd like to get our football team to come out of the locker room and take somebody on in the first quarter with a little bit of hate," Wiggin complained.

"I'm kind of unhappy with our defense. We've got some young people and they're going to make mistakes, but tonight we were nothing at all."

In behalf of the Chiefs, it should be noted that Hart has never before enjoyed quite the preseason success he climaxed at their expense.

By completing 16 of 24 passes, two of them for touchdowns, he wound up with 56.7 per cent accuracy for 685 yards in six games.

Furthermore, the 32-year-old quarterback launched four touchdown passes and suffered no interceptions in 73 attempts.

"I had him when he was a baby," said assistant coach Harry Gilmer, who is in his second term with the Cards. "He has learned a lot of leadership, but he's still Jim Hart — just as nice a fellow as you'll ever see."

Hart, who played three quarters, followed his early bullseye to Gray with a 21-yard heave to Ike Harris that established a 14-0 St. Louis lead in the opening period.

Then, after Mike Livingston whipped two touchdown passes for Kansas City, his aerials set up scores by Steve Neils on a fumble and Jerry Latin on a four-yard run that sealed the triumph.

Zealously guarded by an offensive line considered among the NFL's most aggressive, Hart used eight receivers as targets to register gains totaling 303 yards.

"It's no different than it has been the past two years," he said of his ambitious protection.

"In fact, they might be madder than they were last year."

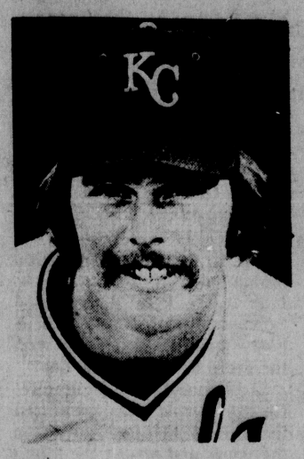
Royals' Fitzmorris does little but win ballgames



KANSAS CITY (AP) — Al Fitzmorris has yet to pitch in an All-Star game.

Baseball experts don't spend much time comparing him with the likes of Catfish Hunter, Nolan Ryan or Jim Palmer. And Madison Avenue pitchmen don't hound him to promote after shave lotion.

Even on his own team, the mustachioed right-hander with the tantalizing sinkerball is regarded as something less than the staff ace.

In fact, about all Fitzmorris has done in his eight years with the Kansas City Royals is win.

"Yeah, I think I'm underrated," he says unhesitantly. "It's because I'm not a flashy pitcher. People don't know who I am in the other league, unless they're really astute baseball fans.

"John Montefusco—people know who he is. But he's not necessarily a good pitcher. Maybe he can pitch, I haven't seen him. But he creates his own publicity."

Fitzmorris brought a 55-37 career record into the 1976 season, topping the Royals with a won-loss ratio just under 60 per cent. And he's pushing that pace again this year, his 15-9 mark is a big reason the Royals have led the American League West since May.

"I'll tell you the guys who've carried us this year," says Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog, whose team has been without the services of Steve Busby since June. "Fitzy, Dennis Leonard and Paul Splittorff."

The big sandy-haired hurler boasts the usual assortment of pitches, but it's his sinker and an unusual determination that has secured his niche with the Royals. It's not unusual for Fitzmorris to pitch much of a game from the stretch position—Herzog refers to him as his "top step pitcher"—but his ability to get the double play grounder has short-circuited more than a few big innings.

A sort of a poor man's Randy Jones, the 30-year-old native of Buffalo, N.Y., readily admits there are a host of more gifted pitchers in the major leagues. But he's quick to qualify that.

"A pitcher like Nolan Ryan, he's got a God-given ability to throw a ball faster than anyone else. Palmer is another one, although I think he's a better pitcher. Wilbur Wood has a pitch that's a freak. That doesn't make them good pitchers, though," he explains.

"Say me and Nolan had a contest to throw 10 pitches. Who do you think would throw the most strikes? I would.

"If those kind of pitchers could put seven out of 10 pitches where they wanted, they'd win 25 to 30 games a year."

Fitzmorris and catcher Buck Martinez are the only remaining royals from the original 1969 squad. But the hurler might still be an unnoticed reliever and spot starter if he had not been sent to the Royals' Omaha farm club after a 2-5 campaign in 1972, his only losing season in professional baseball.

"When you get sent out, you don't think in terms of how it's going to help you," he admits. "You think 'I've been here three years.'

"I was comfortable in what was essentially a meaningless job. I was a mop-up man .$.$. I wasn't making much money, but more than I probably could have made doing anything else. Yeah, I was complacent."

But Fitzmorris turned a chance to start regularly into a 9-8 record at Omaha, then helped the Royals finish strong with an 8-3 mark in the last two months of 1973. He was 13-6 with a 2.79 earned run average the next year and won 16 of 28 decisions in 1975.

Yet even after Fitzmorris won his first five games this season, his name was constantly—if unofficially—bandied about when the Royals discussed possible trades for Bert Blyleven and Ken Holtzman. That hurt, but he has made himself look at the situation positively.

Gary Blaylock of Malden, who has accepted the position of head baseball and basketball coach at Clarkton High School, closed out his professional baseball career on a good note last week.

Blaylock, playing for the Jacksonville Royals in the Class AA Southern League, batted .291 in his final week of play. Five of Blaylock's seven hit during the week were for extra bases, including three doubles and two home runs. He finished the season with seven homers, 43 RBI's and a .226 average.

Steve Coulson finished a fine AA season at West Haven on a low note, going six- for- 29 and lowering his average to .273. The Fisk product had two homers and 41 RBI's while playing second base in the Yankees' system.

Galen McSpadden of Puxico, who was called up by the San Diego Padres according to The Sporting News, was inactive during the final week of the Texas League season. McSpadden wound up the campaign with a 10-6 record and a fine 3.00 earned run average.

Gideon's Mark Littell had a bad outing Wednesday night for the slumping Kansas City Royals, but still sports spectacular statistics in his rookie season. Littell's ERA jumped to 1.86, going along with a 7-3 record and fifteen saves.

Minor League statistics are furnished by Player Periscope, while Major League stats are furnished by the Kansas City Royals.

The real Dan Devine finally stands up

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — "I don't know who I was last year but I intend to be myself this year," says Dan Devine, finally at ease in his role as Notre Dame's head football coach.

As he prepares to begin his second season with a crucial opener against ninth-ranked Pitt Saturday, Devine hopes he can concentrate on winning football games and emerge from under the shadow of the legends that lurk around every corner here.

Despite three years as head coach at Arizona State, 13 at Missouri and four with the Green Bay Packers, Devine wasn't prepared for life in the fishbowl where all Notre Dame football coaches live.

"No, I really didn't expect all the pressures," he admits. "It's hard to describe unless you've been there ... The time demands ... The travel ... Put Arizona State, Missouri and Green Bay together and it wouldn't match the demands and the pressures here."

Devine arrived at Notre Dame insisting, "I think with no ghosts." But he soon learned that anything he said, however true, was likely to be construed as a rap at his predecessor, Ara Parseghian, who resigned after 11 seasons because he'd had enough of the pressure.

For Parseghian, the coaching ghosts were Knute Rockne and Frank Leahy. But Devine's are Rockne, Leahy ... and Parseghian, who still lives and conducts his business here.

"It was difficult for me to say anything about the team or the program without implying some criticism of the previous staff," Devine says. "I had to be careful in choosing my words last year. I'd say things I had said a hundred times in the past in other places, but here it becomes magnified. Then you start being careful of everything you say and it gets worse."

If Devine said Notre Dame was a young, inexperienced team, it was taken to mean he was blaming Parseghian for not leaving him many veteran players. But the facts were that 10 of the 11 offensive starters had graduated, including almost all the experience at quarterback. And what kind of veterans did Devine inherit when only two seniors were drafted by the National Football League?

"The scouts say we may not have any this year," Devine says, letting some more chips fall where they may.

Arizona State over UCLA; Michigan, Irish, 'Bama picked

By Major Amos B. Hoople
Peerless Prophet

Jove, friends, this is the week we've all been waiting for as the nation's major collegiate powers unlimber their heavy artillery!

The cannonading starts on Thursday evening as the UCLA Bruins, still floating on Cloud Nine — heh-heh — following their amazing come-from-behind Rose Bowl triumph over Ohio State last January, will journey to Tempe to engage the Sun Devils of Arizona State in a national TV extravaganza. We look for Frank Kush's Sun Devils to bring the UCLANS back to earth in a hurry winning by a comfortable 35-14 count.

And how about these matchups: Oklahoma — Vanderbilt; Notre Dame — Pittsburgh; Ohio State — Michigan State; Oklahoma State — Tulsa; Penn State — Stanford; Purdue — Northwestern; Southern California — Missouri; Tennessee — Duke; Texas Tech — Colorado; Nebraska — Louisiana State; Texas — Boston College and Washington vs. Virginia.

Egad, dear readers, never in our long, long association with the collegiate gridders have we had such a plethora of early season masterpieces. And, in the tradition of Hoople Football Forecasts of years past, we have some astonishing predictions in store for you — har-rumph!

Let's consider first the Big 10 with a full slate on tap. We look for Woody Hayes to open his 26th season as head man at Ohio State with a convincing 28-14 win over the Michigan State Spartans. Meanwhile, at Ann Arbor, host Michigan will show the world why your esteemed prognosticator — hak-kaff — rates them No. 1 by rolling over a fine Wisconsin club, 30-6.

In other Big 10 meetings we make it Illinois 17, Iowa 14; Minnesota 24, Indiana 15, and Northwestern, 36-26, in a shocking conquest of host Purdue!

In a regional telecast feature we see Notre Dame avenging last year's upset at the hands of Pittsburgh by taking the Panthers, 27-12. The Irish defense will be ready for Pitt's Dorsett this time. However, "Talented Tony" will still give a good account of himself.

A trio of Big Eight standouts have too many horses for their opponents and we look for Nebraska, Oklahoma and Oklahoma State to win handily. The Hoople scouting report on these contests reads: Nebraska 35, LSU 21; Oklahoma 28, Vanderbilt 14, and Oklahoma State 38, Tulsa 10.

Two of the South's major independents will stage an old-fashioned donnybrook at Atlanta as South Carolina outlasts the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets, 16-14. And at Athens, Georgia, the Georgia Bulldogs will startle the betting brethren by jolting favored California and their premier passer Joe Roth. Yas, my friends, it will be Georgia 26, California 24.

The Southern California Trojans have lost my — kaff-kaff — one-time protegy brainy Coach Johnny McKay to the play-for-pay ranks, but they still have Ricky Bell, and that's more than enough to make new mentor John Robinson's debut a winning one, 24-20, over a tough Missouri team.

In some of the other headliners mentioned earlier, we give Alabama the nod over Mississippi, 28-11; Arizona the edge over Auburn, 24-20; Arkansas over Utah State 26-7; Texas 20, Boston College 10; Texas Tech 18, Colorado 14, and Tennessee 33, Duke 21.

Expos fire Kuehl

MONTREAL (AP) — Karl Kuehl has been fired as manager of the Montreal Expos and has been replaced by Charlie Fox. The rookie skipper was dismissed after the Expos dropped a doubleheader Friday night to the Pittsburgh Pirates 9-7 and 7-2.

The Expos have lost 15 of their last 17 games and their 43-85 won-lost record is the worst in baseball. Montreal is 38 games behind the first-place Philadelphia Phils in the East Division of the National League.

Kuehl, at 38, was the youngest pilot in the majors. His age may have been a factor in his dismissal as the Expos picked the 54-year-old Fox, a former San Francisco Giants' field boss, as interim manager for the rest of the season.

"We feel we need an older man to handle the youngsters on our ballclub," said team President John McHale in announcing the managerial change in the press box immediately after the second game.

"We need a new atmosphere in the clubhouse."

Kuehl had been touted last Oct. 31, when he was hired to replace Gene Mauch, as a brilliant baseball tactician who worked wonders with Expos farmhands at various levels of the club's minor league system.

But there has been suspicion in recent weeks that the young Expos players, far from fretting about their horrendous record, may have taken advantage of Kuehl's relaxed attitude.

Mauch, manager of the club from its inaugural season in 1969 until he was fired last Oct. 1, was a strict disciplinarian but was accused of edging McHale and Vice President Jim Fanning out of the daily affairs of the club.

When Kuehl was hired, it was announced that McHale and Fanning would have a much greater role, but Fox said he was assured he will have a free reign for the rest of the year.

Player Periscope

Gary Blaylock of Malden, who has accepted the position of head baseball and basketball coach at Clarkton High School, closed out his professional baseball career on a good note last week.

Blaylock, playing for the Jacksonville Royals in the Class AA Southern League, batted .291 in his final week of play. Five of Blaylock's seven hit during the week were for extra bases, including three doubles and two home runs. He finished the season with seven homers, 43 RBI's and a .226 average.

Steve Coulson finished a fine AA season at West Haven on a low note, going six- for- 29 and lowering his average to .273. The Fisk product had two homers and 41 RBI's while playing second base in the Yankees' system.

Galen McSpadden of Puxico, who was called up by the San Diego Padres according to The Sporting News, was inactive during the final week of the Texas League season. McSpadden wound up the campaign with a 10-6 record and a fine 3.00 earned run average.

Gideon's Mark Littell had a bad outing Wednesday night for the slumping Kansas City Royals, but still sports spectacular statistics in his rookie season. Littell's ERA jumped to 1.86, going along with a 7-3 record and fifteen saves.

Minor League statistics are furnished by Player Periscope, while Major League stats are furnished by the Kansas City Royals.

The real Dan Devine finally stands up

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — "I don't know who I was last year but I intend to be myself this year," says Dan Devine, finally at ease in his role as Notre Dame's head football coach.

As he prepares to begin his second season with a crucial opener against ninth-ranked Pitt Saturday, Devine hopes he can concentrate on winning football games and emerge from under the shadow of the legends that lurk around every corner here.

Despite three years as head coach at Arizona State, 13 at Missouri and four with the Green Bay Packers, Devine wasn't prepared for life in the fishbowl where all Notre Dame football coaches live.

"No, I really didn't expect all the pressures," he admits. "It's hard to describe unless you've been there ... The time demands ... The travel ... Put Arizona State, Missouri and Green Bay together and it wouldn't match the demands and the pressures here."

Devine arrived at Notre Dame insisting, "I think with no ghosts." But he soon learned that anything he said, however true, was likely to be construed as a rap at his predecessor, Ara Parseghian, who resigned after 11 seasons because he'd had enough of the pressure.

For Parseghian, the coaching ghosts were Knute Rockne and Frank Leahy. But Devine's are Rockne, Leahy ... and Parseghian, who still lives and conducts his business here.

"It was difficult for me to say anything about the team or the program without implying some criticism of the previous staff," Devine says. "I had to be careful in choosing my words last year. I'd say things I had said a hundred times in the past in other places, but here it becomes magnified. Then you start being careful of everything you say and it gets worse."

If Devine said Notre Dame was a young, inexperienced team, it was taken to mean he was blaming Parseghian for not leaving him many veteran players. But the facts were that 10 of the 11 offensive starters had graduated, including almost all the experience at quarterback. And what kind of veterans did Devine inherit when only two seniors were drafted by the National Football League?

"The scouts say we may not have any this year," Devine says, letting some more chips fall where they may.

Arizona State over UCLA; Michigan, Irish, 'Bama picked

By Major Amos B. Hoople
Peerless Prophet

Jove, friends, this is the week we've all been waiting for as the nation's major collegiate powers unlimber their heavy artillery!

The cannonading starts on Thursday evening as the UCLA Bruins, still floating on Cloud Nine — heh-heh — following their amazing come-from-behind Rose Bowl triumph over Ohio State last January, will journey to Tempe to engage the Sun Devils of Arizona State in a national TV extravaganza. We look for Frank Kush's Sun Devils to bring the UCLANS back to earth in a hurry winning by a comfortable 35-14 count.

And how about these matchups: Oklahoma — Vanderbilt; Notre Dame — Pittsburgh; Ohio State — Michigan State; Oklahoma State — Tulsa; Penn State — Stanford; Purdue — Northwestern; Southern California — Missouri; Tennessee — Duke; Texas Tech — Colorado; Nebraska — Louisiana State; Texas — Boston College and Washington vs. Virginia.

Egad, dear readers, never in our long, long association with the collegiate gridders have we had such a plethora of early season masterpieces. And, in the tradition of Hoople Football Forecasts of years past, we have some astonishing predictions in store for you — har-rumph!

Let's consider first the Big 10 with a full slate on tap. We look for Woody Hayes to open his 26th season as head man at Ohio State with a convincing 28-14 win over the Michigan State Spartans. Meanwhile, at Ann Arbor, host Michigan will show the world why your esteemed prognosticator — hak-kaff — rates them No. 1 by rolling over a fine Wisconsin club, 30-6.

In other Big 10 meetings we make it Illinois 17, Iowa 14; Minnesota 24, Indiana 15, and Northwestern, 36-26, in a shocking conquest of host Purdue!

In a regional telecast feature we see Notre Dame avenging last year's upset at the hands of Pittsburgh by taking the Panthers, 27-12. The Irish defense will be ready for Pitt's Dorsett this time. However, "Talented Tony" will still give a good account of himself.

A trio of Big Eight standouts have too many horses for their opponents and we look for Nebraska, Oklahoma and Oklahoma State to win handily. The Hoople scouting report on these contests reads: Nebraska 35, LSU 21; Oklahoma 28, Vanderbilt 14, and Oklahoma State 38, Tulsa 10.

Two of the South's major independents will stage an old-fashioned donnybrook at Atlanta as South Carolina outlasts the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets, 16-14. And at Athens, Georgia, the Georgia Bulldogs will startle the betting brethren by jolting favored California and their premier passer Joe Roth. Yas, my friends, it will be Georgia 26, California 24.

The Southern California Trojans have lost my — kaff-kaff — one-time protegy brainy Coach Johnny McKay to the play-for-pay ranks, but they still have Ricky Bell, and that's more than enough to make new mentor John Robinson's debut a winning one, 24-20, over a tough Missouri team.

In some of the other headliners mentioned earlier, we give Alabama the nod over Mississippi, 28-11; Arizona the edge over Auburn, 24-20; Arkansas over Utah State 26-7; Texas 20, Boston College 10; Texas Tech 18, Colorado 14, and Tennessee 33, Duke 21.

Sociable Newsgathering

The first newspaperwoman was Madame Doublet de Persan (1677-1771) a widow of Paris who never left her apartment for 40 years but held parties daily at which each guest was required to give her a tidbit of news. She then produced a handwritten newspaper — each issue of which was widely circulated for months.

Expos fire Kuehl

MONTREAL (AP) — Karl Kuehl has been fired as manager of the Montreal Expos and has been replaced by Charlie Fox. The rookie skipper was dismissed after the Expos dropped a doubleheader Friday night to the Pittsburgh Pirates 9-7 and 7-2.

The Expos have lost 15 of their last 17 games and their 43-85 won-lost record is the worst in baseball. Montreal is 38 games behind the first-place Philadelphia Phils in the East Division of the National League.

Kuehl, at 38, was the youngest pilot in the majors. His age may have been a factor in his dismissal as the Expos picked the 54-year-old Fox, a former San Francisco Giants' field boss, as interim manager for the rest of the season.

"We feel we need an older man to handle the youngsters on our ballclub," said team President John McHale in announcing the managerial change in the press box immediately after the second game.

"We need a new atmosphere in the clubhouse."

Kuehl had been touted last Oct. 31, when he was hired to replace Gene Mauch, as a brilliant baseball tactician who worked wonders with Expos farmhands at various levels of the club's minor league system.

But there has been suspicion in recent weeks that the young Expos players, far from fretting about their horrendous record, may have taken advantage of Kuehl's relaxed attitude.

Mauch, manager of the club from its inaugural season in 1969 until he was fired last Oct. 1, was a strict disciplinarian but was accused of edging McHale and Vice President Jim Fanning out of the daily affairs of the club.

When Kuehl was hired, it was announced that McHale and Fanning would have a much greater role, but Fox said he was assured he will have a free reign for the rest of the year.

No more returns for me says Big Red's Metcalf

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The NFL's leading combined ground gainer in 1975 has decided to quit returning punts and kickoffs, unless he's paid more money.

"If I don't (return punts and kickoffs), I can add a few more years to my career," said All-Pro running back Terry Metcalf. "I feel I'm doing too many jobs. I don't mind doing them, but..."

Last year Metcalf set a National Football League record for combined net yardage—2,462 yards. He picked up 960 of those yards on kickoff returns and 285 more on punt returns.

Metcalf told Cardinal coach Don Coryell of his play to cut back during practice last week.

"It was a hard thing to do," Metcalf said of his conversation with Coryell, "but it had to be said. His response was sort of shocking. I guess I really caught him off guard."

Coryell said he was surprised by Metcalf's decision, but said he would not press the issue.

"One thing I think he should consider, though," Coryell said. "is that's (returns) what made him All-Pro."

Metcalf, clearly aware of the dangers of special team duty, said he won't change his mind. He is a fourth-year product of Long Beach State.

His punt return average of 12.8 yards per return was the best in the National Football Conference. His kickoff return average of 27.4 yards was second to the Chicago Bear's Walter Payton, who averaged 31.7 yards.

After the Cardinals' 31-14 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs Friday, Coryell said he would probably use rookie wide receiver Pat Tilley on punt returns. During the exhibition season Tilley returned six punts for an average of 15.5 yards.

On kickoffs, Coryell indicated he would probably use second-year running back Jerry Latin and rookie running back Wayne Morris. Latin, during the exhibition season, returned 10 kickoffs for 22.3 yards per return. Morris has returned three kickoffs for an average 28.0 yards.

Murray clips SeMo

SeMo State had most of its problems with the offense. Quarterback Don Backfish threw four interceptions. Early in the first quarter, Backfish suffered an ankle injury and SeMo brought in Phil Wallace. Wallace, a regular wide received, was converted to quarterback when Phil Miller suffered a shoulder dislocation earlier this week.

The defense played an exceptional game, but was on the field for nearly three quarters. Dan Weiser, defensive halfback, intercepted one pass. The offense couldn't establish any type of running game. During the first half, the offense had 37 net yards rushing and 30 passing.

Murray State scored on a 13-yard run by Dickens. Wimpe of Murray ran an interception back 24 yards, which led to a touchdown in the second quarter.

SeMo State's Mike Wood booted a 50-yard field goal in the third quarter to end the scoring for the night.

Nastase blasted after outburst

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — "I think the guy ought to be barred from tennis for life — I've never been so angry," said Clarence Davies, longtime official of the U.S Tennis Association.

"He is a madman — he should be banished for the good of the game," added Charles Hare, referee of the U.S. Open Championships.

"There is a place for color, no place for dirt," said Tony Trabert, the U.S. Davis Cup captain. "I would have been embarrassed if my mother or sister had been in the stands."

The fiery, uninhibited Romanian was not without his apologists following his ranting, abusive behavior on center court from which he came away with a 7-6, 4-6, 7-6 victory.

"He's a colorful guy — he adds zest to a tournament," one observer was heard to say. "Tennis would really be dull if all the players were as unemotional as Stan Smith or Bjorn Borg."

"The umpire was at fault," said another. "Pohmann was playing to the crowd with his swan dives late in the match. He should have been defaulted."

"Officials let the match get away from them," came another comment. "It was their indecision added to Nastase's outbursts that excited the crowd."

Nastase, notorious for court antics, ran the gamut of his "bad boy" repertoire against the blond German. He yelled obscenities at his opponent, the umpire, linesmen and spectators.

He batted a ball at an offending photographer. Later he walked to the sidelines and challenged the cameraman with his racket. He banged a ball into the stands. He had to be restrained from climbing a barrier and going after a needling spectator.

After the match, he almost came to blows with Pohmann in the dressing room after calling the German "a Hitler."

"If you hit me, I'll sue," Pohmann told him.

The electrically-charged match reached a bizarre climax in the final phases when Pohmann took the first of three nasty spills on the court with the score 6-6 in the final set.

The imported British umpire, George Armstrong, permitted Dr. Daniel Manfredi to go on the court and attend the ailing athlete—not once but three times.

Each time Pohmann returned to the combat and fought his way to two match points before Nastase finally eked out the match in a 9-7 point tiebreaker.

"I tried to ask the umpire how many minutes he was going to allow Pohmann before resuming play," Nastase said. "He would not listen to me.

"Where was the referee? Why didn't he come out and stop the match. It is the rules."

No one questioned that Nastase had a legitimate complaint. Tennis rules state that — except in the case of an unusual accident — play must be continuous and each player must compete without outside help.

"When Pohmann fell, he hit the ground very hard," said Armstrong, who has called four Wimbledon finals. "He was lying there in apparent agony. I had no other choice but to call for a doctor.

SeMo Football Roundup

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A mishandled snap on a second quarter extra point attempt cost DeSoto a 14-13 defeat at the hands of the Cape Central Tigers. Runningback Rich Herchenroeder scored both DeSoto touchdowns, but it was Ted Osburn's extra- point for the Bengals in the fourth period that gave Cape the win.

Central took the ball on its first possession and drove to midfield. On an option play, quarterback Rick Sippel raced 50 yards for a score. Osburn's PAT made it Central 7, DeSoto 0.

Central made a costly error in the second period by fumbling on its own six yard line. Herchenroeder scored on the first play, but the mishandled snap kept DeSoto a point behind, 7-6.

DeSoto threatened several times the rest of the first half, penetrating the Bengal 20-yard line three times. Once the Central defense held three straight plays at the two yard line.

Opening the second half, DeSoto took the kickoff and marched 68 yards to the score on a time consuming march. With less than five minutes left in the third period, Herchenroeder scored from the two. Clayton Henry's kick gave DeSoto a 13-7 lead.

A the end of the third frame, Central linebacker John Osburn recovered a fumble on DeSoto's 23. Early in the last quarter halfback Jerome Smith punched it over from the one. The kick by Ted Osburn gave CCHS a one-point lead, 14-13.

POPLAR BLUFF — The Poplar Bluff Mules unleased an awesome rushing attack that piled up 384 yards on the ground in the season opener as they buried Jefferson County conference favorites Fox of Arnold 28-0 Friday night.

Coach Tom Telle's Mules, beginning what has been called "a rebuilding year" by the PBHS coaching staff, completely dominated the Fox team. Bluff racked up 20 first downs and had 456 yards in total offense.

David Webb was the big story offensively for the Mules. Webb scored two touchdowns, going over from the three in the first quarter and from the fourth in the second, and gained 141 yards in the game on 18 carries. Billy Hays scored from the two for the Mules in the fourth quarter, and Ron Thomas broke loose to go in from the 33 as the Mules completed the rout. Kicker Paul Roberts kicked four consecutive extra points.

DONIPHAN — Salem overcame an early 7-0 deficit to overhaul the Doniphan Dons and then they held off a late fourth quarter rally to preserve the victory in the season opener.

In the first quarter, Doniphan scored on a 60 yard pass play from quarterback Bruce Hunt to end Brian Ball, and with the extra point, Doniphan took a 7-0 lead into the second quarter of action. However Salem fought back and scored on a 35 yard run by 195 pound fullback Mike Harlowe on a trap play up the middle. They made a two point conversion to lead 8-7.

In the third quarter, the Rogers' brother of Salem hooked up on a six yard touchdown pass play to take a 14-7 lead, however, the extra point was missed. Coach Ed Rickus of Doniphan said about the Salem quarterback, "This little left-handed passer they had was probably one of the best ones we'll see all season."

Doniphan was not through however, as late in the fourth quarter, they had a scored drive under way and it had carried down to the Salem 15 yard line where it was third down and three yards to go. The Dons could not capitalize on the situation, however and the game ended with Salem the victors.

The Perryville defense limited Fredericktown to 76 total yards on offense all night and only 4 first downs with two of those coming via penalties.

The Pirates scored the first three times they had the ball, however one of these was called back because of a penalty. The first drive was culminated when Stuart Prevallet rushed three yards into the end zone to give the Pirates a 7-0 lead with the extra point being good. Then the Pirates scored again with quarterback Mike Wilson sneaking over from one yard out to give the Pirates a 14-0 lead as again the extra point was good.

Perryville capped their scoring in the third quarter on a four yard run by powerback Joe Giesler. This time the extra point was missed. This scoring play was after Fredericktown had got on the board with a second quarter run by their fullback of three yards.

Then Fredericktown finished the scoring with a two yard run by the quarterback and when the extra point was missed, Perryville had its first victory of the season.

One of the big stories for Perryville was the running of Stuart Prevallet, who rushed for 121 yards in 23 attempts.

MALDEN — The Dexter Bearcats opened their first season in the Northern Division and their first in twelve years under coach Tom Thrower with a big 34-8 victory over Malden's Greenwave at Malden.

Junior quarterback Lance Espey, a southpaw, connected with slotback Kevin Orr for a 70-yard scoring strike in the first quarter to put Dexter ahead. Jim Dowdy added the extra point.

In the second quarter, Malden quarterback Robert Morehead teamed with Kenny Stilson for a TD strike from the five to put the Wave on the board. When Morehead ran over for the conversion, Malden held a brief 8-7 lead, but Dexter came right back later in the period, with Espey keeping the ball and scoring from the eight. Espey hit Dowdy for the two-pointer, and Dexter led 15-8 at the half.

Rick Guilliams rambled in from the seven in the third period for Dexter's third TD of the game. The try for two failed. Orr broke loose on a 45-yard scoring jaunt for the Bearcats later in the period, and Dowdy's extra point made it 28-8.

Rick Guilliams struck with the big play for Dexter in the fourth period, breaking loose for a 66-yard touchdown run. The kick by Dowdy was blocked.

Dexter racked up 209 rushing yards in the game and 174 passing. Malden had 229 total yards.

Royal lead cut to six games as Rangers win 4-1

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Texas Rangers can testify that the quickest route to respectability isn't always the best.

Despite much-publicized deals that brought them veteran pitchers Gaylord Perry and Bert Blyleven, the Rangers are a lot closer to the bottom of the American League West than the top.

But Tom Boggs, a home-grown product late of the Pacific Coast League, could be the beginning of a more pleasant trend.

"I tell you, he reminds me of a young Tom Seaver," rhapsodized Texas Manager Frank Lucchesi Friday night after Boggs spellbound the Kansas City Royals, 4-1, on seven hits.

The loss was the fifth straight for the Royals, whose A.L. West lead dwindled to six games over the Oakland A's, 5-0 victors over the California Angels.

"He had good stuff," admitted Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog. "I don't know if he was good or we were bad, the way we're hitting. No, he's a good one. You're going to hear about him."

Less than two months ago, the 20-year-old Boggs was toiling rather unspectacularly for the Sacramento Bees with a 6-11 mark and a 6.80 earned run average.

But he was pitching well, considering Sacramento's cozy 250-foot left field wall, and the Rangers, with injuries to Jim Umbarger and Perry, called him up July 18.

He promptly recorded complete games against the New York Yankees and Cleveland Indians— but victories still eluded him. He changed all that Friday night.

The young right-hander, 1-4, scattered seven hits and blanked the Royals until Al Cowens hit a run-scoring grounder in the ninth.

"Sure, it would have been super for the first one to be a shutout, but I'd have been happy if the score was 9-8," smiled the dark-haired Boggs.

CHICAGO (AP) — Rick Monday finished batting practice before Friday's game and told batting instructor Lew Fonseca "I'm having serious trouble. No bat speed, no control. Nothing."

Then the former outfielder who has been shifted to first base went out and slugged two home runs and drove in three runs to help the Chicago Cubs blast the St. Louis Cardinals 8-5.

When he led off the first inning with his 26th homer, it marked the sixth time this season he has started the Cubs off with a home run. His two-run shot in the fifth gave him 27 for the season, a career high surpassing the 26 he hit for the Cubs in 1973.

After every game he plays at first base, Monday counts his fingers and toes and announces, "Well, they're all still there."

Except for one game, Monday actually has played first base very well.

"It's less demanding physically than center field," said Monday. "But my nervous energy is at its highest level because it is a strange position."

Despite Monday's two home runs and flawless play at first base, the Cubs needed a tie-breaking three-run rally in the eighth inning to post their 10th victory in 14 games against the Cardinals this season.

Joe Wallis and Jerry Morales both singled off Eddie Solomon. After Manny Trillo popped out, rookie Wayne Tyrone singled off reliefer Al Hrabosky to break the tie. Another single by Mick Kelleher and a throwing error by right fielder Joe Ferguson gave the Cubs two insurance runs and helped reliever Bruce Sutter post his fourth victory against three losses.

Sutter, who also has eight saves and is the undisputed relief ace of the staff, gave up only one hit in the two innings he worked and that was a single to Ferguson.

"That makes three-for-three he's had against me," said Sutter. "I just can't get him out. But it all worked out for the best."

Ted Simmons and Keith Hernandez provided the scoring punch for the Cardinals. Simmons hit his fifth homer and also had a double and a single to drive in two runs while Hernandez drove in a pair with his fourth homer and also singled in a run.

Still, the Cardinals dropped their sixth straight game in Wrigley Field.

"They're just unbelievable against us," said St. Louis Manager Red Schoendienst.

"They make all the plays and they do everything right. Sometimes I think they're just geared to beat us. That wouldn't be bad if we were in first place."

No more returns for me says Big Red's Metcalf

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The NFL's leading combined ground gainer in 1975 has decided to quit returning punts and kickoffs, unless he's paid more money.

"If I don't (return punts and kickoffs), I can add a few more years to my career," said All-Pro running back Terry Metcalf. "I feel I'm doing too many jobs. I don't mind doing them, but..."

Last year Metcalf set a National Football League record for combined net yardage—2,462 yards. He picked up 960 of those yards on kickoff returns and 285 more on punt returns.

Metcalf told Cardinal coach Don Coryell of his play to cut back during practice last week.

"It was a hard thing to do," Metcalf said of his conversation with Coryell, "but it had to be said. His response was sort of shocking. I guess I really caught him off guard."

Coryell said he was surprised by Metcalf's decision, but said he would not press the issue.

"One thing I think he should consider, though," Coryell said, "is that's (returns) what made him All-Pro."

Metcalf, clearly aware of the dangers of special team duty, said he won't change his mind. He is a fourth-year product of Long Beach State.

His punt return average of 12.8 yards per return was the best in the National Football Conference. His kickoff return average of 27.4 yards was second to the Chicago Bear's Walter Payton, who averaged 31.7 yards.

After the Cardinals' 31-14 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs Friday, Coryell said he would probably use rookie wide receiver Pat Tilley on punt returns. During the exhibition season Tilley returned six punts for an average of 15.5 yards.

On kickoffs, Coryell indicated he would probably use second-year running back Jerry Latin and rookie running back Wayne Morris. Latin, during the exhibition season, returned 10 kickoffs for 22.3 yards per return. Morris has returned three kickoffs for an average 28.0 yards.

Nastase blasted after outburst

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — "I think the guy ought to be barred from tennis for life — I've never been so angry," said Clarence Davies, longtime official of the U.S Tennis Association.

"He is a madman — he should be banished for the good of the game," added Charles Hare, referee of the U.S. Open Championships.

"There is a place for color, no place for dirt," said Tony Trabert, the U.S. Davis Cup captain. "I would have been embarrassed if my mother or sister had been in the stands."

The fiery, uninhibited Romanian was not without his apologists following his ranting, abusive behavior on center court from which he came away with a 7-6, 4-6, 7-6 victory.

"He's a colorful guy — he adds zest to a tournament," one observer was heard to say. "Tennis would really be dull if all the players were as unemotional as Stan Smith or Bjorn Borg."

"The umpire was at fault," said another. "Pohmann was playing to the crowd with his swan dives late in the match. He should have been defaulted."

"Officials let the match get away from them," came another comment. "It was their indecision added to Nastase's outbursts that excited the crowd."

Nastase, notorious for court antics, ran the gamut of his "bad boy" repertoire against the blond German. He yelled obscenities at his opponent, the umpire, linesmen and spectators.

He batted a ball at an offending photographer. Later he walked to the sidelines and challenged the cameraman with his racket. He banged a ball into the stands. He had to be restrained from climbing a barrier and going after a needling spectator.

After the match, he almost came to blows with Pohmann in the dressing room after calling the German "a Hitler."

"If you hit me, I'll sue," Pohmann told him.

The electrically-charged match reached a bizarre climax in the final phases when Pohmann took the first of three nasty spills on the court with the score 6-6 in the final set.

The imported British umpire, George Armstrong, permitted Dr. Daniel Manfredi to go on the court and attend the ailing athlete—not once but three times.

Each time Pohmann returned to the combat and fought his way to two match points before Nastase finally eked out the match in a 9-7 point tiebreaker.

"I tried to ask the umpire how many minutes he was going to allow Pohmann before resuming play," Nastase said. "He would not listen to me.

"Where was the referee? Why didn't he come out and stop the match. It is the rules."

No one questioned that Nastase had a legitimate complaint. Tennis rules state that — except in the case of an unusual accident — play must be continuous and each player must compete without outside help.

"When Pohmann fell, he hit the ground very hard," said Armstrong, who has called four Wimbledon finals. "He was lying there in apparent agony. I had no other choice but to call for a doctor.

Murray clips SeMo

SeMo State had most of its problems with the offense. Quarterback Don Backfish threw four interceptions. Early in the first quarter, Backfish suffered an ankle injury and SeMo brought in Phil Wallace. Wallace, a regular wide received, was converted to quarterback when Phil Miller suffered a shoulder dislocation earlier this week.

The defense played an exceptional game, but was on the field for nearly three quarters. Dan Weiser, defensive halfback, intercepted one pass. The offense couldn't establish any type of running game. During the first half, the offense had 37 net yards rushing and 30 passing.

Murray State scored on a 13-yard run by Dickens. Wimpe of Murray ran an interception back 24 yards, which led to a touchdown in the second quarter.

SeMo State's Mike Wood booted a 50-yard field goal in the third quarter to end the scoring for the night.

SeMo Football Roundup

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A mishandled snap on a second quarter extra point attempt cost DeSoto a 14-13 defeat at the hands of the Cape Central Tigers. Runningback Rich Herchenroeder scored both DeSoto touchdowns, but it was Ted Osburn's extra- point for the Bengals in the fourth period that gave Cape the win.

Central took the ball on its first possession and drove to midfield. On an option play, quarterback Rick Sippel raced 50 yards for a score. Osburn's PAT made it Central 7, DeSoto 0.

Central made a costly error in the second period by fumbling on its own six yard line. Herchenroeder scored on the first play, but the mishandled snap kept DeSoto a point behind, 7-6.

DeSoto threatened several times the rest of the first half, penetrating the Bengal 20-yard line three times. Once the Central defense held three straight plays at the two yard line.

Opening the second half, DeSoto took the kickoff and marched 68 yards to the score on a time consuming march. With less than five minutes left in the third period, Herchenroeder scored from the two. Clayton Henry's kick gave DeSoto a 13-7 lead.

A the end of the third frame, Central linebacker John Osburn recovered a fumble on DeSoto's 23. Early in the last quarter halfback Jerome Smith punched it over from the one. The kick by Ted Osburn gave CCHS a one-point lead, 14-13.

POPLAR BLUFF — The Poplar Bluff Mules unleased an awesome rushing attack that piled up 384 yards on the ground in the season opener as they buried Jefferson County conference favorites Fox of Arnold 28-0 Friday night.

Coach Tom Telle's Mules, beginning what has been called "a rebuilding year" by the PBHS coaching staff, completely dominated the Fox team. Bluff racked up 20 first downs and had 456 yards in total offense.

David Webb was the big story offensively for the Mules. Webb scored two touchdowns, going over from the three in the first quarter and from the fourth in the second, and gained 141 yards in the game on 18 carries. Billy Hays scored from the two for the Mules in the fourth quarter, and Ron Thomas broke loose to go in from the 33 as the Mules completed the rout. Kicker Paul Roberts kicked four consecutive extra points.

DONIPHAN — Salem overcame an early 7-0 deficit to overhaul the Doniphan Dons and then they held off a late fourth quarter rally to preserve the victory in the season opener.

In the first quarter, Doniphan scored on a 60 yard pass play from quarterback Bruce Hunt to end Brian Ball, and with the extra point, Doniphan took a 7-0 lead into the second quarter of action. However Salem fought back and scored on a 35 yard run by 195 pound fullback Mike Harlowe on a trap play up the middle. They made a two point conversion to lead 8-7.

In the third quarter, the Rogers' brother of Salem hooked up on a six yard touchdown pass play to take a 14-7 lead, however, the extra point was missed. Coach Ed Rickus of Doniphan said about the Salem quarterback, "This little left-handed passer they had was probably one of the best ones we'll see all season."

Doniphan was not through however, as late in the fourth quarter, they had a scored drive under way and it had carried down to the Salem 15 yard line where it was third down and three yards to go. The Dons could not capitalize on the situation, however and the game ended with Salem the victors.

The Perryville defense limited Fredericktown to 76 total yards on offense all night and only 4 first downs with two of those coming via penalties.

The Pirates scored the first three times they had the ball, however one of these was called back because of a penalty. The first drive was culminated when Stuart Prevallet rushed three yards into the end zone to give the Pirates a 7-0 lead with the extra point being good. Then the Pirates scored again with quarterback Mike Wilson sneaking over from one yard out to give the Pirates a 14-0 lead as again the extra point was good.

Perryville capped their scoring in the third quarter on a four yard run by powerback Joe Giesler. This time the extra point was missed. This scoring play was after Fredericktown had got on the board with a second quarter run by their fullback of three yards.

Then Fredericktown finished the scoring with a two yard run by the quarterback and when the extra point was missed, Perryville had its first victory of the season.

One of the big stories for Perryville was the running of Stuart Prevallet, who rushed for 121 yards in 23 attempts.

MALDEN — The Dexter Bearcats opened their first season in the Northern Division and their first in twelve years under coach Tom Thrower with a big 34-8 victory over Malden's Greenwave at Malden.

Junior quarterback Lance Espey, a southpaw, connected with slotback Kevin Orr for a 70-yard scoring strike in the first quarter to put Dexter ahead. Jim Dowdy added the extra point.

In the second quarter, Malden quarterback Robert Morehead teamed with Kenny Stilson for a TD strike from the five to put the Wave on the board. When Morehead ran over for the conversion, Malden held a brief 8-7 lead, but Dexter came right back later in the period, with Espey keeping the ball and scoring from the eight. Espey hit Dowdy for the two-pointer, and Dexter led 15-8 at the half.

Rick Guilliams rambled in from the seven in the third period for Dexter's third TD of the game. The try for two failed. Orr broke loose on a 45- yard scoring jaunt for the Bearcats later in the period, and Dowdy's extra point made it 28-8.

Rick Guilliams struck with the big play for Dexter in the fourth period, breaking loose for a 66-yard touchdown run. The kick by Dowdy was blocked.

Dexter racked up 209 rushing yards in the game and 174 passing. Malden had 229 total yards.

Royal lead cut to six games as Rangers win 4-1

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Texas Rangers can testify that the quickest route to respectability isn't always the best.

Despite much-publicized deals that brought them veteran pitchers Gaylord Perry and Bert Blyleven, the Rangers are a lot closer to the bottom of the American League West than the top.

But Tom Boggs, a home-grown product late of the Pacific Coast League, could be the beginning of a more pleasant trend.

"I tell you, he reminds me of a young Tom Seaver," rhapsodized Texas Manager Frank Lucchesi Friday night after Boggs spellbound the Kansas City Royals, 4-1, on seven hits.

The loss was the fifth straight for the Royals, whose A.L. West lead dwindled to six games over the Oakland A's, 5-0 victors over the California Angels.

"He had good stuff," admitted Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog. "I don't know if he was good or we were bad, the way we're hitting. No, he's a good one. You're going to hear about him."

Less than two months ago, the 20-year-old Boggs was toiling rather unspectacularly for the Sacramento Bees with a 6-11 mark and a 6.80 earned run average.

But he was pitching well, considering Sacramento's cozy 250-foot left field wall, and the Rangers, with injuries to Jim Umbarger and Perry, called him up July 18.

He promptly recorded complete games against the New York Yankees and Cleveland Indians— but victories still eluded him. He changed all that Friday night.

The young right-hander, 1-4, scattered seven hits and blanked the Royals until Al Cowens hit a run-scoring grounder in the ninth.

"Sure, it would have been super for the first one to be a shutout, but I'd have been happy if the score was 9-8," smiled the dark-haired Boggs.

CHICAGO (AP) — Rick Monday finished batting practice before Friday's game and told batting instructor Lew Fonseca "I'm having serious trouble. No bat speed, no control. Nothing."

Then the former outfielder who has been shifted to first base went out and slugged two home runs and drove in three runs to help the Chicago Cubs blast the St. Louis Cardinals 8-5.

When he led off the first inning with his 26th homer, it marked the sixth time this season he has started the Cubs off with a home run. His two-run shot in the fifth gave him 27 for the season, a career high surpassing the 26 he hit for the Cubs in 1973.

After every game he plays at first base, Monday counts his fingers and toes and announces, "Well, they're all still there."

Except for one game, Monday actually has played first base very well.

"It's less demanding physically than center field," said Monday. "But my nervous energy is at its highest level because it is a strange position."

Despite Monday's two home runs and flawless play at first base, the Cubs needed a tie-breaking three-run rally in the eighth inning to post their 10th victory in 14 games against the Cardinals this season.

Joe Wallis and Jerry Morales both singled off Eddie Solomon. After Manny Trillo popped out, rookie Wayne Tyrone singled off reliefer Al Hrabosky to break the tie. Another single by Mick Kelleher and a throwing error by right fielder Joe Ferguson gave the Cubs two insurance runs and helped reliever Bruce Sutter post his fourth victory against three losses.

Sutter, who also has eight saves and is the undisputed relief ace of the staff, gave up only one hit in the two innings he worked and that was a single to Ferguson.

"That makes three-for-three he's had against me," said Sutter. "I just can't get him out. But it all worked out for the best."

Ted Simmons and Keith Hernandez provided the scoring punch for the Cardinals. Simmons hit his fifth homer and also had a double and a single to drive in two runs while Hernandez drove in a pair with his fourth homer and also singled in a run.

Still, the Cardinals dropped their sixth straight game in Wrigley Field.

"They're just unbelievable against us," said St. Louis Manager Red Schoendienst.

"They make all the plays and they do everything right. Sometimes I think they're just geared to beat us. That wouldn't be bad if we were in first place."

As it is, the Cardinals are in fifth place and now trail the fourth-place Cubs by two games.

Career Sales Opportunity

Would You Like to Earn $10,000 to $25,000 a year and more as a salesperson? You can do it right here in Southeast Mo. No overnight travel is required. We offer comprehensive 3 year training program. You will receive excellent rapid advancement. Of the 22 men in Sales positions in our Cape Girardeau office, 3 earn an excess of $25,000 a year and others earn between $10,000 and $25,000 a year. In recent years our top salesmen have qualified for meetings in Colorado Springs, Washington, D.C., Phoenix, Arizona, New Orleans, La., Old Mexico and Boston, Mass. We pay starting money. A commission plan plus bonus, makes it possible to earn in excess of $20,000 in the first year and in access of $30,000 the second year. Our men are self employed and completely independent. A sales background and a college degree are desirable, but certainly not essential. Several of our men have college degrees, others are only high school graduates. We have successful men under 25 years of age. Other successful men in our organization are grandfathers and ministers.
We have no particular requirements, we are looking for honest, hard working men who meet people well and who will work very hard and follow our proved sales systems exactly. Take 5 minutes to investigate this challanging, satisfying and rewarding career.
Stop by the desk at the Hickory House Motel Dexter, Mo. and ask for Dale Devault Monday, Sept. 6 after 12:00 noon thru Wed. Noon Sept. 8.

Career Sales Opportunity

Would You Like to Earn $10,000 to $25,000 a year and more as a salesperson? You can do it right here in Southeast Mo. No overnight travel is required. We offer comprehensive 3 year training program. You will receive excellent rapid advancement. Of the 22 men in Sales positions in our Cape Girardeau office, 3 earn an excess of $25,000 a year and others earn between $10,000 and $25,000 a year. In recent years our top salesmen have qualified for meetings in Colorado Springs, Washington, D.C., Phoenix, Arizona, New Orleans, La., Old Mexico and Boston, Mass. We pay starting money. A commission plan plus bonus, makes it possible to earn in excess of $20,000 in the first year and in access of $30,000 the second year. Our men are self employed and completely independent. A sales background and a college degree are desirable, but certainly not essential. Several of our men have college degrees, others are only high school graduates. We have successful men under 25 years of age. Other successful men in our organization are grandfathers and ministers.
We have no particular requirements, we are looking for honest, hard working men who meet people well and who will work very hard and follow our proved sales systems exactly. Take 5 minutes to investigate this challanging, satisfying and rewarding career.
Stop by the desk at the Hickory House Motel Dexter, Mo. and ask for Dale Devault Monday, Sept. 6 after 12:00 noon thru Wed. Noon Sept. 8.

MSTA Center opens

DEXTER — Dr. J. A. Kinder of Columbia, executive secretary of Missouri State Teachers Association (MSTA) was in town this week for the grand opening of the new Southeast MSTA Center.

Frances Phillips, director of the local office, said, "We used this opportunity to welcome MSTA to Dexter." She said she was pleased that city officials and citizens stopped by to say hello.

About 44,000 teachers throughout the state belong to the organization.

"Our goal is to work with area educators," she said.

DOUBLE DELIVERY

The daughter, Kathleen Curran, 20, won when her son, Erick, arrived at 1:11 a.m. Then at 11:07 p.m. the same day, the mother, Zella Peterson, 39, delivered a new son of her own, Michael.

Educators chat

AMERICAN LEGION COTTON CARNIVAL

Entries are solicited from Schools, Business, Commercial and Agri Groups, Service Clubs, and from organizations and groups having floats of a comic theme for the big parade to be held on Saturday Morning, Sept. 25th beginning at 10:30, STARTS PROMPTLY. In case of rain rescheduled for 2 p.m. The entrance of unsolicited and non-decorated equipment or vehicles is not desired.

There will be four (4) Prize Award Classes - $150.00, $125.00, $75.00 and $50.00. Decision of judges will be final.

All entries must be in the hands of the Parade Chairman W. B. Pinnell on or before September 21, 1976.

All floats and entries shall be physically identified as to name of participating group to be eligible for any prize. Floats or entries do not necessarily have to portray the Cotton Carnival theme. However, every possible reference to the Cotton and its uses will naturally publicize one of SEMO's top products and industries.

All floats should be motor driven or motor drawn. Floats will be judged on originality, design, and attractiveness. Nothing shall be thrown or distributed from any vehicle within the parade.

All entries shall assemble North of Tanner Street on North Ranney Street not later than 9:45 AM, on the morning of September 25. Positions in the parade will be designated by the Parade Marshal and announced thru courtesy of The Daily Standard, prior to September 23.

Mailbox

Dear Editor,

This September a neighbor will be coming to your door and asking for a contribution for the mentally ill and emotionally disturbed.

By giving what we each can afford, our community can proudly join forces with the Mental Health Association in Missouri and work to fight mental illness.

The need is tremendous.

—One out of ten people need help sometime in their life.

— 50 per cent of all hospital beds in this country are occupied by people with mental or emotional problems.

— Children are as likely as adults to be emotionally disturbed.

So please help by contributing generously when your neighbor asks for a donation for mental health.

Cordially,
Mrs. Don Lancaster
Bellringer Chairperson

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Baseball clown Max Patkin says there's a renewed interest in minor league ball, especially when he puts on his pantomime act. He recently played before 4,200 fans in Norfolk, Va., during an International League game.

MSTA Center opens

DEXTER — Dr. J. A. Kinder of Columbia, executive secretary of Missouri State Teachers Association (MSTA) was in town this week for the grand opening of the new Southeast MSTA Center.

Frances Phillips, director of the local office, said, "We used this opportunity to welcome MSTA to Dexter." She said she was pleased that city officials and citizens stopped by to say hello.

About 44,000 teachers throughout the state belong to the organization.

"Our goal is to work with area educators," she said.

DOUBLE DELIVERY

The daughter, Kathleen Curran, 20, won when her son, Erick, arrived at 1:11 a.m. Then at 11:07 p.m. the same day, the mother, Zella Peterson, 39, delivered a new son of her own, Michael.

Educators chat

Dear Editor,

This September a neighbor will be coming to your door and asking for a contribution for the mentally ill and emotionally disturbed.

By giving what we each can afford, our community can proudly join forces with the Mental Health Association in Missouri and work to fight mental illness.

The need is tremendous.

—One out of ten people need help sometime in their life.

— 50 per cent of all hospital beds in this country are occupied by people with mental or emotional problems.

— Children are as likely as adults to be emotionally disturbed.

So please help by contributing generously when your neighbor asks for a donation for mental health.

Cordially,
Mrs. Don Lancaster

Agent of the year

Chandos McRill, 555 Park Ave., local agent for the Frontier Insurance Co., headquartered in Jefferson City, was named by Frontier as the outstanding agent for 1975. McRill received recognition for service and production and was cited for this accomplishment in a national insurance publication, The Insurance Salesman.

Smith is appointed assistant manager for Moore's Lumber

Moore's Lumber & Building Materials, headquartered in Roanoke, Va., announces the appointment of George M. Smith to the position of assistant branch manager of its retail store and yard located on Highway 62 East at the Interstate 55 interchange.

The new promotion for Smith, effective immediately, was made public by Moore's senior vice president and general manager Edwin M. Savage and Mid-Ohio regional manager Robert Kelly.

Smith has been employed by Moore's since entering the company as a warehouseman at the Sikeston store on April 13, 1970. Since March 22, 1971, Smith has served alternately in consumer and contractor sales before being promoted to his present post.

A native of Sikeston, Smith and his wife Barbara make their home at 220 Harry St. Smith attended Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau, where he majored in drafting. He is an active member of the Eagles Club.

Moore's 74 lumber and building material outlets are established in 11 states from Missouri to Connecticut. In addition to the Sikeston branch, there are Moore's stores in Connecticut, Maryland, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia, with more in the planning stage.

Moore's is a division of the Evans Prdocuts Co. (NYSE and PSE), with headquarters in Portland, Ore. Evans is a leading retailer of building materials, a producer of precut homes, a manufacturer of building products and speciality metal products and a major manufacturer and lessor of railcars and truck trailers.

C.I.T. manager to attend regional managers meeting

R. L. George, manager of the CIT Financial Services office at 155 Kingsway Plaza, will attend a regional meeting of managers and supervisors Sept. 10-12 in Memphis, Tenn. The meeting will be held at the Holiday Inn University.

He will join nearly 100 company management personnel from 60 cities in Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, Missouri and Tennessee attending a three-day conference conducted by M. C. Plunk, Jr., vice president and Memphis region manager.

The meeting is being held to provide company management personnel an up-to-date look at company operations, to increase managerial efficiency and to encourage an idea exchange.

CIT Financial Services, with a nationwide network of more than 830 branches, offers personal loans, second mortgage homeowner loans, home improvement loans and the financing of mobile homes and recreational vehicles.

It also finances and leases industrial and business equipment and automotive fleets, and is an operating company of CIT. Financial Corp. With assets of more than $7 billion, CIT is one of the nation's largest multi-line financial services organizations.

Agency provides help for consumers

By ALFRED C. SIKES
Director of
consumer affairs

JEFFERSON CITY— In its first two years in operation the Office of Consumer Services in the Department of Consumer Affairs handled 1,164 complaint and information requests, saving consumers about $18,000 through refunds, services and merchandise.

The office became one of few complaint handling agencies in the state when state government was reorganized in 1974. Now complaints concerning everything from a broken can opener to a high-interest loan reach the office from people all over the state.

The most frequent type of complaint received during those two years concerned general business practices, such as a person who was not satisfied with the service provided on a product after it was purchased. Other frequent complaints concerned financial transactions, automobile purchase and repair, insurance, housing, utilities, mail orders and appliances.

A man from Columbia couldn't get the landlord to return his rental deposit after leaving the apartment in good condition. A woman in Cape Girardeau was told she had to purchase credit life insurance in order to obtain a loan. A woman from Vienna hadn't received the clothing she ordered several weeks before through the mail.

What can the office do about such complaints? A complaint that can be handled by the office is requested in writing to help clarify the problem. It is then sent to the other party, usually a business, with a request for its position in the matter. At times the business complies immediately with the complainant's request. Other times the business may dispute certain claims made by the customre.

The office then tries to determine what a reasonable resolution would be. Sometimes the complaint is unjustified; at other times the business is requested to comply with the demands; sometimes a compromise is reached between the parties. The office also often refers complaints to a more appropriate agency or suggests that complainants acquire legal advice.

Before it can help, however, the office requests that the consumer take these steps:

1. First, he or she should attempt to resolve the complaint on a reasonable basis with the other party involved.

2. If that fails, the complainant should write a brief, accurate letter that tells why he or she is complaining, who was contacted and what results are sought. That letter should be sent to a top management person in the organization with which the dispute rests.

3. If that fails, the complainant should write to a consumer agency such as the Better Business Bureau or this department, detailing the complaint. With the letter he or she should send copies of other correspondence, agreements, warranties, etc., that support the complaint. Originals should not be sent.

4. If that agency cannot help because it may lack the authority, a person still can pursue the complaint in court. A Small Claims Court system recently went into effect in Missouri allowing persons with claims less than $500 to pursue their disputes quickly, easily and cheaply in court.

For more informatio, contact the Department of Consumer Affairs, P.O. Box 1157, Jefferson City, Mo., 65101

Cal Smith

One of the top recording artists on MCA Records, Smith is a native of Gans, Okla., and is best known for his recording of "Country Bumpkin", which receive song of the year and record of the year awards. Smith was also named most promising male vocalist in 1968.

Scheduled to give two performances at the Bottheel Jamboree, one at 6:30 p.m. and the other at 9:30 p.m., Smith brings his band, The Country Bumpkins, with him to the show.

Some of the other records by Cal Smith include "The Lord Knows I'm Drinking," "I've Found Someone of My Own," "Atlanta, Ga.," "Drinking Champagne," "It's Time to Pay the Fiddler," and "She Talked Alot About Texas."

IRS publishes new tax booklet

ST. LOUIS — A new guide for the reporting of unrelated business income by religious, philanthropic and other tax-exempt organizations is available from the Internal Revenue Service.

IRS Publication 598, "Taxes on Unrelated Business Income of Exempt Organizations", may be obtained from the IRS offices in St. Louis and Kansas City. The toll-free numbers are 474-0350 in the Kansas City area, 342-1040 in the St. Louis area and (800) 392-4200 for other residents of Missouri.

Although exempt organizations are not subject to taxes on income from business activities related to their tax-exempt purposes, they may be liable for income taxes on unrelated business activities and be required to file form 990-T, Exempt Organization Business Income Tax Return.

Publication 598 covers rates and computation of tax, due dates for filing and examples of unrelated business income.

Retail sales slow, uneasiness grows

By CROCKETT SCOTT

"A good deal of uneasiness now exists that the economic advance may be tending to stall rather than merely to slow," commented Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. the other day.

"Most worrisome in this regard," says the New York bank," is the puzzling failure of retain sales to grow in line with income expansion. For the month of July, the seasonally adjusted dollar total of retail trade, according to preliminary estimates, was no higher than it had been in March, with most major durable and nondurable lines moving slowly."

Morgan Guaranty notes further that "the nominal dollar totals for retail sales understate the actual degree of softness that exists because the prices of retail goods have continued to move higher.

" 'Deflated' retail sales probably declined at an annual rate of 5 per cent to 6 per cent between March and July. This is not easy to reconcile with a continuing climb in personal income that has exceeded the inflation rate, nor with the improved debt and wealth positions of consumers."

The stock market apparently has been reacting much as Morgan Guaranty, with the Dow Jones Industrials unable to hold after reaching up around the 1,000 mark a few weeks ago.

Many individual stocks not in the Dow Jones group slipped a good deal further than most of the latter.

Typical of the slide is Teledyne, closing out the week ended Aug. 27 at 67½ -- after rising to 80 a few weeks ago.

General Motors is another, easing from the low 70's tothe65-66 area — in the face of highly bullish sales reports on new cars.

A St. Louis Securities and Exchange Commission — registered security analyst observes that "with all women sewing as much as they are, and making their own clothing, you would expect Simplicity Pattern to rise.

"Not so! It's coming down, too!"

Simplicity Pattern has eased two or three points recently, from the 15-16 level to 12-13.

Lots of money has been made in recent weeks on the short side; short sellers of Teledyne being one group which has fattened up as the stock follows the general pattern to the downside.

Optimists insist that the market is not overpriced and, on a price-earnings basis, they have a point.

The Dow Jones Industrials were selling recently at about 9½ times estimated earnings. And, on past comparisons, this is not high.

Students of the market emphasize, however, that considering the excessive buying and high volume of markets in January, February an March, it is quite logical that there still ae many profit takers.

The early year rise was abnormal in that the market was oversold; and, when it began to move, those thirsting for a profit jumped in to buy all at the same time.

A stock which some Chicago-based SEC-registered security analysts like is McGraw Hill. Presently, it is selling around 15-16, about where it was last spring.

The stock has been paying a dividend since 1937. One of the largest publishers of technical magazines and also engaged in the educational book and film areas, McGraw Hill stands to do well, regardless of the state of the economy. Such is the opinion of analysts who like the equity for the long term.

For one who is patient, many of them believes McGraw Hill could provide a hefty capital gain.

Of course, the stock's boosters point to McGraw Hill's high in the mid-50's a few years ago, and they believe that it will benefit from numerous government programs to subsidize various segments of education.

Greyhound announces new low fares

Greyhound Lines, Inc., the world's largest intercity bus company has opened the fall travel season by announcing a selection of money-saving fares.

Don Kellett, agent for Greyhound at Sikeston Bus Agency, 825 S. Main St., says "We have the whole array of new low fares and a host of other travel plans which have proven over the years that bus travel is the most economical way to travel. We have them all together in a 'Greyhound Savings Booklet', giving the travelers a clear, concise look at the numerous bus fares available, covering families, friends, veterans, clergy, service men and the handicapped--just to name a few.

"And to make it easier to take advantage of Greyhound savings, Greyhound now accepts Bankamericard and Master Charge at many terminals and commission agencies throughout the country," Kellett said.

According to Kellett, some of the most significant savings offered by Greyhound this fall are:

Reduction in cost of Ameripass (Greyhound unlimited travel ticket) — In addition to the savings already available on the 15-day Ameripass for $165, Greyhound will reduce the cost of the one-month Ameripass to $225 and its two-month Ameripass to $325 on Sept. 30.

Reduced round-trip fares — Greyhound has sharply reduced the cost of round-trip tickets between 185 city pairs, making bus travel, in many instances, less than half the cost of regular coach fare.

Take a friend fare — This innovative fare, which is exclusive to Greyhound Lines, applies to two or more people who commence their travel on Tuesday through Thursday of each week, and applies to persons who travel round trip together, where the regular one-way adult fare would be $10 or more. Each pays full fare going, but only half fare on return. Friends, relatives, businessmen and groups all qualify.

Helping hand service for the handicapped—This program provides that a handicapped person who needs assistance boarding, exiting and traveling by Greyhound can take along a companion to provide such assistance at no extra cost.

Savings galore — A potpourri of other savings and benefits of travel by Greyhound: Other reduced fares, group savings, low-cost insurance, clergy discounts, military furlough, slumber stops, liberal stop over privileges without additional cost, liberal bagagge allowances and more.

"These are just some of the many ways you can save when you travel by Greyhound bus. We believe this is the most exciting and economical program that has been offered to the traveling public," Kellett said.

Taypayers ask the IRS

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.)

Q. The company I work for offered its employes a stock purchase plan. We could buy company stock for $20 a share. The market price was $22 a share. I bought some shares and now, two and a half years later, their value has increased to $24 a share and I would like to sell. How do I report the income I received from their sale?

A. Employe stock purchase plans, such as the one you described, follow special rules. Exactly how you report the money you gain depends on how long you have held the stock.

One possibility applies to persons who have held the stock for more than six months, and at least two years from the time the company first offered the plan (or, in technical terms, when the option was granted).

Under these conditions, you must report as ordinary income, the difference between the option price, $20 a share, and the stock's value when the option was granted, $22 a share. The rest of your grain from the stock's sale, is reported as capital gains.

If you do not meet the holding period requirements, the difference between the option price, $20 a share, and the value of the stock when the option is exercised (when you bought it), $24 a share, is ordinary income.

For more information, see Chapter 8 of IRS Publication 17, Your Federal Income Tax. It is available at local IRS offices.

Q. My doctor sent me to a clinic for treatment he-she could not give me in his or her office. The clinic is across town, and the bus or taxi fare to it can be considerable. Can I deduct the fares on my income tax return?

A. Yes. Most transportation expense primarily for medical care qualifies as a medical expense. You may deduct the bus and taxi fare to and from the clinic.

If you drive, you have a choice of deductions. You may deduct the cost of gas, oil and parking fees, or take the standard mileage deduction of seven cents per mile for each mile you drive for the medical care. You may also deduct parking fees and tolls you pay in addition to the seven cents a mile.

These expenses are subject to all the normal limitations for medical expenses. To deduct them, you must itemize them on Schedule A of Form 1040.

Chandos McRill, 555 Park Ave., local agent for the Frontier Insurance Co., headquartered in Jefferson City, was named by Frontier as the outstanding agent for 1975. McRill received recognition for service and production and was cited for this accomplishment in a national insurance publication, The Insurance Salesman.

Smith is appointed assistant manager for Moore's Lumber

Moore's Lumber & Building Materials, headquartered in Roanoke, Va., announces the appointment of George M. Smith to the position of assistant branch manager of its retail store and yard located on Highway 62 East at the Interstate 55 interchange.

The new promotion for Smith, effective immediately, was made public by Moore's senior vice president and general manager Edwin M. Savage and Mid-Ohio regional manager Robert Kelly.

Smith has been employed by Moore's since entering the company as a warehouseman at the Sikeston store on April 13, 1970. Since March 22, 1971, Smith has served alternately in consumer and contractor sales before being promoted to his present post.

A native of Sikeston, Smith and his wife Barbara make their home at 220 Harry St. Smith attended Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau, where he majored in drafting. He is an active member of the Eagles Club.

Moore's 74 lumber and building material outlets are established in 11 states from Missouri to Connecticut. In addition to the Sikeston branch, there are Moore's stores in Connecticut, Maryland, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia, with more in the planning stage.

Moore's is a division of the Evans Prdocuts Co. (NYSE and PSE), with headquarters in Portland, Ore. Evans is a leading retailer of building materials, a producer of precut homes, a manufacturer of building products and speciality metal products and a major manufacturer and lessor of railcars and truck trailers.

C.I.T. manager to attend regional managers meeting

R. L. George, manager of the CIT Financial Services office at 155 Kingsway Plaza, will attend a regional meeting of managers and supervisors Sept. 10-12 in Memphis, Tenn. The meeting will be held at the Holiday Inn University.

He will join nearly 100 company management personnel from 60 cities in Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, Missouri and Tennessee attending a three-day conference conducted by M. C. Plunk, Jr., vice president and Memphis region manager.

The meeting is being held to provide company management personnel an up-to-date look at company operations, to increase managerial efficiency and to encourage an idea exchange.

CIT Financial Services, with a nationwide network of more than 830 branches, offers personal loans, second- mortgage homeowner loans, home improvement loans and the financing of mobile homes and recreational vehicles.

It also finances and leases industrial and business equipment and automotive fleets, and is an operating company of CIT. Financial Corp. With assets of more than $7 billion, CIT is one of the nation's largest multi-line financial services organizations.

Agency provides help for consumers

By ALFRED C. SIKES
Director of
consumer affairs

JEFFERSON CITY— In its first two years in operation the Office of Consumer Services in the Department of Consumer Affairs handled 1,164 complaint and information requests, saving consumers about $18,000 through refunds, services and merchandise.

The office became one of few complaint handling agencies in the state when state government was reorganized in 1974. Now complaints concerning everything from a broken can opener to a high-interest loan reach the office from people all over the state.

The most frequent type of complaint received during those two years concerned general business practices, such as a person who was not satisfied with the service provided on a product after it was purchased. Other frequent complaints concerned financial transactions, automobile purchase and repair, insurance, housing, utilities, mail orders and appliances.

A man from Columbia couldn't get the landlord to return his rental deposit after leaving the apartment in good condition. A woman in Cape Girardeau was told she had to purchase credit life insurance in order to obtain a loan. A woman from Vienna hadn't received the clothing she ordered several weeks before through the mail.

What can the office do about such complaints? A complaint that can be handled by the office is requested in writing to help clarify the problem. It is then sent to the other party, usually a business, with a request for its position in the matter. At times the business complies immediately with the complainant's request. Other times the business may dispute certain claims made by the custome.

The office then tries to determine what a reasonable resolution would be. Sometimes the complaint is unjustified; at other times the business is requested to comply with the demands; sometimes a compromise is reached between the parties. The office also often refers complaints to a more appropriate agency or suggests that complainants acquire legal advice.

Before it can help, however, the office requests that the consumer take these steps:

1. First, he or she should attempt to resolve the complaint on a reasonable basis with the other party involved.
2. If that fails, the complainant should write a brief, accurate letter that tells why he or she is complaining, who was contacted and what results are sought. That letter should be sent to a top management person in the organization with which the dispute rests.
3. If that fails, the complainant should write to a consumer agency such as the Better Business Bureau or this department, detailing the complaint. With the letter he or she should send copies of other correspondence, agreements, warranties, etc., that support the complaint. Originals should not be sent.
4. If that agency cannot help because it may lack the authority, a person still can pursue the complaint in court. A Small Claims Court system recently went into effect in Missouri allowing persons with claims less than $500 to pursue their disputes quickly, easily and cheaply in court.

IRS publishes new tax booklet

ST. LOUIS — A new guide for the reporting of unrelated business income by religious, philanthropic and other tax-exempt organizations is available from the Internal Revenue Service.

IRS Publication 598, "Taxes on Unrelated Business Income of Exempt Organizations", may be obtained from the IRS offices in St. Louis and Kansas City. The toll-free numbers are 474-0350 in the Kansas City area, 342-1040 in the St. Louis area and (800) 392-4200 for other residents of Missouri.

Although exempt organizations are not subject to taxes on income from business activities related to their tax-exempt purposes, they may be liable for income taxes on unrelated business activities and be required to file form 990-T, Exempt Organization Business Income Tax Return.

Publication 598 covers rates and computation of tax, due dates for filing and examples of unrelated business income.

Cal Smith

One of the top recording artists on MCA Records, Smith is a native of Gans, Okla., and is best known for his recording of "Country Bumpkin", which receive song of the year and record of the year awards. Smith was also named most promising male vocalist in 1968.

Scheduled to give two performances at the Bottheel Jamboree, one at 6:30 p.m. and the other at 9:30 p.m., Smith brings his band, The Country Bumpkins, with him to the show.

Some of the other records by Cal Smith include "The Lord Knows I'm Drinking," "I've Found Someone of My Own," "Atlanta, Ga.," "Drinking Champagne," "It's Time to Pay the Fiddler," and "She Talked Alot About Texas."

Retail sales slow, uneasiness grows

By CROCKETT SCOTT

"A good deal of uneasiness now exists that the economic advance may be tending to stall rather than merely to slow," commented Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. the other day.

"Most worrisome in this regard," says the New York bank," is the puzzling failure of retain sales to grow in line with income expansion. For the month of July, the seasonally adjusted dollar total of retail trade, according to preliminary estimates, was no higher than it had been in March, with most major durable and nondurable lines moving slowly."

Morgan Guaranty notes further that "the nominal dollar totals for retail sales understate the actual degree of softness that exists because the prices of retail goods have continued to move higher.

" 'Deflated' retail sales probably declined at an annual rate of 5 per cent to 6 per cent between March and July. This is not easy to reconcile with a continuing climb in personal income that has exceeded the inflation rate, nor with the improved debt and wealth positions of consumers."

The stock market apparently has been reacting much as Morgan Guaranty, with the Dow Jones Industrials unable to hold after reaching up around the 1,000 mark a few weeks ago.

Many individual stocks not in the Dow Jones group slipped a good deal further than most of the latter.

Typical of the slide is Teledyne, closing out the week ended Aug. 27 at 67½ — after rising to 80 a few weeks ago.

A St. Louis Securities and Exchange Commission — registered security analyst observes that "with all women sewing as much as they are, and making their own clothing, you would expect Simplicity Pattern to rise.

"Not so! It's coming down, too!"

Simplicity Pattern has eased two or three points recently, from the 15-16 level to 12-13.

Lots of money has been made in recent weeks on the short side; short sellers of Teledyne being one group which has fattened up as the stock follows the general pattern to the downside.

Optimists insist that the market is not overpriced and, on a price-earnings basis, they have a point.

The Dow Jones Industrials were selling recently at about 9½ times estimated earnings. And, on past comparisons, this is not high.

Students of the market emphasize, however, that considering the excessive buying and high volume of markets in January, February an March, it is quite logical that there still ae many profit takers.

The early year rise was abnormal in that the market was oversold; and, when it began to move, those thirsting for a profit jumped in to buy all at the same time.

A stock which some Chicago-based SEC-registered security analysts like is McGraw Hill. Presently, it is selling around 15-16, about where it was last spring.

The stock has been paying a dividend since 1937. Unfair milk sale act to be in effect Sept. 15

JEFFERSON CITY — Missouri Director of Agriculture James B. Boillot has announced that Rule 2.06 of the Missouri Unfair Milk Sales Practices Act, which governs the extension of credit to milk purchasers (wholesale), will become effective Sept. 15.

The rule was to have become effective Dec. 10, 1975, but legal action taken by the Missouri Hotel and Motel Association stayed that particular section from becoming enforceable. The association dropped its action in early August.

Basically, the rule requires that each processor and distributor bill each customer at least once each month for all milk products delivered and not yet paid for. In addition, each milk product purchaser must make payment in full on each of his outstanding milk product accounts within 25 days of that billing, or be given cash-on-delivery sales only.

The rule also provides that no milk product purchaser shall accept credit terms from any processor or distributor when in arrears on an open account with another processor or distributor.

In announcing the effective date, Boillot said: "The intent of the Unfair Milk Sales Practices Act was to insure equal opportunity among milk producers. Rule 2.06 accomplishes that intent."

Switzerland has four official languages — German, French, Italian and Romansch.

New Madrid farm family

New Madrid area residents, Sam and Marcella Faulkner, center, were presented a 1976 Farm Family Award by Gov. Christopher Bond at Farm Family Day at the Missouri State Fair in Sedalia. Present to congratulate the Faulkners were Jerry Hermann, left, and Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps. The family was chosen to represent New Madrid County by the University of Missouri Extension Service, based on its contribution to agriculture, youth programs, civic activities and local farm organizations.

Southeast dairymen hold meeting

PERRYVILLE — Mid-America Dairymen members in Southeast Missouri area held informational meetings recently at Jackson and Perryville, according to Herbert Kramer of Uniontown, director for Mid-America. Purpose of the meetings was to update members on the services being provided by Mid-Am for consumers and for its members.

Kramer spoke to the members about new products developed by Mid-Am's research. One example was the cheese-flavored coating used by Frito-Lay Co. on their "Nacho Cheese Flavored Doritos".

"Sixty different formulas were tried before the final flavor was accepted," he added.

Something new with the dairy co-op was the establishment of a subsidiary called Mid-Am Farms. Having started in February of this year, Mid-Am Farms provide marketing services for processed milk products to chain stores. The marketing subsidiary buys all the processed milk products from Mid-America Dairymen except the baby food products manufactured for Mead-Johnson.

"The new arrangement is more efficient," Kramer stated, adding, "We can give consumers and Mid-Am members more for their money." Approximately 188 million pounds of milk products have been purchased by Mid-Am Farms from Mid-America members and others to date.

Speaking on milk prices to the farmer, Kramer related that a week ago there was cautious optimism. "But this week, butter is down, cheese prices are under pressure," he said, adding, "It doesn't look as good as expected earlier."

Part of the reason for these pressures is found in a current U.S. Department of Agriculture report. The report states that milk production is up 4.8 per cent in July over July 1975. Production for the United States totaled 71,990 million pounds for the first seven months--3.5 per cent above the same period last year. The July milk-feed ratio was 1.4, slightly below June, but still 4.5 per cent above a year earlier.

Reporting on Mid-Am's membership and assets, Kramer said that the co-op now has 13,000 members in 12 midwestern states. The organization has $140 million in assets with $40 million indebtedness. It is an active organization, constantly seeking to provide more services to the American consumer and its members.

James Dairy takes top honors

PERRYVILLE — James Dairy Farm of Cape Girardeau took top production honors in Southeast Missouri for July, according to records released to the University of Missouri Extension Center in Perryville. The part registered, part grade Holstein herd, with 115 cows, averaged 1.7 pounds butterfat in 45.9 pounds milk. The James herd led 21 other herds, officially supervised by Carl Todt of Sikeston, in the Southeast Missouri Dairy Herd Improvement Association (DHIA).

Second place winner in the association was Joe Kirchdoerfer's registered Jerseys of Cape Girardeau with average daily production of 1.5 pounds butterfat in 33.8 pounds milk. Right on the heels of Kirchdoerfer was Leonard Adam's registered Jerseys of Gordonville with 1.5 pounds butterfat in 33.3 pounds milk, followed nip and tuck by Clem Schabbing's registered Guernseys with 1.5 pounds butterfat in 30.9 pounds milk.

Fifth honors went to Siemers Farms, Inc. of Gordonville with 1.3 pounds butterfat in 36.6 pounds milk.

The Perry County DHIA, supervised by Gary Dobbelare of Perryville, recognized Russell Brandes of Uniontown in the top spot with 1.6 pounds butterfat in 48.4 pounds milk. Second honors were copped by Palmer Fritsche of Perryville with 1.6 pounds butterfat in 44.4 pounds milk, followed closely by Harvey Nischwitz of Gordonville with 1.6 pounds butterfat in 42.2 pounds milk (all averages include dry cows).

Fourth place was taken by Charles Engelhart of Jackson with 1.4 pounds butterfat in 43.1 pounds milk and fifth by Chalmer Voelker's registered Brown Swiss of St. Marys with 1.4 pounds butterfat in 37.8 pounds milk daily.

St. Francois County association, supervised by Althea Elfrink of Bismarck, reports Eugene Kollmeyer of Farmington in first place with 1.4 pounds butterfat in 40.4 pounds milk. Second spot went to Ches-Nan Dairy, also of Farmington, with 1.4 pounds butterfat in 39 pounds milk, followed by Donald and Marilyn King of Farmington with 1.2 pounds butterfat in 33.4 pounds milk.

Fourth place was taken by Counts-Bouchard Dairy of Bonne Terre with 1.1 pounds butterfat in 33.7 pounds milk, and fifth by Govro Bros. of Farmington with 1.1 pounds butterfat in 29.5 pounds milk.

Top cow for the southeast area was Mona, reported by Harvey Nischwitz's herd of Gordonville with 3.5 pounds butterfat in 86.3 pounds milk.

The next three ranking cows in Perry County association were reported by Russell Brandes as follows: No. 218, with 2.9 pounds butterfat in 91.5 pounds milk; No. 132, with 2.6 pounds butterfat in 89 pounds milk; and No. 139, with 2.6 pounds butterfat in 82.8 pounds milk. Fifth ranked cow was No. 337 in the Palmer Fritsche herd, with 2.6 pounds butterfat in 71.8 pounds milk.

The high five cows in the southeast association were reported by James Dairy, as follows: No. 62, with 3.2 pounds butterfat in 79.8 pounds milk; No. 54, with 3 pounds butterfat in 84.1 pounds milk; No. 112, with 3 pounds butterfat in 70.8 pounds milk; No. 24, with 2.9 pounds butterfat in 75.3 pounds milk; and No. 138, with 2.7 pounds butterfat in 78.3 pounds milk.

The five high producers in St. Francois County association were reported by Ches-Nan Dairy, as follows: Patches, with 2.5 pounds butterfat in 66.5 pounds milk; Charcoal, with 2.4 pounds butterfat in 62.5 pounds milk; Becky, with 2.2 pounds butterfat in 71.8 pounds milk; Sunny, with 2.2 pounds butterfat in 70.6 pounds milk; and Polky, with 2.2 pounds butterfat in 65.7 pounds milk.

Musical Gamut

Hundreds of organs built to provide accompaniment to silent films half a century ago remain playable. In addition to imitating all the instruments of a band from drums, trumpets and trombones to violins, clarinets and cymbals, they can duplicate the sounds of a clanging trolley bell, the hooves of galloping horses, birds' songs, surf, a train whistle and an Oriental gong.

Dry weather puts stress on corn, soybeans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hot dry weather continued to put "unrelenting stress" on corn and soybean crops in late August, the Agriculture Department says.

Officials said Tuesday in a weekly weather review that despite further deterioration in some areas, the crop in most of the country was in fair to good condition by Aug. 29.

Soybean fields also have suffered from heat and dry weather, particularly in the dryest areas of the western corn belt.

"The crop needs moisture to fill the pods," the report said. "Soybeans, under severe stress in Minnesota, fill only one or two beans per pod. In Wisconsin, soybean plants yellowed and shed leaves early."

The department will issue updated estimates of 1976 corn and soybean production on Sept. 10.

Farm roundup

'Prices paid' drops for farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's over-all index of prices that farmers pay out as expenses to produce the nation's food and fiber declined slightly last month, but the drop does not necessarily mean that production costs across the board are on a downward tend.

According to the Agriculture Department's "prices paid" index for the month ended Aug. 15, those expenses dropped one-half of 1 per cent. It was one of the few such declines in recent years.

But the report issued Tuesday by the department's Crop Reporting Board showed that prices, goods and services required by farmers still averaged 6 per cent higher than they did on Aug. 15, 1975, and that most of the dip from mid-July was due to lower prices for some things that farmers produce themselves.

For example, the price of livestock feed dropped 4 per cent from July 15, and the average price of "feeder livestock" animals — young cattle, hogs, lambs and baby chicks — dropped 1 per cent from mid-July.

Although there is frequently some "middleman" involvement in the sale of feeder livestock and feed, those items are produced initially by farmers for sale to other producers who need them for their operations. Thus, when USDA reports that the prices of those farm-originated items decline it means that some producers benefit while others are hurt.

Meanwhile, prices of many industrial items needed on the farm continued to be more expensive last month. The index for building and fencing materials, for example, was up 1 per cent from July 15. The index for fuel and other energy, however, held steady during the month.

Although it has sometimes been overlooked, farmers and their families are big consumers as well as agricultural producers. Thus, the costs of supermarket food, clothing and other items needed on the farm as well as in cities play a part in the financial well-being of farmers.

Prices paid by farmers for clothing and textiles rose 1.15 per cent from July 15 to Aug. 15, the report said. The housing price index — including shelter and furnishings — was unchanged from mid-July.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Butter output dipped seasonally from June to July but was up from a year earlier, according to the Agriculture Department.

July butter output was an estimated 72.4 million pounds. That was down 14 per cent from 84 million pounds in June but was up 4 per cent from 69.4 million pounds in July, 1975.

Production of American-type cheese also dropped from June's 207.3 million pounds to 189 million, a 9 per cent decline. But July cheese output gained 19 per cent from 105.2 million pounds in the same month last year.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says that a report due today on poultry slaughter will be delayed until next week because of a computer's indigestion.

In a brief notice to reporters Wednesday, a department official said the delay was necessary because the "commuter ate all the chicken figures and will spit out only feathers. We will let you know which day next week the report will be issued as soon as we find out

Grain sorghum harvest is near

By JOHN D. GARRETT
Area agronomy specialist

BENTON— Harvest of the early planted grain sorghum should begin in about two weeks in Scott County. I have scouted several fields and 90 per cent of the grain is already mature. A few grains are yet to mature on the bottom one-third of the head.

This milo is well out of the midge stage, but is still susceptible to sorghum webworms, corn earworms and armyworms. One of the three, the sorghum webworm is generally the worst pest. Webworms are green to tan in color with four reddish-brown stripes down the back. They are about half an inch long when full-grown and feed on the grain.

If sorghum heads are four inches apart and two worms are present per head, chemical treatment is recommended. Check several heads and take an average count. To control webworms or corn earworms, apply two and two-thirds pints of 60 per cent toxaphene, one quart of 25 per cent phosdrin, or two quarts sevimol, or 2and one-half pounds of 80 per cent sevin per acre.

Do not apply sevimol or sevin within 21 days of harvest. Do not apply phosdrin within 3 days of harvest. Do not use stover for feed and do not apply toxaphene withing 28 days of harvest. Do not ensile toxaphene-treated sorghums, and do not feed toxaphene-treated sorghum forage to dairy animals or animals being finished for slaughter.

Birds are also doing damage in many fields. They peck and knock out the grain in the top of the head. I know of no effective recommended control measure.

Grain sorghum can be harvested at moisture content as high as 26 per cent. However, it is generally not advisable to start harvest this soon, because the crop is difficult and expensive to dry, commonly requiring 60 per cent more time than does corn or similar moisture content. In the event birds are doing a lot of damage, it will be advisable to harvest as soon as grain is mature.

If the grain is mature and the leaves, weeds and grasses are still green, you may want to consider dessication. Grain that has turned color and begun to harden will run about 18 - 20 per cent moisture. This is about the earliest time to start combining.

Sodium chlorate is registered again this year as a desiccant for use on grain sorghum. Our suggestion is to use the material formulated in either a two or three-pound per gallon product. Most brands will include a fire inhibitor for safe application. Apply at a maximum rate of six pounds per acre. This will be two to three gallons per acre in five to ten gallons of water.

Research at the Delta Center indicates that a desiccant does not hasten maturity of grain, but does increase harvesting efficiency and lowers moisture of weeds and grasses. Grain sorghum tends to dry rather slowly in the field and reabsorbs water during rainy, humid periods. Plants will often continue to grow until frost.

Application of a desiccant will kill the plant and stop growth. Normally, grain sorghum will be ready for harvest seven to 14 days after it has been desiccated. Moisture content of grain should be between 14.5 and 16.5 per cent.

Grain sorghum following wheat is still susceptible to midge damage, so keep fields scouted until grain is fully pollinated. Midge are present in most fields and a few fields are being sprayed.

Unemployment, inflation rate debated

NEW YORK (AP) — The question of just how low we can push unemployment before producing an unacceptable rate of inflation is becoming one of the overriding issues of the debate between Democrats and Republicans.

Both agree that there is a limit. Both agree that there comes a point beyond which the only workers remaining are those of low producitivity, and the only available plant capacity is of the same marginal quality.

Nobody seems able to demonstrate at what point the inflationary line is crossed. Four per cent? Six per cent? The answer, so important in terms of prices and jobs, is debatable, and probably will remain so in view of the current poor state of our knowledge.

Not only is there considerable question about the real rate of unemployment — some say the statistics overstate the case, some maintain it understates — but there is uncertainty also about the level of available plant capacity.

The latter measurement, less well known to the general public than the jobless rate, is devised to provide federal and private officials with an understanding of how near capacity is the nation's industrial machinery.

To encourage further production when plant utilization is near capacity is to invite shortages and inflation. To attempt to curtail plant expansion when more space is needed also flirts with those maladies.

Are we sure, therefore, that we know when we are nearing capacity? No, we are not.

Several years ago Rinfret Associates, a consulting organization, began questioning the figures, partly because some customers maintained the figures were wrong, partly because their own surveys were in disagreement.

The matter was brought to the attention of the Fed, to the secretary of commerce and to other public officials. The Fed's figures showed there was a lot more capacity to be used than really existed, said Pierre Rinfret.

The General Accounting Office began an investigation into the manner in which the Fed and private concerns measured capacity because, inevitably, wrong figures mean wrong policy.

On June 26, 1976, a governor of the Federal Reserve System, Henry C. Wallich, conceded in a speech before the Western Economic Association that a review of the figures showed that indeed they were wrong.

"Thus it happened that in 1973," said Wallich, "when the Federal Reserve and McGraw indexes (McGraw-Hill) still seemed to signal ample capacity in most lines, we were, in fact, experiencing severe bottlenecks and were very much surprised thereby ..."

If the Fed had known the true situation, in all probability the nation's monetary policy and private investment strategies would have been changed, and the inflation-recession that followed might have been muted.

Disiccants usage explained

By THOMAS BROWN
Area agronomy specialist

BLOOMFIELD — Several Stoddard County farmers are asking for information pertaining to the use of desiccants in grain sorghum. Most of these questions are being asked because of the fact that grain sorghum is lodging in several fields throughout the county.

Several farmers apparently think that the use of a crop desiccant will result in more rapid drying of the grain which, in turn, will facilitate earlier crop harvest. This is not the case. A desiccant will hasten the drying of weeds and stems and leaves of sorghum plants. It will not hasten grain drying to any significant extent.

Grain sorghum reaches maturity by the time the moisture content of the grain gets down to 30 per cent. The crop can be desiccated any time after the moisture content reaches this level without any yield loss.

Sodium chlorate is the only chemical recommended for use as a crop desiccant on grain sorghum at this time. Use sodium chlorate which contains a fire retardant as this chemical can be very dangerous without it.

It should be applied at the rate of 4.5 to six pounds of active ingredient in at least five gallons of total spray solution per acre when applied by airplane or in 20 to 30 gallons per acre when ground spray equipment is used. Use the lower application rate when weather conditions are favorable for desiccation.

Conditions that favor good desiccation are adequate soil moisture, high humidity and low wind veolcity. Do not apply during windy weather as spray drift can injure susceptible crops growing in adjacent areas. Follow application suggestions found on the container label very closely when applying this chemical. Plan to harvest sorghum seven to 10 days following treatment.

Do not graze treated fields or feed forage on residual seeds within 14 days of application.

Agronomy Day is set for Sept. 9

COLUMBIA — Available moisture, the topic most on the minds of Missouri farmers this summer, will be thoroughly discussed by experts Thursday during the Agronomy Day program at the University of Missouri-Columbia's Agronomy Research Center.

Phillip Stryker, new superintendent of the Center, says UMC researchers and extension specialists will give reports on these crop-moisture topics:

Costs and water needs for irrigation; irrigation timing and crop response; available moisture in a soil profile; minimum tillage; double cropping; forage fertilization and growth patterns; foliar fertilization and disease control of soybeans; and best herbicides for weed control.

Field day tours will begin every 15 minutes from 7 to 11:30 a.m. at the Agronomy Research Center, located six miles east of town off Route WW. Lunch will be available from the UMC Agronomy Club.

Roof replacement booklet released

PUEBLO, Colo. — If your roof is leaking, it's not only a pain in the neck, but an unwelcome expense to boot. If the repairs are fairly minor though, you can do them yourself and save money. And, the sooner the better, before the leak does serious damage.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has a booklet that tells you how to do these repairs. It also gives the pros and cons of various roofing materials. For your copy of Building and Replacing Roofs, send 45 cents to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 47, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Just as soon as you see a wet spot on the wall or ceiling, inspect the roof to find the cause. The location of the spot may indicate trouble. If it's near a chimney or exterior wall, look for defective or narrow flashing or loose mortar joints.

When you replace missing shingles, use the same kind or a piece of rust resistant metal. In an emergency, make a temporary repair with metal cut from a tin can. If you use metal, paint it on both sides. Slip it under the shingle in the course above. Be careful not to dislodge the shingles.

On metal roofing, close small holes in steel or tin roofing with a drop of solder. Solder a patch of the same kind of metal over large holes. If you don't have soldering tools handy, seal small holes with elastic roofer's cement. Paste a piece of canvas over large holes, using paint as the adhesive. Apply several coats of paint over the patch.

To close small holes in aluminum roofing, use a sheet-metal screw and neoprene washer or with an aluminum-pigmented caulking compound Holes up to ¾ inch in diameter can be closed also with cold solder. Holes over ½ inch in diameter should be covered with an aluminum patch.

Building and Replacing Roofs is one of over 250 selected federal consumer publications listed in the fall edition of the catalog, Consumer Information. Published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the General Services Administration, the free catalog is available by writing Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Wages show increase April- June

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wages increased an average of 1.7 per cent across the nation from April through June, the government says.

That was a drop from the 1.9 per cent wage increase in the year's first quarter, the Labor Department said Tuesday.

Its wage index for the second quarter showed:

—Pay for professional and technical workers rose 1.1 per cent, after a 1.4 per cent increase in the first quarter.

—Pay for clerical workers increased 1.3 per cent, after a 2.2 per cent climb in the first quarter.

—Pay for transport equipment workers jumped 4.5 per cent, primarily due to a new contract for Teamsters Union members. Their pay had increased 1.2 per cent during the previous quarter.

—Pay for service and managerial occupations went up 3.3 and 2.1 per cent respectively.

Department officials compare the index, published for the first time in June, to the widely used consumer price index that reflects changing prices.

'Ugly man' contest is scheduled

MEMPHIS — An "Ugly Man" contest will be held to select an individual for a series of television commercials and newspaper advertisements sponsored jointly by the Monroe Auto Equipment Co. of Monroe, Mich., and PIP Advertising Agency of Memphis.

The contest winner will be featured as "Mr. Tightwad" in an upcoming ad campaign for automobile parts and will receive $500 and all expense paid trips to Memphis for taping the commercials. The person nominating the winner will also receive a cash award.

The contest will be promoted through Parts Plus Auto Parts stores and participating service dealers, service stations, garages and automobile dealers. All entries must be submitted on official entry blanks available at participating outlets, and applicants and nominees should be at least 18 years old.

"Persons nominated need not be particularly unattractive as the person selected will be called Mr. Tightwad, not Mr. Ugly," said Robert Winkelman of PIP Advertising.

"With makeup we can make any man as ugly or as handsome as we want them....But in calling it the Ugly Man Contest we see it as an opportunity for people to get the last laugh on their friends and hopefully a means of arousing local participation," stated Winkelman.

The contest will continue through October, with the winner being announced in November. Taping of the commercials, which will appear in this area, will commence shortly thereafter.

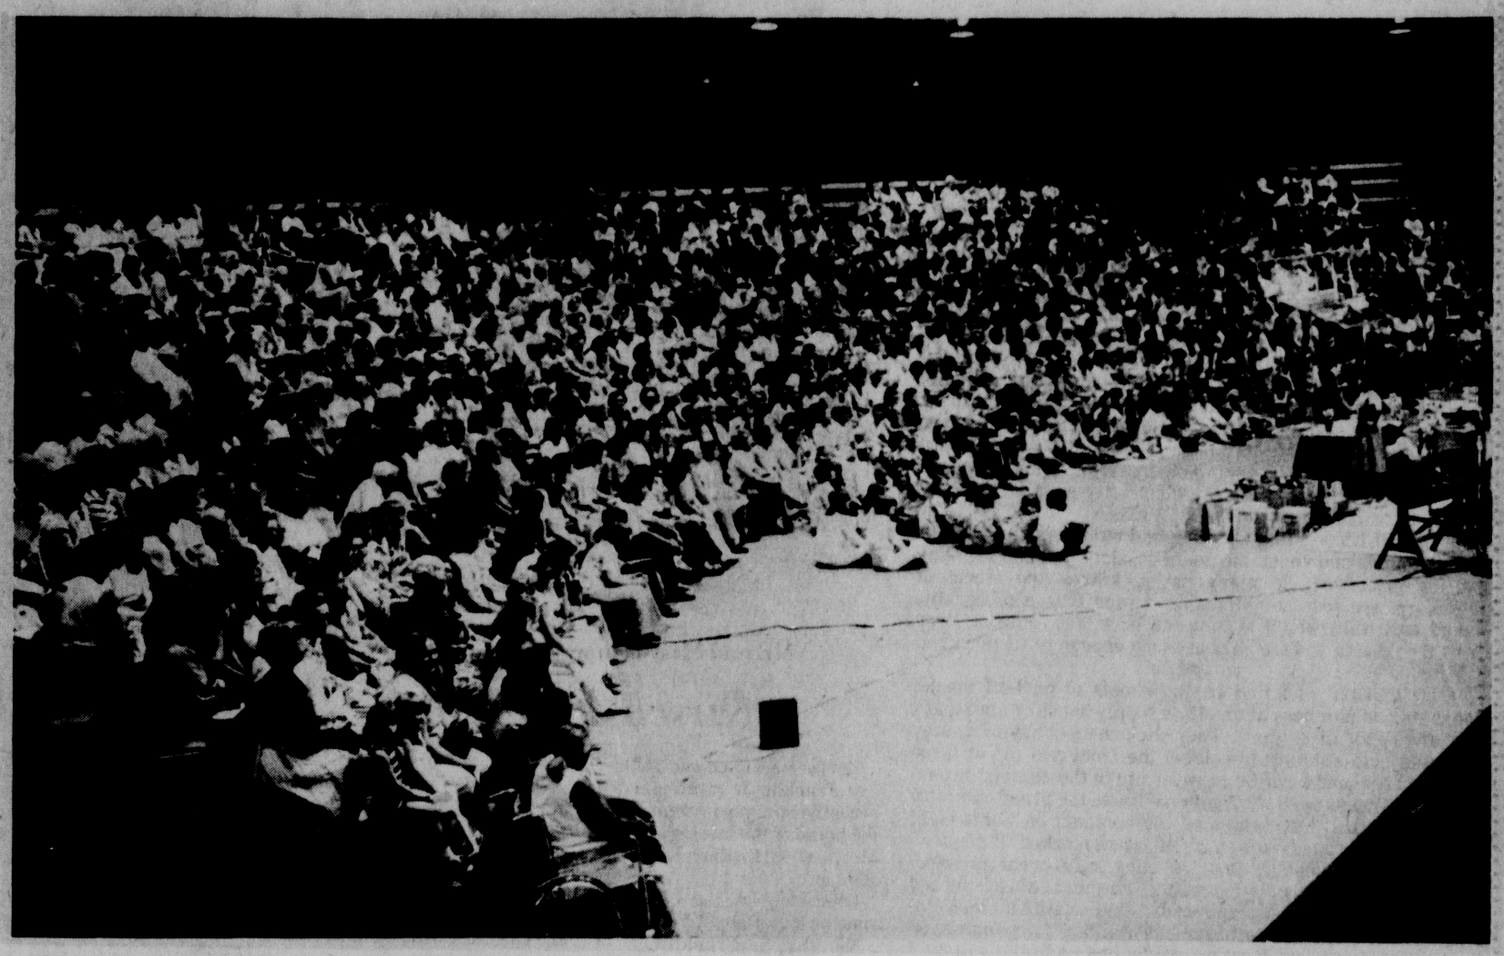
Guess who came to dinner?

2nd annual Southern Kitchens Cooking School

Pat Pittman of Dallas, Tex., a home economist for Southern Kitchens Cooking School, explains a recipe to the crowd at Thursday night's cooking school at the Sikeston High School Field House. A mirror hanging over the demonstration table reflected the cook's movements to the crowd.



Audience members were given an opportunity to sample some of th dishes, and others won some of the food prepared on stage by the cooks. Dishes prepared varied from main dish meats to rich desserts. The cooking school was sponsored by Progessive Farmer Magazine and the Sikeston Daily Standard.

Gail Ligon, the other half of the cooking school's cooking team, hails from Dallas, Tex. and does free lance work as a home economist. Preparing the dishes for the school involved the use of microwave ovens, woks and carefully prepared recipes.

Tips for making feather comforter

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I have some goose down and would like some pointers on how to make an attractive feather comforter. What sort of material should I use? — ALICE.

DEAR ALICE — I am sure you will be getting many suggestions from readers who have made such comforters. It would seem that the fabric used for the lining should be very closely woven and sturdy, like ticking, so the feathers cannot work through it. The top cover could be most any fabric that goes well in your room, but I would not select one that was slick and silky, as it would be so hard to keep on the bed. The comforter would have to be tacked through, at frequent intervals, so the feathers do not bunch to one side or one end. Such tacking could be made with pretty knitting wool and have a bow tied at each place it is tacked. This would add to the overall appearance of the comforter. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — When invited to a bridal shower, it is sometimes a problem knowing what to take. I have made a list of things not usually received and would like to share it with the other readers. My list contains a paring knife, measuring spoons, spatula, potato peeler, rolling pin, potato masher, tongs, baster, slotted spoon, hand egg beater, tea strainer, pizza cutter, bottle brush, napkin holder, large fork and a hand can opener to have in case the electricity goes off. All are needed items for a kitchen. — BEVERLY.

DEAR POLLY — I find plastic bread wrappers are ideal for coffee grounds and vegetable peelings, since you can see what is being discarded. So many paring knives and pieces of silverware are lost in newspaper wraps that also become soaked and mildewed and have an odor, too. Plastic wrap keeps the odor in and the bags are long enough to tie in a knot. — MRS. D.P.

DEAR POLLY — I find buying sheets of peel-off plastic alphabets and numbers at an office supply house or stationary store are a good investment. They stick on most anything, stay there and help simplify life. label the front and top of those two and three pound coffee cans for use in the camper or pantry so you always open the right one. Label the brand on pretty decanter bottles. Put names or the contents on lightweight paste board storage boxes on a shelf. One marked "Laundry" goes into the laundromat when traveling and is great for returning the folded clean clothes to the camper. Label fruit and spice jars for cleaner cupboards. The mailman also appreciates all household names on the mailbox. Label names on children's toys and drawers or maybe just an initial will do. I use the point to my seam ripper when I want to remove such small letters. — B.J.W.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with parents who take their children shopping and then dump them off in the toy department while they shop in other parts of the store. The children often tear the plastic coverings off the toys. Many of them are then so soiled and damaged that the store has to sell them at a loss, and in the long run such things cause other consumers to have to pay more. — L.B.

DEAR POLLY — Even in the sweltering summer heat I am wrapping Christmas gifts, or I might say half wrapping them. All year long when I hear someone express a desire or need for something or I find an especially good bargain that I think would please someone I buy it. I put it in a gift box and wrap in newsprint paper gotten from our newspaper office at a reasonable price. I find this paper has many uses. Each such package is numbered and I also keep a very personal notebook wherein (among other goodies) I write the number of the package, the name of the person to whom it is to be given and a brief coded (spelled backwards perhaps) or short handwritten note saying what is in it. These are stored in a cupboard, basement or garage until around the first of December.

At that time we have a family gift wrapping party and varieties of wrappings, bows, stickers, old greeting cards, clippings of pictured clever gift wraps, etc., are all provided. All these boxes in newsprint are brought out and everyone sees who can come up with the cleverest, prettiest or most traditional looking wrapping. A small number is taped on each gift and prizes are given for the best wrapping in each category. All are placed under the tree and no one knows whose gift he or she has wrapped. Each day I add the proper name tags to one or two of the gifts. The family enjoys all of this immensely and some real masterpieces emerge. This way no one person is burdened with wrapping most of the gifts and there is a family togetherness and tradition. It makes Christmas spread through the entire year. Hope others may enjoy doing this, too. — JOYCE.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Lee Franklin Jr.

Kirsch-Franklin

Karla Sue Kirsch and Tommy Lee Franklin Jr. were married recently in a yard ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Kirsch of Benton.

Tommy Franklin of Charleston and Mrs. Jean Parton of Wichita, Kan., are the parents of the groom.

Mrs. Jeanne Essner of Benton was maid of honor at the Aug. 21 ceremony. The groom chose Charles Butler of Wyatt as his best man.

The bride wore a cotton muslin dress with capped sleeves, a V neckline and a wide waistband which tied at the back. The dress was accented with eyelet embroidered lace around the sleeves and neckline. She carried a bouquet of daisies and straw flowers.

After a short wedding trip, the couple returned to their home at Benton Route One.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Tanner

Walker-Tanner

CHARLESTON — Bridges Methodist Church at Charleston Route One, was the setting for the wedding of Robin Ann Walker and Gregory Lynn Tanner.

Officiating at the ceremony was the Rev. Jim Norris of East Prairie.

Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Walker of Bertrand Route One are the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Gene Tanner of Sikeston are parents of the groom.

The bride's sister, Donna Walker, made the bridal gown. It was made of white satinette with an overlaid skirt of chiffon. It had a modified scalloped neckline.

Lace edged the neck, cuffs and hem with a band of lace around the arm and waist. The veil was of chiffon and was trimmed with lace.

Janie Lynn Ezzell of Bertrand was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Melinda Patton of Charleston, Jill Heckert of Bertrand and Pam Walker of Mayfield, Ky.

Larry Tanner of Chaffee, brother of the groom, was best man. The groomsmen were Gary Fakes, Ken Harbin and Perry Jolliff of Sikeston.

The reception was held at the church.

Mrs. Tanner is a 1975 graduate of Charleston High School and attended Murray State University at Murray, Ky. The groom graduated from Sikeston High School in 1971 and attended Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau. He is employed at Radio Shack of Sikeston.

The couple lives at 1913 Indiana St.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sexton Jr.

Lackey-Sexton

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Lackey of Matthews Route One are the parents of the bride. The groom's parents are Mrs. Delores Norman of Sikeston and Ralph L. Sexton Sr. of Matthews.

A gown featuring a high-fitted bodice with a sweetheart neckline and an A-line skirt was made and worn by the bride. Chantilly lace covered the bodice and lower sleeve. Lace also accented the chapel train. Her three-tiered veil of English illusion was caught up in a Camelot cap of matching lace and pearls.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Fran Tadlock of Granite City, Ill. was maid of honor. Mrs. Diane Pearson of Sikeston, the groom's sister, served as bridesmaid and Paulisa Tadlock of Granite City, Ill., niece of the bride, was flower girl.

Best man was Bill Sexton of Matthews, brother of the groom. Danny Hays of Sikeston served as groomsman and Blake Pearson of Sikeston, the groom's nephew, was ring bearer.

Candles were lit by James Benson of Granite City, Ill., brother of the bride. He also served as usher.

Music for the ceremony was provided by Mark McDonald, Mrs. Anniese Sexton, Mrs. Paula Moore, Fred Daniels and Rick Love.

Following the wedding, a reception was held in the church Fellowship Hall with Sherry Johnson and Mrs. Anniese Sexton serving. Presiding over the guest book was Mrs. Debbie Gaylord of Dexter, step-sister of the groom.

The bride, a 1973 graduate of Matthews High School, is employed as a receptionist at the Sikeston Convalescent Center. Sexton, who is also a 1973 graduate of Matthews High School, is a hair stylist.

Ship in top shape after 36 years at lake's bottom

By BRENDAN RILEY
Associated Press Writer

GLENBROOK, Nev. (AP) — The steamer Tahoe, largest vessel ever to ply Lake Tahoe's icy waters, lies a half mile offshore here in 370 feet of water — in near-perfect shape despite the 36-year span since she was deliberately scuttled.

Talk of raising the classic 169-foot lake steamer continues today, as it has since her owner opened the seacocks on the graceful craft rather than see its metal hull cut up for scrap to be sent to Japan.

But costs of raising the ship go up each year. Talk of salvaging what was once the pride of a small fleet of mail and passenger vessels on Tahoe seems to be just that — talk. There's no known serious salvage operation in the works.

The Tahoe can wait. Near-freezing water temperatures and freshness of the water is preserving her wood superstructure. There's apparently no hull rust. Algae don't even grow on the sleek ship. Preservation of the Tahoe in the black depths of the lake can "go on forever," says Bill Bliss, whose grandfather scuttled the ship in 1940 in what Bliss calls an act of "pure sentimentality."

Bliss says the only debris known to have come from the ship is part of the wheelhouse that popped up after the ship slid to her watery grave.

Bliss says the cost of raising the Tahoe has stopped any serious salvage effort. He says that for the money it would take to raise the ship, "I've been told you could build three of them."

The last serious move to raise the Tahoe was made by casino owner Bill Harrah, who located the ship for the first time, in the early 1960s, using closed-circuit underwater television cameras.

But Harrah "found out it was too expensive to raise," says Bliss.

Glen Amundson, on whose barge the camera gear was carried, says the cameras showed the ship to be "as good now as the day it went down. It's in pure water so there's no growth. There's no wave action so there's not even any mud on her."

Amundson says new salvage methods might make it simple and less costly to raise the Tahoe someday. But all the equipment would still have to be transported to this mountain lake — just as the Tahoe was.

The ship was built in San Francisco, disassembled and carted by rail to Glenbrook, where she was rebuilt and launched in 1896.

For years the ship was an important link with the outside world for lake dwellers who had poor roads in summer and virtually no roads when winter storms blanketed the shoreline with deep snow.

The Bliss family originally owned the boat but later sold her. By 1940 she was out of commission and destined for the cutting torch when Bliss' grandfather, also named William, bought her back and scuttled her.

Ann Landers

Neighbor is bad borrower

Dear Ann Landers: I lent my bicycle to a friend(I'll call her Amy). She agreed to pay me 50 cents for every day she kept it. Two days later Amy called and said she didn't think it was worth 50 cents a day but she'd give me a dollar the next time she saw me. I asked her when she was bringing the bike back. She said, "Tomorrow."

Well, the next morning Amy left my bike in the driveway. My mom, who isn't the greatest driver in the world to begin with, ran over it. No I have a piece of junk instead of a bike. Also, it scared the daylights out of Mom. She thought she had hit a person.

When I told Amy what had happened she said she was sorry. I am burned over this because in the past when our dog attacked Amy's dog my folks paid the vet's bill. Also when our dog chewed up Amy's sleeping bag (it had candy in it) my mom bought her a new sleeping bag. Please tell me what you think should be done now because I am -- Bikeless

Dear Bikeless: When a person borrows something he is obligated to return it in the same condition as when borrowed. Amy should not have left the bike in the driveway. In my opinion, a fair compromise would be for Amy to pitch in for half the price of a new bike.

Dear Ann Landers: Two families in our apartment building, each with a boy and a girl, made plans to rent a four-bedroom villa in Acapulco for a week. The daughter of one of the families couldn't go at the last minute and our daughter was invited in her place. The understanding was that she would share the other girl's bedroom and be a companion. Both girls are 16.

We were expected to pay our daughter's plane fare and I insisted that Mr. X keep track of the money spent on her meals so I could reimburse him. (I might add that I would never allow my children's guests to reimburse US for meals.)

When they returned I asked Mr. X how much we owed. He said, "You owe $450. One-eighth of the villa came to $300 and the cost of seven dinners and six lunches was $150."

My husband wrote out a check for $450 without hesitation but we are plenty shocked by the arithmetic. What is your opinion?-- Skunked

Dear Skunked: You should have sat down with Mr. X at the outset and asked exactly how much the trip was going to cost. Open-end financial arrangements with friends are always risky. Invariably somebody ends up feeling skunked. In this case it was you. Consider it tuition in The School of Experience.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I attended a birthday luncheon for a retired businessman. The woman seated at my left criticized the gentleman at my right for eating so rapidly. Several guests heard the remark and were terribly embarrassed as I was. The person who had been put down was visibly uncomfortable and did not respond.

Later I mentioned this incident to my husband. He saw nothing wrong with it. I insist it was rude. What do you think? Second-Guessed

Dear Sec: The only thing wrong with the remark is that it was heard by others. Criticism is best offered privately.

Did you know that hundreds of people choke to death every year because they eat too rapidly and chunks of food become lodged in the throat? A reminder can be an act of kindness-- but it should be done discreetly.

The daughter of one of the families couldn't go at the last minute and our daughter was invited in her place. The understanding was that she would share the other girl's bedroom and be a companion. Both girls are 16.

We were expected to pay our daughter's plane fare and I insisted that Mr. X keep track of the money spent on her meals so I could reimburse him. (I might add that I would never allow my children's guests to reimburse US for meals.)

When they returned I asked Mr. X how much we owed. He said, "You owe $450. One-eighth of the villa came to $300 and the cost of seven dinners and six lunches was $150."

My husband wrote out a check for $450 without hesitation but we are plenty shocked by the arithmetic. What is your opinion? -- Skunked

Dear Skunked: You should have sat down with Mr. X at the outset and asked exactly how much the trip was going to cost. Open-end financial arrangements with friends are always risky. Invariably somebody ends up feeling skunked. In this case it was you. Consider it tuition in The School of Experience.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently I attended a birthday luncheon for a retired businessman. The woman seated at my left criticized the gentleman at my right for eating so rapidly. Several guests heard the remark and were terribly embarrassed as I was. The person who had been put down was visibly uncomfortable and did not respond.

Later I mentioned this incident to my husband. He saw nothing wrong with it. I insist it was rude. What do you think? Second-Guessed

Dear Sec: The only thing wrong with the remark is that it was heard by others. Criticism is best offered privately.

Did you know that hundreds of people choke to death every year because they eat too rapidly and chunks of food become lodged in the throat? A reminder can be an act of kindness-- but it should be done discreetly.

Retirees can enjoy freedom

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Losses occur with normal aging, but positive gains also come. Knowing realities about elderly persons can help you prepare to live during retirement, says Lorene Keeler, who teaches a course on aging at Oklahoma State University.

"Though old age is usually seen as a negative time in life, increased personal freedom is one result of retirement," says the home economics professor.

"A person no longer has to do what someone else commands or to meet urgent demands of the clock. When children leave home, parents no longer have to worry about their son dropping out or their daughter turning on.

"Since a houseful of consumers no longer depends on the aging parents, a smaller income doesn't have to cover so many responsibilities. Though older people have lost clear-cut expectations with retirement, they have the potential gain of freedom," she said.

Mrs. Keeler terms today's elderly people pioneers for a new period of life because they are the first generation where most people live past 65.

"Besides setting examples for those of us coming on, these people are finding new roles and new, satisfying ways to live," she says.

Admitting that losing a spouse can be painful, she says, "Once they have recovered from their grief, people sometimes discover an incredible new life.

"Some long marriages are less than happy, with personalities submerged to meet mate expectations. And a life alone may lead to a new freedom."

Commenting on the harm middle-aged persons can do, Mrs. Keeler says, "Middle-aged persons often decide what is good and not good for older people. And this sometimes causes the older person to become dependent."

She feels older people should have many alternatives to choose from and be free to define what is right for them.

"Experts talk about the 'roleless role' of older persons and imply they are lost when they have no explicit directions for their lives," says Mrs. Keeler.

She encourages the elderly to be active and to speak out in their behalf. "Don't settle for being a second-class citizen."

Seeing an elderly person as sick, feeble or as a nursing home patient is an inaccurate image, even though most people, even the older persons, may have such a mental picture, she points out.

While most people eventually spend some brief time in nursing homes, Mrs. Keeler says, "Only about 5 per cent of all people over 65 live in institutions. And most of these are over 75 years old.

"Most elderly persons not in institutions live in their own homes, usually within weekly visiting distance of relatives. And more than 75 per cent of the elderly living in communities have no chronic health conditions. They are active and mobile."

Since husbands tend to die before their wives, elderly widows total almost four times as many as widowers. Usually these older women live alone, but about 17 per cent live with relatives. And only about 8 per cent of the elderly men live with relatives, according to Mrs. Keeler.

Most of the elderly who live with relatives are over 75 years old and have partial or major limitations of activity and mobility.

About one in five of all persons over 65 years of age do not have families to rely on. For these and others choosing to live alone, housing adequate to their needs is a crucial issue, Mrs. Keeler maintains.

"When you retire, you will probably be active, mobile and living in your own home for several years. Getting ready for retirement and later years should be a lifelong pursuit," advises the professor.

"To make your retirement as rewarding as possible develop hobbies, creative activities or second careers early in life. Retirement can be a rich, rewarding time. It doesn't need to be years of unhappiness."

COTTAGE CHEESE ROLLS

We've never made no-knead rolls that were better than these!

2 packages active dry yeast
½ cup lukewarm water
2 cups creamstyle cottage cheese
¼ cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
2 eggs
4½ cups (about) flour

Sprinkle yeast on lukewarm water; stir to dissolve. Heat cottage cheese until lukewarm. Combine cottage cheese, sugar, salt, baking soda, eggs, yeast and 1 cup flour in bowl. Beat with electric mixer at medium speed until smooth, about 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Or beat with spoon until batter is smooth. Gradually add enough flour to make a soft dough that leaves the sides of the bowl. Place dough in greased bowl; turn over to grease top. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled, about 1½ hours. Turn dough onto lightly floured surface. Divide dough into 24 equal pieces. Shape each piece into a ball. Place 24 balls in 2 greased 9-inch round baking pans. Let rise until doubled, about 45 minutes. Bake in 350-degree oven 20 minutes or until golden brown. Remove from pans; cool on racks. Makes 24 rolls. From Farm Journal's "Country Fair Cookbook" edited by Elise W. Manning (Doubleday).

Decorating Tips

BUDGET DECORATING: BEWARE OF "BARGAINS"

With decorating, as with most anything else, it makes good sense to save money wherever possible. While everyone talks and writes about how to take decorating short cuts by transforming inexpensive old hardwood chests into new ones by refinishing them, or turning a laundry pail into a planter by painting it a bright color, sooner or later there comes a time when most people want to buy something new. And that's the step where most people try to save real money.

Careful shopping and planning are essential if you really want the most for your decorating dollar. And if you shop right, you may indeed find some good buys. But more often than most people care to think, a "bargain" is not what it seems. In fact, some specials and other supposed values are, in the long run, more expensive.

If you're shopping for new furniture, make the most of seasonal sales, but be sure that the store you're buying from is reputable. Check the pieces the store carries during other times of the year, so that when sale time arrives, you can see what merchandise has actually been reduced out of regular stock.

• Be especially careful of manufacturers' close outs and special promotional items. While these groupings are often offered as inducements for retail buyers, it's a good idea to check that quality is up to par.

• Be certain that any potential "bargain" is made of genuine hardwood. Frequently, less expensive but inferior quality pieces are made of materials which imitate the look of wood, but which don't have the strength and beauty of genuine fine furniture woods. Beware of printed wood grains which don't have the depth, and the ability to be repaired that real hardwood does. To tell if you're buying genuine hardwood, look for tags which specify materials and check for a decided repeat grain on the surface of the piece. Since each piece of lumber or veneer is always different, a repeat grain indicates a printed surface.

• For further quality insurance, check that the finish of the furniture is well sanded and evenly applied, that drawers operate without sticking, that the frame is sturdy, and that veneer on the piece is well matched.

Sweater dresses do double duty

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK — (NEA) — You can't say Olga isn't practical. This is how the California intimate apparel designer thought up her Cozy-Top nightgown a while back.

"Women like to read in bed," she explained over the phone, "and most of the time, they seem to be cold around the shoulders."

But they're not cold where they're covered by the blanket. So Olga, whose last name is Erteszek, created a nightgown made of brushed nylon on top and tricot on the bottom. "The tricot was slick and smooth and didn't twist around the body."

Warmth on top, comfort below. A simple and effective notion which women took to gratefully, holding a copy of "The Ghoul from Bensonhurst" up to the reading light.

Now, Olga has tackled the what-can-I-slip-into-to-look-presentable-to-the-pie-eyed-Osborns-who've-dropped-in — and don't-they-know-what-time-it-is? question.

"We don't have a definite name for it yet,' she said. It's not a houserobe, but it can be worn as one; it's not a hostess gown, but it serves as that; it looks like two-pieces, a sweater and skirt, but it's actually one-piece and what it is is Olga's concept of sweater dressing.

It's flattering and warm, she says, "and because the bottom is rigid, it doesn't stretch out of shape, so it can also be worn outside."

The sweater top is 100 per cent orlon, the skirt a combination of polyester, wool and acrylic and the whole thing is machine-washable.

"They'll retail for $60 or $65, depending on the style, and they'll be in the stores in September."

The three styles include a turtleneck sweater with belted skirt in sage or cinnamon, a cardigan top with buttoned-down skirt in sand or sea colors and the V-neck, surplice sweater paired with a side-buttoned skirt in blueberry or mulberry.

So when the Osborns remark, out of their martini haze, "We didn't realize it was so late; you didn't have to dress up for us," you can smile and think, "You should have and I haven't."

Pastor speaks

By ARCHUR C. FULBRIGHT

Dr. Arthur Fulbright

The future of mankind, far from being something already fixed, is undecided, and it is undecided for the important reason that men are free.

Those who believe that there will be a future, but not a Christian future, consider that Christianity is in the same general position in which the religions of ancient Greece stood when the Apostle St. Paul and his little team of Christians visited Mars Hill about 50 A.D. The book of the Acts (New Testament) is clear in the demonstration of what took place in that seemingly futile situation.

In the 17th Century which saw the fierce persecution within the church, driving Hugenots from France, Puritans from England and extreme Protestants from the Rhineland, in reality witnessed events as they strengthened and aided in establishing the church in America. Out of man's darkness God brings light.

Over and over, when death appears to be inevitable, new life emerges, not because of some outside influence, but because of the energy of an inner vitality.

Some of the academic theology which we do have tends to be little more than a succession of fads. People without a sound theology are bound to have a poor one, for theological questions are intrinsically unavoidable.

Looking back

Sikeston receives its first load of cotton

50 years ago
September 5, 1926

Fred Young left Sunday for a few days stay in St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Johnson and daughter, Helen, spent Sunday in Blodgett.

Sikeston received its first load of cotton, Friday when L. C. Foster, who is share cropping with Stanley Hastings on the F. M. Sikes farm, four miles south and four miles east of town, brought in a wagon load weight 1,830 pounds. The load was purchased by the Sikeston Cotton Co., at a price of six and a half cents a pound.

The enrollment in the Sikeston Public Schools for this year will approximate 1,000, according to Supt. Roy V. Ellise. There were 200 enrolled in high school; 86 in grade eight; 80 in grade seven and the remaining 634 in the low six grades.

The Morehouse schools, scheduled to open Tuesday, have been ordered to delay the starting date because a new case of polio, which developed there this week. Dr. S. M. Sarno of Morehouse stated Saturday that Mary Geraldine Stinnett, six year old girl living in Morehouse, had developed infantile paralysis and was taken that day by ambulance to St. Louis City Hospital.

What is believed to be an all time record for cold weather in August was set early Friday and Saturday mornings when the temperature in the Sikeston area dropped to 47 degrees.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Dudley arrived in Sikeston Friday to again make their home. Colonel Dudley had been in the service since December, 1940 and was separated on August 28 at Fort Benning, Ga.

Joe Sanders, who brings his famous Nighthawks orchestra, featuring Gloria Vallaire, soloist, to Sikeston on September 21 for the Cotton Carnival Ball, was born in Thayer, Kas., but raised in Indian territory, which is now Centralia, Okla.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Leslie have moved from their house on Lake street to the Franklin Moore residence on Park avenue.

Women jet pilots' training is set

WILLIAMS AIR FORCE BASE, Ariz. (AP) — Women have been trading in their aprons for attache cases and hard hats for some years, but this fall will be the first time they may don that prestigious green jump suit — the U.S. Air Force-issue flight suit.

With it they'll get extra flight pay and the chance to be the first female Air Force jet pilots to soar into the wild blue yonder.

But it won't be any powder puff derby, say officials at Williams Air Force Base, the site selected by the Air Force to train the nation's first women jet pilots.

They'll be treated exactly like the guys, will have to meet the same standards and do the same work, said Capt. Royetta Marconi, an officer in the base mental health center who has her private pilot's license and has been assigned as liaison officer for the first 10 female pilot trainees.

That liaison post is one of the few special preparations being made at Williams for the female officers. Others, Capt. Marconi said, are cutting flight suits, gloves and helmets down to size, but that's about it.

The first 11-month course will be limited to 10 officers already on active duty, but that restriction will probably be removed later, said Maj. Robert Lake, Williams public information officer.

Another 10 women will begin pilot training Feb. 14, 1977, and six will be accepted for navigator classes in March 1977.

Some of the 30-40 men entering basic flight training currently are active duty officers, Lake said, but many come straight to pilot school from college.

The Air Force move toward full integration of women in the picture began in 1972, when the draft ended and the need for volunteers increased, Lake said. Since then, there have been female airplane mechanics and fuel chiefs, as well as military policewomen, nurses and secretaries.

But never pilots, except during World War II, when the Women's Auxiliary Pilots flew noncombat missions.

"The Navy has been training women pilots for about one year, but only in propeller aircraft," said Capt. Marconi.

"And the Navy women pilots I've talked to all say the same thing: they need to be treated exactly like the guys."

There will be one distinction.

The case of the football fan

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Harvey was such a lover of professional football that he attended all home games and was hoarse all season. In fact, as the vice president of a large corporation, he bought a season pass and took many of his firm's customers to games with him to help him cheer.

The loudest yell he emitted, however, was in his office, when he resigned his position and the president of the corporation wanted him to turn in the football pass along with such other items as the key to the executive washroom.

"You're mad!" roared Harvey. "I won't do it. You can have my life, but you can't have my football pass. It's mine. It was taken out in my name and it's my property. Those passes are tough to get."

"It may have been taken out in your name," answered the president of the corporation, "but it was the firm that paid for it. And the firm paid for it because you were entertaining customers with it. Therefore, it's corporate property and you've got to give it back."

Harvey, however, was more apt to part with his wife than give up the football pass and the dispute ended up in court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make Harvey give up his beloved football pass? This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that although Harvey bought the pass in his own name, since it was paid for by the corporation was was used to entertain corporate customers, Harvey must be deemed to have purchased the pass in behalf of the corporation. Thus, concluded the judge, it belonged to the corporation and he had to give it back.

Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My 10-year-old sister recovered from the 1918 flue. My other sister and I were exposed to it but did not get it. I am 69 years old. Would I be immune to the flue or should I accept the vaccine proposed by President Ford?

DEAR READER — Since it is not definite that you had the flue, and it has been a long time ago, I think you should take the flue shots unless you have a medical condition that your doctor thinks should prohibit it.

In general, older people or those with heart, lung or other serious illnesses should take flue shots whenever any new flue epidemic is in the offing. I think all the debate over the advisability of the crash program for this year's epidemic has obscured the point that thousands of people died with the serious epidemic just last year.

Each time we have a flue epidemic regardless of the type of flue we still lose a large number of people. It is a dangerous disease even with our modern treatment methods. That being the case, I am in favor of all those with any decrease in resistance at all, and perhaps all persons, having the protection they need. A flue shot could save your life. So my advice to everyone who has no medical problem that would rule against it, is to get your flue shots. I'm selfish and want to keep all my readers as long as possible.

To give you more information on these respiratory illnesses I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-1, The Cold, Flue group. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — A friend of mine is continually giving me homemade Italian sausage and telling me it is good for me. This sausage is made with uncooked pork, hot peppers, wine, vinegar, garlic and other ingredients and it is not cooked before eating. Apparently they have been eating it in Italy for centuries.

As I am aware that pork is not always a healthy meat when uncooked, please confirm whether or not the above spices make it safe to eat. It is not smoked sausage either.

DEAR READER — The chief danger is in getting trichinosis, a worm-like infestation of the muscles of your body that results almost exclusively from eating improperly cooked infected pork.

Trichinosis was common in New York until recent years because a principle source of pork for the city was New Jersey, where pigs were fed untreated garbage. This practice has been curtailed and the incidence of trichinosis has decreased.

Pastor speaks

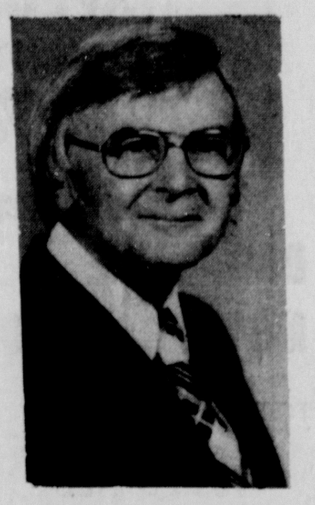
By ARCHUR C. FULBRIGHT



Dr. Arthur Fulbright

The future of mankind, far from being something already fixed, is undecided, and it is undecided for the important reason that men are free.

Those who believe that there will be a future, but not a Christian future, consider that Christianity is in the same general position in which the religions of ancient Greece stood when the Apostle St. Paul and his little team of Christians visited Mars Hill about 50 A.D. The book of the Acts (New Testament) is clear in the demonstration of what took place in that seemingly futile situation.

In the 17th Century which saw the fierce persecution within the church, driving Hugenots from France, Puritans from England and extreme Protestants from the Rhineland, in reality witnessed events as they strengthened and aided in establishing the church in America. Out of man's darkness God brings light.

Over and over, when death appears to be inevitable, new life emerges, not because of some outside influence, but because of the energy of an inner vitality.

Some of the academic theology which we do have tends to be little more than a succession of fads. People without a sound theology are bound to have a poor one, for theological questions are intrinsically unavoidable.

Look what's new at the movies...

You're invited— to dinner and death

The answer, in "diabolical order," is as follows: Eileen Brennan, Truman Capote, James Coco, Peter Falk, Alec Guinness, Elsa Lanchester, David Niven, Peter Sellers, Maggie Smith, Nancy Walker and Estelle Winwood. They all star in Simon's tongue-in-cheek tribute to the great detectives, criminal fiends and hapless victims who've left their blood-stained fingerprints on the silver screen.

Simon's sinister spoof gathers the world's most famous sleuths at a fog-shrouded, mysterious mansion, where eccentric millionaire Lionel Twain (CAPOTE) and his blind butler (GUINNESS) have summoned them for an evening of "dinner and murder."

The mansion, with its vanishing rooms and multitude of bizarre bric-a-brac, was built by production designer Stephen Grimes with the counsel of producer Stark and director Robert Moore. According to Grimes, it is "modeled after the kind of American estates which millionaires, like the Hearsts and Morgans, used to bring over from Europe, stone by stone."

Furnishings for the mansion, from authentic suits of 15th century armor to precious porcelains to razor-sharp swords, were valued at over a quarter of a million dollars. Included are several portraits, their eyes removed to serve as peep-holes, and an oversized moose head, wired for sound, for a scene in which the egocentric Twain mysteriously converses with his assembled guests.

From the Automotive Classics firm in Santa Monica, California, producer Stark and company leased five cars for the various sleuths to drive. Sam Diamond (PETER FALK) and his Girl Friday, Tess Skeffington (EILEEN BRENNAN), drive a 1948 Chevrolet. Dick (DAVID NIVEN) and Dora Charleston (MAGGIE SMITH) and their pet terrier, Myron, are in a classic 1937 silver Packard convertible. Sidney Wang (PETER SELLERS) and his No. 3 adopted son, Willie (RICHARD NARITA), rumble up in a 1941 Ford "woody" station wagon, while Milo Perrier (JAMES COCO) and his chauffeur, Marcel (JAMES CROMWELL), are in a 1945 Citroen. Jessica Marbles (ELSA LANCHESTER) and her nurse, Miss Withers (ESTELLE WINWOOD), arrive in a vintage English taxicab.

When Niven was placed behind the wheel of the Packard, he did an authentic double-take. "Good heavens!" he exclaimed, "It's my old car!" He recalled having purchased the classic convertible from Laurence Olivier for $800 and selling it a few years later for even less.

"Not the wisest move I ever made," admitted Niven on learning that the Packard is now valued at $36,000.

"Murder By Death" is also a treasure trove of special effects. There is fog, rain, thunder and lightning, a bridge that sags, a ceiling that moves downward like a vise, falling swords, gargoyles and statues, a clock with a hand that continually falls off, assorted cobwebs, poisonous gas, fire and a bed in flames and, for good measure, a scorpion.

Unlike the present practice of using real exterior locations, every setting for "Murder By Death," including the tree-lined country road leading to the Twain mansion, was constructed from "scratch" at The Burbank Studios.

Stars going 'write' way

Sir Alec Guinness spent his off-camera hours working on a stage version of the satires of Jonathan Swift, which he plans to present in London. Elsa Lanchester was at work, with co-author Charles Higham, on the biography of her late husband, Charles Laughton, which Doubleday has published this year.

Truman Capote, author of "Breakfast at Tiffany's" and "In Cold Blood," who plays an eccentric millionaire in the film, was enmeshed in his latest book, "Answered Prayers." Meanwhile, David Niven was watching his autobiographical "Bring on the Empty Horses" climb to the top of the best seller lists.

Only Peter Sellers seemed to be on a different wave length. While the others were writing, he was roaming the set, taking photos of his co-stars. As someone pointed out, however, "Peter's pictures are so good they ought to be published!"

You're invited— to dinner and death

The answer, in "diabolical order," is as follows: Eileen Brennan, Truman Capote, James Coco, Peter Falk, Alec Guinness, Elsa Lanchester, David Niven, Peter Sellers, Maggie Smith, Nancy Walker and Estelle Winwood. They all star in Simon's tongue-in-cheek tribute to the great detectives, criminal fiends and hapless victims who've left their blood-stained fingerprints on the silver screen.

Simon's sinister spoof gathers the world's most famous sleuths at a fog-shrouded, mysterious mansion, where eccentric millionaire Lionel Twain (CAPOTE) and his blind butler (GUINNESS) have summoned them for an evening of "dinner and murder."

The mansion, with its vanishing rooms and multitude of bizarre bric-a-brac, was built by production designer Stephen Grimes with the counsel of producer Stark and director Robert Moore. According to Grimes, it is "modeled after the kind of American estates which millionaires, like the Hearsts and Morgans, used to bring over from Europe, stone by stone."

Furnishings for the mansion, from authentic suits of 15th century armor to precious porcelains to razor-sharp swords, were valued at over a quarter of a million dollars. Included are several portraits, their eyes removed to serve as peep-holes, and an oversized moose head, wired for sound, for a scene in which the egocentric Twain mysteriously converses with his assembled guests.

From the Automotive Classics firm in Santa Monica, California, producer Stark and company leased five cars for the various sleuths to drive. Sam Diamond (PETER FALK) and his Girl Friday, Tess Skeffington (EILEEN BRENNAN), drive a 1948 Chevrolet. Dick (DAVID NIVEN) and Dora Charleston (MAGGIE SMITH) and their pet terrier, Myron, are in a classic 1937 silver Packard convertible. Sidney Wang (PETER SELLERS) and his No. 3 adopted son, Willie (RICHARD NARITA), rumble up in a 1941 Ford "woody" station wagon, while Milo Perrier (JAMES COCO) and his chauffeur, Marcel (JAMES CROMWELL), are in a 1945 Citroen. Jessica Marbles (ELSA LANCHESTER) and her nurse, Miss Withers (ESTELLE WINWOOD), arrive in a vintage English taxicab.

When Niven was placed behind the wheel of the Packard, he did an authentic double-take. "Good heavens!" he exclaimed, "It's my old car!" He recalled having purchased the classic convertible from Laurence Olivier for $800 and selling it a few years later for even less.

"Not the wisest move I ever made," admitted Niven on learning that the Packard is now valued at $36,000.

"Murder By Death" is also a treasure trove of special effects. There is fog, rain, thunder and lightning, a bridge that sags, a ceiling that moves downward like a vise, falling swords, gargoyles and statues, a clock with a hand that continually falls off, assorted cobwebs, poisonous gas, fire and a bed in flames and, for good measure, a scorpion.

Unlike the present practice of using real exterior locations, every setting for "Murder By Death," including the tree-lined country road leading to the Twain mansion, was constructed from "scratch" at The Burbank Studios.

Left to right, Jose Flores (as Samuel), Terry Lester (as Jonah) and Jean Marie Hon (as Ruth), along with Mooch the Chimp (Adam), set out on futuristic adventures on "Ark II," new Saturday-morning series which premieres Saturday, Sept. 11 (11:00-11:26 AM, ET) on the CBS Television Network. Hundreds of years in the future, the group sets out to reestablish civilization after an atomic war.

Christmas special stars Perry Como fourth NBC-TV special of 1976 — a Christmas program to be colorcast in December — from Austria.

The one-hour colorcast will be presented under the full sponsorship of the General Telephone & Electronic Corporation (through Doyle Dane Bernbach Inc.), the sponsor of his three other NBC-TV specials, including "Perry Como in Las Vegas," to be colorcast Saturday, Sept. 11 (9-10 p.m. NYT).

The Austrian program will be a co-production effort of Bob Banner Associates and ORF, the National Austrian Television Network, and the Austrian Tourist Bureau. Banner will be executive producer and Steve Pouliot will be producer-director.

Banner and Pouliot will leave the United States July 19 to scout locations and preview talent. Production will start November 8.

"Primary location sites include Vienna and Salzburg," Pouliot said, with additional scenic locales to be determined.

Como's earlier two specials orginated in Hawaii and New Orleans.

Today in U.S. history

Today in History
By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, September 5, the 249th day of 1976. There are 117 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1774, the first Continental Congress assembled at Carpenter's Hall in Philadelphia.

On this date:

In 1670, William Penn was arrested for holding a Quaker meeting in Grace Church in London.

In 1882, members of labor unions held the first Labor Day parade in the United States as 10,000 workmen marched in New York City with placards and banners.

In 1885, Jake Gumper of Fort Wayne, Ind., bought the first gasoline pump to be manufactured in the United States.

In 1939, the United States proclaimed neutrality in World War II.

Ten years ago: State police, using tear gas and firing into the air, charged 144 convicts at an Arkansas prison farm and broke up a sitdown strike.

Five years ago: B-52 bombers attacked enemy positions across broad fronts in Vietnam. The U.S. Command reported the loss of two helicopters.

One year ago: Lynette Fromme attempted to assassinate President Ford in Sacramento, Calif., and was thwarted by Secret Service men.

Today's birthdays: Former Attorney General John Mitchell is 63. Movie producer Daryl Zanuck is 74.

Thought for today: One has two duties — to be worried and not to be worried. — British novelist E. M. Forster, 1879-1970.

In 1899, the United States proposed an Open Door policy to give foreign powers equal trade rights in China.

In 1901, President William McKinley was shot by an anarchist in Buffalo, N.Y. He died eight days later.

In 1914, the first battle of the Marne began in World War I.

In 1940, in World War II, King Carol of Romania abdicated as the Germans prepared to occupy his country.

In 1965, Indian troops invaded West Pakistan.

Ten years ago: Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd of South Africa was stabbed to death during a session of Parliament in Capetown.

Five years ago: President Richard Nixon, in a Labor Day address, called on Americans to increase productivity.

One year ago: More than 2,300 people were killed by a devastating earthquake in eastern Turkey.

Thought for today: If you give to a thief he cannot steal from you and he is then no longer a thief. — Writer William Saroyan.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago, General Washington assured the Continental Congress he would make every effort to prevent damage to New York if he abandoned the city.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1620, the Pilgrims sailed on the Mayflower from Plymouth, England, to settle in the new world.

On this date:

In 1899, the United States proposed an Open Door policy to give foreign powers equal trade rights in China.

In 1901, President William McKinley was shot by an anarchist in Buffalo, N.Y. He died eight days later.

In 1909, explorer Robert Peary sent word that he had reached the North Pole five months earlier.

In 1914, the first battle of the Marne began in World War I.

In 1940, in World War II, King Carol of Romania abdicated as the Germans prepared to occupy his country.

In 1965, Indian troops invaded West Pakistan.

Ten years ago: Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd of South Africa was stabbed to death during a session of Parliament in Capetown.

Five years ago: President Richard Nixon, in a Labor Day address, called on Americans to increase productivity.

One year ago: More than 2,300 people were killed by a devastating earthquake in eastern Turkey.

Thought for today: If you give to a thief he cannot steal from you and he is then no longer a thief. — Writer William Saroyan.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago, General Washington assured the Continental Congress he would make every effort to prevent damage to New York if he abandoned the city.

Melvin's PUP is not a pet but enriches life

By LES SEAGO
Associated Press Writer

MEMPHIS (AP) — They gave Melvin a "PUP" recently. And Melvin hasn't quit grinning since.

Unlike the four-legged variety, Melvin's PUP is equipped with wheels, straps and a collapsible handle so his mother can push him around when Melvin gets tired.

PUP is the nickname given a new device by Melvin's buddies at the University of Tennessee Rehabilitation Engineering Center here. It stands for "Plastic Upright Positioner," and it's just what the doctor ordered for children who, like Melvin, were born with spinal defects.

Dwight Driver, a bearded research orthotist (brace maker) is the man responsible for the PUP system, which could mean new independence for tiny spinal injury victims and their hard-pressed parents.

The device consists of a lightweight plastic and aluminum brace which allows Melvin to stand alone and even shuffle across the floor on outsized shoes. The brace clamps into a tray-like cart equipped with rubber-tired wheels.

When the wheels are in their rearward position, Melvin can wheel himself around, grinning all the time. With the wheels moved forward, and the handle pulled out, Melvin's mother can push him along with her when she shops.

Douglas Hobson, a tall Canadian who is the center's technical director, says the PUP is one of the early fruits of a new effort to make life easier for handicapped individuals by bringing engineers into the rehabilitation team.

Until recently, Hobson said, engineers who were interested in physical rehabilitation were left in the laboratory to deal with hypothetical problems.

"It was a very inefficient way . . . the technology was not reaching the disabled," he said.

Hobson, who became interested in the field 10 years ago while still in engineering school, is one of the young profession's missionaries.

His center is one of six in the United States where engineers are working with physicians, therapists and other rehabilitation professionals. It is the only one that specializes in the problems of handicapped children.

"Engineers, by training, add an element of organization to the problem solving . . . They can see possible solutions that have never before been possible," he said.

Hobson said the growth of the rehabilitation engineering profession would mean heretofore unavailable help for the multiple-handicapped person.

"Conventional orthotics and prosthetics (artificial limbs) only help 50 per cent of the handicapped . . . The only thing that's left for the others is a standard wheelchair and a few other devices," he said. "That's where we are working."

At the UT Center, 175 children with handicaps ranging from Melvin Moore's spinal defect to cerebral palsy compounded with mental retardation and blindness are being seen on a regular basis.

Hobson's team tries to give the severely disabled youngster some means of coping with life. It may mean a special wheelchair insert that allows a girl with a severe spinal curve to sit up to feed herself.

Or it could be a brace to hold up a paralyzed arm so the child can write his name.

In many cases, Hobson said, a few simple devices could mean the difference between keeping a handicapped child at home or putting him in an institution at taxpayers' expense.

Hobson, who would like to expand his staff to provide separate teams for research and service, hopes to see private industry begin production of the PUP and several other devices nearing the end of development.

Hobson is now facing some financial problems at the center. Begun 18 months ago with a federal grant, the center has been forced to begin charging for services to the handicapped.

It costs about $180,000 a year to operate the center at its present level, he said.

"I feel anyone who has a handicapped child shouldn't have the increased burden of paying for rehabilitation," Hobson said.

Convict-artist repays widow of man he killed

SCHWERTE, West Germany (AP) — Eberhard Greven has become such a successful icon painter in prison that he is helping needy friends and paying restitution to the widow of the man he was convicted of killing.

"She has forgiven me. She hopes I will be freed soon," the mild-looking convict-artist said in an interview recently in his penitentiary studio.

"My goal is to be paroled in three or four years. Then I want to teach young people how to paint icons," said Greven, who has sold 1,500 icons in the last six years for up to 4,000 marks—$1,600—each.

From the profits, he has pledged 3,500 marks—$1,400—a month to the dead man's widow and other needy friends.

Greven, 35, was sentenced 12 years ago to life in prison for slaying a courthouse guard, in an attempt to flee a trial for a bank robbery he denies committing.

Trying to cope with prison boredom, Greven discovered Byzantine art in 1970 and began a thorough study which led him to reproduce the small, wood-panel oil paintings of biblical scenes venerated by Eastern Christians.

"I thought I had no talent for painting, but I learned by imitation and then studied old Greek and old Slavic languages to master the lettering," said Greven, who had only a ninth-grade education.

Using bold colors and modern graphics to portray the traditional scenes, Greven developed a new style which earned him critical acclaim and the distinction of being the only West German icon painter recognized by the Greek and Russian Orthodox Churches.

Greven's artistic success parallels West German prison reforms which are giving convicts more chance to study, learn skills and be productive while they serve their sentences.

Starting next year, Greven and other model life-prisoners who have served at least 10 years will be eligible for 21 days of outside vacations a year.

Until four months ago, Greven was in a maximum-security prison, where he painted in his free time in his solitary cell. Now he is in a modern, medium-security facility near the Ruhr Valley town of Schwerte, where he is allowed to paint full-time in a private workship arranged by prison officials.

Greven said justice officials have given him hope about his chance of parole after serving 15 years of his sentence, but prison administrators are less optimistic in their predictions.

Husband-wife costarring is accidental, planned

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The husband-wife costarring of Trish Van Devere and George C. Scott is "both accidental and planned," says the actress as she undertakes a project without him.

She is playing opposite David Janssen in "Farrell," an NBC movie about the rehabilitation of a boy raised in the wild by animals. She plays a speech therapist, "and that's what intrigued me about the script; I once taught speech to disturbed and retarded children in Florida."

While Miss Van Devere was acting her role in locations at Malibu and elsewhere, Scott was playing golf in Scotland. Although he starred singly in the Hemingway film, "Islands in the Stream," earlier this year, most of her recent appearances have been with him.

"I did appear in New York in O'Neill's 'All God's Chillun Got Wings' without George," she said, "but he directed the play, so we were together.

"Otherwise, most of the things I've done in the past three or four years have been with George. I like it that way. It keeps us working, and it keeps us together. Sometimes he works without me, but that's only natural. I'm not as employable as George. I'm also not as talented as George."

Their films together include "The Last Run," "Day of the Dolphin" and the Scotts' brave try at reforming film economics, "The Savage Is Loose." Privately financed, the film was sold directly to theater owners, bypassing the usual release channels. "Over-all, 'The Savage' was not profitable, although it might be when all the returns are in," reported Trish. "The small theaters paid us, but some of the big chains didn't. We're suing."

The Scotts also costarred in "Beauty and the Beast," a Hallmark Hall of Fame movie for television in this country and theaters abroad. Next they return to Broadway for "Sly Fox," a reworking of "Volpone" by Larry Gelbart, the man behind TV's "M-A-S-H."

What's it like to work in tandem with George C. Scott?

"George thinks I fuss too much over my work, and I have to tell him, 'Not everyone can act as easily as you.' Usually our interpretations coincide. It's just that I sometimes have a little problem with execution."

An accomplished actress, Trish Van Devere suffers under the condition of all members of her craft: the lack of roles for women.

"I did a picture a few years ago that was a woman's picture, 'One Is a Lonely Number,' about a woman in a divorce situation," she said. "It was a nice project, but it wasn't pushed and it got little notice. Perhaps if it were released today, the reception might be different."

Like Jane Fonda, Ellen Burstyn, Barbra Streisand and others, Trish is combatting the male-oriented entertainment world by devising projects of her own. She is planning a one-woman show based on the life of Victoria Woodhull, a colorful 19th century American.

Fund discrepancy may help in campaign

Another election happening with unknown impact was Republican Attorney General candidate John Ashcroft's announcement last week that his campaign treasurer was being charged with embezzling $1,500 from the campaign.

The treasurer, Edward R. DeCook, and his attorney had nothing to say after his arraignment in Cole County Circuit Court, although Ashcroft said he had not been satisfied with DeCook's explantion of the matter when DeCook was confronted with the fund discrepancy.

Ashcroft says he doesn't think DeCook's troubles will hurt his campaign. "This particular incident is just another item by which the people can judge how I would handle inappropriate activity in office," he said.

Texas town has oil a plenty but no drinking water

MENTONE, Tex. (AP) — Welcome to Mentone, home of 20 or so good ole boys, a surly old sheriff, Newt's beer palace and a treasure chest of oil and natural gas.

Indeed, Mentone, county seat of Loving County in the land of lizards, snakes and blowing dust, may be the world's richest little poor town.

It is also the ONLY town in Loving County, population 112.

Its riches lie in flowing natural gas wells and, to a lesser degree, oil deposits. Its poverty is measured in drinking water — there is none.

Despite an estimated tax base of $26 million this year, there is not enough money to purchase a pipeline capable of serving the county's scattered inhabitants.

It would appear, however, that if the property value were evenly distributed among the 112, each could winter on the Riviera.

Someone put it this way:

"Only those things, animal or vegetable, that can withstand dry weather, blazing sun and blistering wind survive and thrive . . . You got to be someone raised in these red hills to live here."

Other than a trillion dollars worth of oil and gas, and Newt's oasis, there's not a great deal that can be said for Loving County and its lusty little capital city.

The closest thing to a brochure says:

"Loving County is located in what is known as the West Texas Desert . . . It is the least populated county in the United States, with 112 people in an area covering 647 square miles."

(That computes out to more than five square miles per person, although a third of the population is clustered in Mentone.)

Other than a handful of children, almost everyone is either a rancher, an oilfield worker, a county employe or retired.

"Mentone . . . has a post office, schoolhouse, courthouse, a service station and a cafe. The county has no doctor, no hospital, no Chamber of Commerce," the legend discloses.

"The Rondo Mills 4-H Club and the Loving County Historical Survey Committee are the only civic organizations."

Mentone, incidentally, derives its name from a homesick surveyor from Menton, France. And the county is the namesake of Oliver Loving, a Kentuckian who succumbed to a Comanche bullet in 1867.

The two teachers of the Loving County Independent School District hold court daily for about a dozen children in grades one through six.

The 17 junior high and high schoolers attend class at Wink, 31 miles east in Winkler County.

Many of the county officials, while maintaining legal residences in Loving County, find it more convenient to live in Pecos, 23 miles to the south, or Kermit, 32 miles to the east.

The problem is the water. Not quantity but quality.

An ample supply of underground water exists, but it contains gypsum mineral deposits. Oldtimers say there are only four "good" wells in the county.

Although most livestock can drink the water, ranchers as well as residents must haul fresh water from as far away as Pecos.

One of the problems, too, is that most of the Loving County land owners live elsewhere. They lease the mineral and surface rights to ranchers and oil companies.

Few inhabitants have enjoyed overnight riches.

A lucrative natural gas discovery some two years ago, coupled with skyrocketing gas prices, aroused new and vigorous interest by major petroleum companies.

They do not seem overly concerned about the water problem. Nor is Newt Keen.

Scratching his short cropped, reddish gray hair, Newt allowed as how it might be nice to have a water system, but not if it brought sweeping changes to Mentone.

"I'd just as soon it stay like it is," he said. "Really, though, I guess I just don't give a damn."

By Randall Poe

This is the advertising pitch for a current movie, "The Omen," which is frightening people the way "Jaws" did in 1975. The dark, creepy marketing of this film reflects a new trend in movie-making. An armada of other current movies — including "Logan's Run," "The Tenant," "A Boy and His Dog," "The Devil Within Her" — also carry the doom germ. They're telling us the end is near.

"We're in the midst of an apocalyptic depression," says New York film critic Andrew Sarris. "Vietnam, Watergate, the blahs and belches of the Bicentennial make most audiences responsive to the gospel of decline and fall."

But the movies are only one vehicle on the doom caravan. Nowhere is calamity more pervasive than in modern-day economics. Doomsayers, like psychics, have found a bull market for their views. A growing number of economic Paul Reveres are criss-crossing the country, warning of bad times ahead.

Even as the presidential candidates are assuring us that happy days could be here again — depending upon who is elected, the doomsayers are predicting not simply depression but collapse. Some are forecasting death by inflation. Some are projecting death by government interference. Others are specializing in the obituary of the stock market. And a few are prophesying that unholy economic trinity: mass unemployment, runaway inflation and national bankruptcy.

The disaster scenarios, which are being scripted for both fun and profit, clearly confound some observers. As Edgar Fiedler, former U.S. Treasury official, puts it: "Why are words such as crisis, chaos, calamity and cataclysm no longer saved for events like the sinking of the Titanic or the San Francisco earthquake but are rather the stuff of our everyday lives?"

One of the highest-paid merchants of gloom is Harry Browne, a bearded free spirit who catapulted to riches in 1970. He predicted the devaluation of the dollar in a book called "How You Can Profit From the Coming Devaluation," which became a massive bestseller. Browne urged people to cash in their paper money and buy gold and silver coins. In 1974 he spun another winner — "How You Can Profit from the Coming Monetary Crisis" — which made him a kind of modern-day Jeremiah.

Charging $2,500 for four-hour private consultations, Browne found his market limited. So he created a depression-inflation course on cassettes. The cost: $49.95. He has held sold-out lectures at Carnegie Hall (charging up to $40 a seat) and at other major halls. He has bought full-page ads in major newspapers showing scary pictures of the Great Depression, warning that the next depression will be much worse. It has already begun, he says. He talks of depression camps across the country and hungry people eating dandelions. "You are and your children will be cold and hungry. There will be no shoes for kids and few clothes," his ads say.

But Browne, like Jeremiah, holds out hope. "Following every economic disaster in history, the few individuals who possessed the vision and courage to act decisively to preserve their wealth have always emerged as the new rich." Follow me, says Browne.

Gloom is a contagious disease. A former vice president of First National City Bank, John Exter, has carved a reputation for himself as a consultant and lecturer. He has been warning since early this year that the U.S. economy is moving toward a crash — "a depression of unparalleled proportions." Panic and bankruptcies are ahead, he says. "The problem can only get worse. The coming depression will be more severe than the Great Depression of the 1930s. I hate to say it but many people are going to suffer."

On Wall Street, the doomsayers have been multiplying like rabbits — but they are known as "bears." They sneer at the "bulls" who hang out at Merrill Lynch. One of the most famous bears is T.J. Holt, a brilliant Chinese stock analyst whose expensive newsletters always seem to be saying: GOOD TIME TO UNLOAD. Holt is a genius at finding clouds in clear-blue skies.

"If you are convinced that the market must go up in an election year and therefore stock prices will keep rising onward and upward, don't bother to read further. But . . ." Holt then tells you why it's time to sell your stocks. He has been doing this for years and has developed a fancy reputation in financial circles because he has often been right.

Most doomsayers are not very precise about when our final hour will arrive. But not Albert Sindlinger, who might be the Papa Bear of Gloom. An adviser to presidents (Nixon and Ford, among others) and major corporations, Sindlinger has been predicting a gigantic economic collapse since late last year. When his predictions didn't come through during the last three months of 1975, Sindlinger simply moved his timetable ahead. "We're being kept alive by a great hope syndrome," Sindlinger believes. "People keep hoping that there will be more jobs and more money but it's just hope. When they wake up it's going to hurt."

Sindlinger, who looks like Benjamin Franklin and works out of Media, Pa., has forecast enough major flips in the economy to make people listen. His consumer surveys and advice bring him up to $100,000 a year from such major firms as Ford and Goodyear. His 22 years in the business haven't brightened his outlook.

"We are now six feet underground instead of last year's ten feet," he says. "But we're still underground. Things are being propped up because people are spending gains they don't have. We are living on false financial statements. Businesses, banks and people are carrying assets they couldn't possibly sell tomorrow. Catastrophe is coming."

But hold it. Aren't we into the second year of a nationwide recovery?

"It's false," he said. "Prices are coming down only for the things most people aren't buying. About 25 per cent of the people are doing all the buying. What you have is one-fourth of the people trying to pull up the other three-fourths. Anybody with half a brain can tell you that can't last very long."

Every doomsayer has a demon. For Sindlinger, it's inflation. "If we could lick inflation, all would be ship ahoy and full speed ahead. But we're not going to do it. People are looking for increases in their incomes and that's going to cause further inflation."

The answer, he says, is to put controls on wages and prices. But he says nobody seems to be listening to him, including his political clients. Still Sindlinger keeps repeating in his rat-a-tat fashion that disaster lies ahead this year, that people are going to start selling stocks like crazy, that we'd better wake up. . .

Only a year ago, the doomsayers were predicting dollar-a-loaf bread, dollar-a-gallon gasoline, dollar-a-pound sugar. None of this came to pass, although we came close.

Unemployment remains over 5 percent in July

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri unemployment remained over 5 per cent in July although both the number of persons with jobs and the number without declined, according to statistics released today by the state Division of Employment Security.

The July jobless rate was 5.4 per cent, the same as the revised rate for June. Before the final calculations, the June rate was listed at 5.3 per cent.

The division said total employment in the state dropped 4,800 to 1,977,400 and unemployment dropped 800 to 112,600.

Manufacturing was down, primarily due to layoffs in the transportation industry, and nonmanufacturing employment showed a seasonal decline. But nearly 3,000 more jobs were recorded in the contract construction industry to partially offset the reductions elswhere.

The division said that more than 30,000 more people were working in nonfarm employment this year than a year ago.

By Randall Poe

This is the advertising pitch for a current movie, "The Omen," which is frightening people the way "Jaws" did in 1975. The dark, creepy marketing of this film reflects a new trend in movie-making. An armada of other current movies — including "Logan's Run," "The Tenant," "A Boy and His Dog," "The Devil Within Her" — also carry the doom germ. They're telling us the end is near.

"We're in the midst of an apocalyptic depression," says New York film critic Andrew Sarris. "Vietnam, Watergate, the blahs and belches of the Bicentennial make most audiences responsive to the gospel of decline and fall."

But the movies are only one vehicle on the doom caravan. Nowhere is calamity more pervasive than in modern-day economics. Doomsayers, like psychics, have found a bull market for their views. A growing number of economic Paul Reveres are criss-crossing the country, warning of bad times ahead.

Even as the presidential candidates are assuring us that happy days could be here again — depending upon who is elected, the doomsayers are predicting not simply depression but collapse. Some are forecasting death by inflation. Some are projecting death by government interference. Others are specializing in the obituary of the stock market. And a few are prophesying that unholy economic trinity: mass unemployment, runaway inflation and national bankruptcy.

The disaster scenarios, which are being scripted for both fun and profit, clearly confound some observers. As Edgar Fiedler, former U.S. Treasury official, puts it: "Why are words such as crisis, chaos, calamity and cataclysm no longer saved for events like the sinking of the Titanic or the San Francisco earthquake but are rather the stuff of our everyday lives?"

One of the highest-paid merchants of gloom is Harry Browne, a bearded free spirit who catapulted to riches in 1970. He predicted the devaluation of the dollar in a book called "How You Can Profit From the Coming Devaluation," which became a massive bestseller. Browne urged people to cash in their paper money and buy gold and silver coins. In 1974 he spun another winner — "How You Can Profit from the Coming Monetary Crisis" — which made him a kind of modern-day Jeremiah.

Charging $2,500 for four-hour private consultations, Browne found his market limited. So he created a depression-inflation course on cassettes. The cost: $49.95. He has held sold-out lectures at Carnegie Hall (charging up to $40 a seat) and at other major halls. He has bought full-page ads in major newspapers showing scary pictures of the Great Depression, warning that the next depression will be much worse. It has already begun, he says. He talks of depression camps across the country and hungry people eating dandelions. "You are and your children will be cold and hungry. There will be no shoes for kids and few clothes," his ads say.

But Browne, like Jeremiah, holds out hope. "Following every economic disaster in history, the few individuals who possessed the vision and courage to act decisively to preserve their wealth have always emerged as the new rich." Follow me, says Browne.

Gloom is a contagious disease. A former vice president of First National City Bank, John Exter, has carved a reputation for himself as a consultant and lecturer. He has been warning since early this year that the U.S. economy is moving toward a crash — "a depression of unparalleled proportions." Panic and bankruptcies are ahead, he says. "The problem can only get worse. The coming depression will be more severe than the Great Depression of the 1930s. I hate to say it but many people are going to suffer."

On Wall Street, the doomsayers have been multiplying like rabbits — but they are known as "bears." They sneer at the "bulls" who hang out at Merrill Lynch. One of the most famous bears is T.J. Holt, a brilliant Chinese stock analyst whose expensive newsletters always seem to be saying: GOOD TIME TO UNLOAD. Holt is a genius at finding clouds in clear-blue skies.

"If you are convinced that the market must go up in an election year and therefore stock prices will keep rising onward and upward, don't bother to read further. But . . ." Holt then tells you why it's time to sell your stocks. He has been doing this for years and has developed a fancy reputation in financial circles because he has often been right.

Most doomsayers are not very precise about when our final hour will arrive. But not Albert Sindlinger, who might be the Papa Bear of Gloom. An adviser to presidents (Nixon and Ford, among others) and major corporations, Sindlinger has been predicting a gigantic economic collapse since late last year. When his predictions didn't come through during the last three months of 1975, Sindlinger simply moved his timetable ahead. "We're being kept alive by a great hope syndrome," Sindlinger believes. "People keep hoping that there will be more jobs and more money but it's just hope. When they wake up it's going to hurt."

Sindlinger, who looks like Benjamin Franklin and works out of Media, Pa., has forecast enough major flips in the economy to make people listen. His consumer surveys and advice bring him up to $100,000 a year from such major firms as Ford and Goodyear. His 22 years in the business haven't brightened his outlook.

"We are now six feet underground instead of last year's ten feet," he says. "But we're still underground. Things are being propped up because people are spending gains they don't have. We are living on false financial statements. Businesses, banks and people are carrying assets they couldn't possibly sell tomorrow. Catastrophe is coming."

But hold it. Aren't we into the second year of a nationwide recovery?

"It's false," he said. "Prices are coming down only for the things most people aren't buying. About 25 per cent of the people are doing all the buying. What you have is one-fourth of the people trying to pull up the other three-fourths. Anybody with half a brain can tell you that can't last very long."

Every doomsayer has a demon. For Sindlinger, it's inflation. "If we could lick inflation, all would be ship ahoy and full speed ahead. But we're not going to do it. People are looking for increases in their incomes and that's going to cause further inflation."

The answer, he says, is to put controls on wages and prices. But he says nobody seems to be listening to him, including his political clients. Still Sindlinger keeps repeating in his rat-a-tat fashion that disaster lies ahead this year, that people are going to start selling stocks like crazy, that we'd better wake up. . .

Only a year ago, the doomsayers were predicting dollar-a-loaf bread, dollar-a-gallon gasoline, dollar-a-pound sugar. None of this came to pass, although we came close.

Swine flu innoculations delayed to October

By MARIAN MCDOWELL
Missouri Press News

JEFFERSON CITY — Fearing nuisance suits and possible of early doses mishandling, drug companies have delayed shipments of the swine flu vaccine until Oct. 1.

Plans by state health officials to give flu shots to the elderly and chronically ill during the week of Sept. 20 have been postponed because of the delay.

The federal government does not assume complete liability for the swine flu program until Oct. 1.

Earlier this year, Congress felt it was necessary to protect drug companies, physicians and public health personnel against liability from persons alleging personal injury or death from the administration of the vaccine.

Jim Donoho, director of the Missouri swine flu program was notified by federal officials early this month that Missouri will receive 75,000 doses on Sept. 15 for the elderly and the chronically ill. This shipment has been canceled.

"Shipping delays have been a real problem in finalizing our distribution plans. Now, we (Missouri) are expecting to receive 500,000 doses the first week in October," Donoho said.

"We have a tremendous volume of requisitions from private physicians across the state. I expect this first shipment will be distributed to these physicians, and the mass, free public linics will begin Oct. 16," he said.

C. C. Swarnes, public relations director for Missouri State Medical Association (MSMA), said, "We (MSMA) don't recommend to our members that they administer the vaccine before this liability date. We advise them to wait until Oct. 1."

Swarnes doesn't anticipate any problems as drug manufacturers are not expected to distribute the vaccine before the liability date.

Only medical and health personnel who provide their services without charge are protected by federal law from liability.

Jerry Giffen, information officer for the Missouri swine flu program, said there is no known cure for the disease. "Vaccination before exposure to the disease is the only way an individual can protect himself from influenza."

Giffen explained influenza is spread from person to person. When a person is coming down with the flu, the fluids in his nose and mouth contain the viruse which is expelled into the air when he sneezes, coughs or talks.

The pharmaceutical industry is producing two types of vaccine. The bivalent vaccine contains both the swine flu virus and the Type A. virus. This double vaccine is being offered to individuals over 65 and to the chronically ill.

The monovalent vaccine, which is being offered to the majority of the population, contains only the swine flu virus.

The vaccine allocating to Missouri has been set at 3,712,000 doses. While an estimated 4.5 million persons are eligible for the vaccine, not all are expected to participate in the immunization program.

At the national level, Congress has earmarked $135 million to immunize 215 million Americans against the swine flu.

Veterinarian says acupuncture may work on animals

By BOB WOOD
Associated Press Writer

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — A Texan A&M University professor of veterinary medicine says acupuncture has worked on humans and there's no reason it can't work on animals.

Dr. Bill McMullen, a large-animal clinician, said in a recent interview that acupuncture can eliminate pain, be used in animal surgery, and one day soon "may become another branch of veterinary medicine."

Research has shown, McMullen said, that needles placed in the proper areas can make life easier for cats and dogs and horses.

"We are only scratching the surface of animal acupuncture now," he said, "but it offers a lot of promise. It will not be a replacement for the current methods of veterinary medicine, but an addition to the practice."

Acupuncture can eliminate the pain of arthritis and offers great possibility in the treatment of shock in animals and in certain operations where an anesthetic might be dangerous, McMullen said.

McMullen told The Associated Press he had witnessed an operation on a pony where two of the silver needles had been placed in the left ear.

"The skin jumped when the knife passed through. The muscles reacted, but the pony looked straight ahead with no obvious pain.

"On another occasion, two needles were placed in the hind legs of a dog and an incision was made in his stomach about four inches long. Once the operation was finished, the incision was closed, and the dog ran back to his room with no obvious pain," McMullen said.

"I have no doubt but that acupuncture is the real thing," he said.

"There has been a tremendous amount of research work in recent years that offers real good proof that acupuncture is more than hypnotism or hog-wash."

The A&M professor said acupuncture was first believed by some to be "post-hypnotic suggestion or patient preparation. I'd like to know how post-hypnotism works with a horse. I went in with an open mind. It can be an ideal situation for a quack, no doubt about that. However, I see its future now."

McMullen said that in the past few months he has worked with eight or 10 horses using acupuncture and "we had amazing results with two of them, improvements in three, and no improvement in the others, but understand these were almost hopeless cases. That is generally what we are getting on acupuncture, the hopeless cases. It would be nice to have the advantage to see what we could do in the routine cases."

Ruling is blocked on meat processing to add weight to packaged meat

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge today blocked new government meat regulations which allow food processors to include bits of bone in hot dogs and simmered fat in luncheon meats and frozen pizza.

U.S. District Judge William B. Bryant issued a temporary restraining order against the Agriculture Department rules, which had been challenged by consumer groups.

The immediate impact of the ruling was not clear.

While the judge's order temporarily strikes down Agriculture Department rules regulating meat processing, Justice Department lawyer Vincent Turlep said he did not think it would immediately prevent processors from using certain methods of reclaiming meat close to the bone.

For two years, the Agriculture Department has been permitting meat processors to reclaim meat close to the bone through the use of a high-speed method of mechanical deboning. The process allows tiny bits of bone to mix with the meat.

The effect is to add weight to packaged meat. The Agriculture Department says the process makes the product less expensive to consumers because more meat can be recovered from livestock.

Consumer groups like Ralph Nader's Public Citizen's Health Research Group have criticized the method as a means of "turning garbage into money."

Until last spring, the mechanical deboning process continued under temporary Agriculture Department regulations. Since then, the department has proposed two sets of interim and permanent rules. That brought the issue to court.

Hugh Downs narrates award winning "The World 'You Never See"

Some of the wonders of nature not normally seen by the human eye are brought to television via photomicrophy in "The World You Never See," an actuality special to be repeated on the NBC Television Network Tuesday, Sept. 9 (7-8 p.m. DST).

Hugh Downs is the off-camera narrator for the award- winning program, the eighth in a series of specials produced by Survival Anglia Ltd. which are being telecast in the Thursday, 7-8 p.m. DST time period on NBC-TV.

Included are two rituals of nature -- the spawning of trout and a mole's care of its young -- believed to have been filmed for TV for the first time.

Other highlights of the hour: views of the development of a chicken embryo and the metamorphosis of a caterpillar into a butterfly. There also is a sequence which demonstrates that the bee is a clumsy flyer who specializes in bumpy landings.

The program, first colorcast on NBC TV March 14, 1974, was filmed by scientists-photographers of the Oxford Scientific Films group of Oxfordshire, England. They were: Gerald Thompson, founder of Oxford Scientific Films, a specialist on insects and a forester by training; Peter Parks, a zoologist who perfected techniques for filming microscopic animals and plants; John Cooke, an authority on spiders and a former curator at the Museum of Natural History in New York City; John Paling, an expert on freshwater biology; David Thompson, Gerald's son, a specialist in filming small animals; and Sean Morris, an expert in time-lapse photography.

At the start of the program, creatures inhabiting a drop of water are brought into focus. The sequence was filmed by Parks and includes views of a daphnia, of water flea, having difficulty in giving birth. Also, a drop of sea water is magnified to show the differing variety of life it holds.

An artificial trout stream was built inside the studio and a natural environment was simulated in order to photograph the spawning of trout under controlled conditions. This was filmed by Paling, who also filmed a segment showing puffballs, a sort of fungus, as they distribute their spores.

Chevy Chase has Emmy performance

The Emmy Award-winning performance by Chevy Chase, of the Not Ready for Prime Time Players, is a highlight of the "NBC's Saturday Night" program hosted by Buck Henry which will be repeated September 11 (11:30-1 a.m. DST) on the NBC Television Network.

For his work on the show, Chase received an Emmy in the category of Outstanding Continuing or Single Performance by a Supporting Actor in Variety or Music.

Among the comedy sketches is a Presidential press conference in which Chase portrays President Ford and host Buck Henry plays his press secretary. Repertory company members John Belushi and Garrett Morris also appear in the segment.

A parody of the classic movie, "Citizen Kane," features Henry and repertory company members Danny Aykroyd, John Belushi, Chevy Chase, Garrett Morris and Laraine Newman. Belushi is spotlighted with Henry in another of the "Samurai" sequences, "Samurai Deli."

Other comedy skits by the Not Ready for Prime Time Players include "Mechanics Bedtime Story" (Aykroyd, Jane Curtin and Gilda Radner) and a talk show segment in which Curtin, as the host, interviews a woman (Radner) who claims to have been a former President'ss love interest.

NFL GAME OF THE WEEK TO PREMIERE AGAIN THIS SEASON

The most exciting, action-packed plays of the week's standout National Football League game will be capsuled into a fast-paced weekly TV half hour again this season when "NFL Game of the Week" premieres on Channel 12, Sept. 11, 1:30 p.m.

The 1976 season marks the 11th consecutive year for the popular weekly series as well as the 56th year of NFL football.

The initial program promises new excitement and entertainment. There will be not only a preview of the season but also a stimulating presentation of the dramatic, new changes in the rules, illustrating their effect in speeding up the game. The new rule changes will inevitably make "NFL Game of the Week" an even more exciting TV series.

Each program presents the week's best gridiron contest of the regular NFL schedule. It also features the "Player of the Week". The series is produced by NFL Films, an acknowledged leader in sports film production. Each week NFL Films sends film crews to each NFL game, shooting some five miles of footage, covering the 13 regularly scheduled games.

"The Moonstone" proves diamonds aren't always a girl's best friend

Diamond's arent's always a girls best friend, as Vivien Heilbron quickly proves, when she stars as Rachel Verinder in the BBC production of "THE MOONSTONE." "Masterpiece Theatre's" five- part dramatization of Willie Collins' 19th century detective thriller, "THE MOONSTONE," begins Sunday, September 5 at 8 p.m. and Friday, September 5 at 8 p.m. and Friday, September 10 at 9 p.m. on Channel 9.

Set in Victorian England, "THE MOONSTONE" is the suspense- filled story of a fabulous diamond looted from a temple in India and the misfortunes it brings to those associated with it - especially the young and beautiful heroine, Rachel Verinder.

Rachel wears the Moonstone for the first time at her birthday celebration, but is warned by a guest that it resembles a diamond stolen from a Hindu statue some fifty years earlier, and could spell trouble for the owner.The next morning the Moonstone is missing, and the famous detective Sergeant Cuff (John Welsh) is called in to solve the crime.

Rachel's two cousins and rivals for her hand, Franklin Blake (Robin Ellis) and Godfrey Ablewhite (Martin Jarvis), are prime suspects in the robbery. But in good mystery story style, the real villain remains in question until the very end.

Written more than a century ago, The Moonstone was the first full- length detective novel (Poe wrote only short stories), and remains one of the finest mystery stories written in the English language.

Collins, who lived from 1825 to 1889, also authored The Woman in White, The New Magdalen, The Haunted Hotel and Heart and Science.

Prince Valiant

BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: KING KASOV'S FIRST WAR STRATEGY IS TO SEEK SAFETY BEHIND THE GATES. HIS MERCENARIES EXPECTED LITTLE FROM THEIR LEADER, BUT NOT THIS LITTLE!

THEY WAIT FOR ORDERS THAT DO NOT COME, AND WHILE THEY HESITATE, TELAMON LEADS HIS MEN ACROSS THE BRIDGE AND JOINS PRINCE VALIANT'S TROOP.

THE BATTLE BEGINS FURIOUSLY, BUT KASOV'S MERCENARIES, DESERTED BY THEIR LEADER AND WITH NO STRONGHOLD TO SEEK SAFETY IN, BREAK AND RUN..... RUN TO THE BLEAK STONY HILLS BEHIND THEM. THE SLAUGHTER BEGINS.

"SHALL WE CALL A HALT?" SUGGESTS VAL. "NO," ANSWERS TELAMON, "THEY ARE ALL MERCENARIES FIGHTING FOR THE WAGES AND PLUNDER THAT HAVE BEEN PROMISED THEM. IT IS BETTER THAT ONE ARMY BE DRIVEN FROM THE LAND."

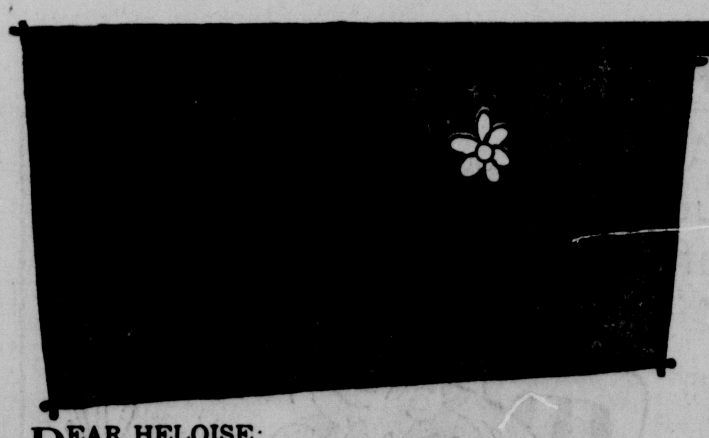
PONYTAIL • • BY LEE HOLLEY



DEAR HELOISE:

I am fond of using those spice mixtures in cooking. They are so convenient, but I discovered that I was paying a fancy price for mostly salt.

So I decided to make my own mixture by using the list of ingredients on the bottle as a clue. Just follow the list, only using smaller amounts. If you don't have something, just substitute or omit. Use up the tiny amounts you have on hand.

Some mixtures may need a little cornstarch or magnesium carbonate to prevent caking.

Helen Farnsworth

What a spicy idea! This way you can make it to suit your taste and budget.

Heloise

SAVE ON SOUP!

DEAR HELOISE:

I should have sent this hint to you a year ago. It sure would have saved lots of people money.

The secret is "cheddar cheese soup." There is no end as to what you can use this for at about one-third the cost of cheese.

For tacos, just open a can, spread on the taco shell then fill with meat. Or spoon cheese into cooked macaroni and season for macaroni and cheese dishes.

Use for scalloped potatoes, spread on toasted bread or buns for a cheeseburger or ham and cheese.

A Budget Watcher

HOPSCOTCH CHAMP

DEAR HELOISE:

While my girlfriend and I were playing hopscotch we thought of a great idea.

Instead of using rocks we used those plastic lids that come on some jars or cans. A different color for each person.

It works just great!

Marcia Franklin

PLASTERER'S TIP

DEAR HELOISE:

A gentleman wrote you on how to keep plaster from hardening too quickly by using cream of tartar.

I wonder how many know you can also use vinegar and get the same results?

Mix the plaster with half vinegar and half water instead of plain water.

Dolores Banks

LETTER OF THOUGHT

DEAR HELOISE:

I don't understand why the modern homes have the laundry room in the kitchen area.

Perhaps you might want to rinse out a tea towel or the kitchen curtains, but all of the main, daily laundry is in and around the bedrooms which are arranged around the family bathroom.

Laundry equipment would be no bother in the bathroom and certainly save having to carry it down the stairs, make a path across the living-room carpet and then lug the laundry back upstairs or to the other end of the house.

Blankets and heavy things would get more laundering if you didn't dread hauling them, and you wouldn't likely find a sock in your soup some unsorted, sloppy day.

John A. Welch

SUPPORT YOURSELF!

DEAR HELOISE:

It only took me 45 years to figure out how to keep straps of bras and slips from falling.

I bought some fine flat elastic, cut six-inch pieces and sewed near the hook and elastic... then up about four or five inches on the shoulder strap, holding tight enough that it would provide tension when I relaxed.

It works! In 15 minutes I sewed it on every bra and slip and now I never have to pull and tug anymore.

This would not show with most lower cut dresses or sun suits unless they are backless and braless, hence needing no support.

This is too good to keep to myself!

Helen Rees

MAKE A FUZZY!

DEAR HELOISE:

I have found a cute, inexpensive gift for children's birthday parties.

First, find an old cut-pile bathroom carpet or towel. Then cut out an animal shaped like a snake or cat. Add some eyes and you've got a "fuzzy."

Kathy Geerinck

IT'S UNCANNY!

DEAR HELOISE:

I have very little counter space so I have no choice but to put my metal canister set near my sink.

It seemed something was always getting spilled on the counter and if left unattended for even a short while I'd have two messes to clean up. First, the mess from the spill, and then scour up all the ugly rust marks under the canister set.

One day after cleaning the rusty marks, I took some scraps of adhesive-backed shelf paper, set each piece of the canister set on a scrap and traced around the bottom. I removed the backing and attached the shelf paper to each piece.

It solved the problem completely and no more ugly rusty marks. This has saved me many hours of scouring.

Mrs. P.L.

FANCY STITCHES

DEAR HELOISE:

Hello! When I am doing embroidery work, I thread about 10 needles with different-colored thread in the colors I am using. When I need to use a different color, then the needle is all ready to go.

This helps me as it is very easy to just pick up the color and begin my work. I don't have to stop and thread a needle each time.

Grace Blume

MY TAPE BOX

DEAR HELOISE:

I have been buying tapes instead of albums but the cabinets are expensive.

I came up with a great idea! I cut the tops off my facial tissue boxes and cover the bottom part with adhesive-backed paper.

Mrs. Charles Fowler

DEAR HELOISE:

Ever have trouble lifting hot baked cookies off the cookie sheet and having them stick to the spatula?

I grease or oil the spatula and the cookies whisk off the cookie sheet and the spatula.

Ines Brooks

A gentleman wrote you on how to keep plaster from hardening too quickly by using cream of tartar.

I wonder how many know you can also use vinegar and get the same results?

Mix the plaster with half vinegar and half water instead of plain water.

LETTER OF THOUGHT

DEAR HELOISE:

I don't understand why the modern homes have the laundry room in the kitchen area.

Perhaps you might want to rinse out a tea towel or the kitchen curtains, but all of the main, daily laundry is in and around the bedrooms which are arranged around the family bathroom.

Laundry equipment would be no bother in the bathroom and certainly save having to carry it down the stairs, make a path across the living-room carpet and then lug the laundry back upstairs or to the other end of the house.

Blankets and heavy things would get more laundering if you didn't dread hauling them, and you wouldn't likely find a sock in your soup some unsorted, sloppy day.

SUPPORT YOURSELF!

DEAR HELOISE:

It only took me 45 years to figure out how to keep straps of bras and slips from falling.

I bought some fine flat elastic, cut six-inch pieces and sewed near the hook and elastic... then up about four or five inches on the shoulder strap, holding tight enough that it would provide tension when I relaxed.

It works! In 15 minutes I sewed it on every bra and slip and now I never have to pull and tug anymore.

This would not show with most lower cut dresses or sun suits unless they are backless and braless, hence needing no support.

This is too good to keep to myself!

MAKE A FUZZY!

DEAR HELOISE:

I have found a cute, inexpensive gift for children's birthday parties.

First, find an old cut-pile bathroom carpet or towel. Then cut out an animal shaped like a snake or cat. Add some eyes and you've got a "fuzzy."

IT'S UNCANNY!

DEAR HELOISE:

I have very little counter space so I have no choice but to put my metal canister set near my sink.

It seemed something was always getting spilled on the counter and if left unattended for even a short while I'd have two messes to clean up. First, the mess from the spill, and then scour up all the ugly rust marks under the canister set.

One day after cleaning the rusty marks, I took some scraps of adhesive-backed shelf paper, set each piece of the canister set on a scrap and traced around the bottom. I removed the backing and attached the shelf paper to each piece.

It solved the problem completely and no more ugly rusty marks. This has saved me many hours of scouring.

FANCY STITCHES

DEAR HELOISE:

Hello! When I am doing embroidery work, I thread about 10 needles with different-colored thread in the colors I am using. When I need to use a different color, then the needle is all ready to go.

This helps me as it is very easy to just pick up the color and begin my work. I don't have to stop and thread a needle each time.

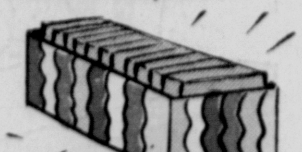
MY TAPE BOX

DEAR HELOISE:

I have been buying tapes instead of albums but the cabinets are expensive.



I came up with a great idea! I cut the tops off my facial tissue boxes and cover the bottom part with adhesive-backed paper.

Mrs. Charles Fowler

DEAR HELOISE:

Ever have trouble lifting hot baked cookies off the cookie sheet and having them stick to the spatula?

I grease or oil the spatula and the cookies whisk off the cookie sheet and the spatula.

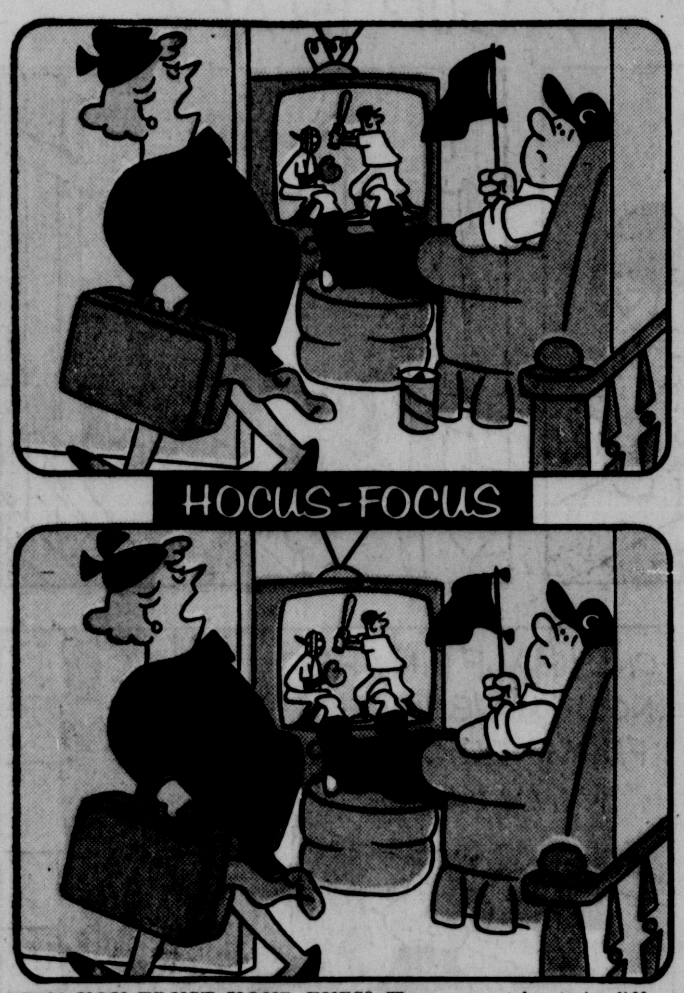
Hal Kaufman's HUMOR WHIRL®



CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1. Hat is different. 2. Antenna is different. 3. Pennant is different. 4. Can is missing. 5. Post is different. 6. Stocking is different.

THE MAGICIAN who performs this trick claims he can distinguish high cards from low cards just by touching them, and proceeds to demonstrate.

The performer is blindfolded, a deck of cards is shuffled thoroughly and placed in his or her hands, faces forward. Each card is fingered carefully, and to everyone's amazement tens or better are identified every time.

How it's done: By prearrangement, the performer has a collaborator who gives him a nudge with his foot (under the table) each time one of the high cards appears.

BULLETIN BOARD

- DO TELL! What Dizzy Daisy said when her boss told her she should have been in the office at 9 o'clock: "XWXHXY, XWXHXAXTXHXAXPXPXEXNXEXD?" Remove X's to decipher.
- Just for kicks! Unscramble names of three kicking games: 1. GRUBY. 2. RECCOS. 3. BOLTFALO. Time limit: 1 minute each.

  1. Rugby. 2. Soccer. 3. Football.
- Pick-a-pair! Nine blue socks and 12 red ones are in a drawer. How many must be drawn to insure a pair of the same color?

  Three will do it.
- Riddle-me-this! What's purple and white and baked in an oven? Give up? How about a cream cheese and jelly pizza?

TO THE VICTOR. . . Which car wins the big race? Take a guess, then trace through lines to check out answer.
